Dundee Road location most likely

Interest in local theater renewed; feelers put out

by LYNN ASINOF

The old issue of bringing an indoor movie theater to Wheeling is again being discussed by village residents and officials.

Recently, the Wheeling Youth Commission called on the village board to actively pursue the possibility of attracting a theater to the area. The commission noted the facility would provide an additional activity center for local youth.

Trustee William Hein said yesterday that he has been in contact with at least one firm that would like to build a theater in Wheeling. He said, however, the project still is quite tentative and will depend on the availability of land.

"I am looking into it, but I can't give you any specifics on it," he said. "I don't want anybody to get scared off. At this point, I can't give you names because it's not concrete yet. I think the biggest problem we're going to have is location."

HEIN SAID the companies he has talked to are primarily interested in a Dundee Road location. The theater also would require a sizable piece of property to provide ample parking for patrons. For this reason, many companies prefer to build their theaters in local shopping centers.

The theater, however, will definitely not be located in the Dunhurst Shop-

Sears outlet to open by April 1

The new Sears catalog surplus store being built just west of the Dunhurst Shopping Center is scheduled to open by April 1.

Harry Linsky, developer of the Sears building and adjacent stores, said work on the building will be complete in the next month or six weeks. He said the store is planning a spring opening, although no date has been set.

The Sears project has been in the works for nearly three years. Linsky said despite some delays, construction is about 90 days ahead of schedule.

In addition to the new Sears store, Linsky said he is planning to build 60,000 square feet of store space adjacent to the building. He said he is currently negotiating with several well-known "desig-

able" firms to rent this space. He said he expects to announce these tenants in the near future.

Jerry Cohen, manager of the Sears outlet store now located in the Dunhurst Shopping Center, said the new store will provide shoppers with an expanded selection of merchandise and more convenient shopping facilities. The new store is about 2½ times the size of the current outlet operation.

Cohen said the opening of the new store is being planned so that "we'll close one night and open the next morning."

Linsky said the construction of the additional shopping center space probably will begin this spring. The proposed stores will be located just west of Jack London Junior High School.

Harry Linsky, owner of the shopping center, said he did consider the theater proposal several years ago. He said the major problem with the project was parking needed for the moviegoers and traffic congestion between features.

"We turned a theater down a few years ago," Linsky said, noting traffic problems. "It might not have been the best thing for the shopping center."

When the new Sears outlet store opens in April, Linsky said he plans to rent the old store space to another merchant.

Plans for theater projects have been announced several times in the past, only to fall through because of problems in obtaining land in a good location. Most recently, a triple movie theater was proposed in 1972 to be built as part of a sports complex.

Parents to urge schools stop using 'sexist' materials

A committee of School Dist. 21 parents tonight plans to ask the school board to stop the use of what the committee feels to be sexist materials in local schools.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The committee intends to request that the school board include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., and Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., both of Arlington Heights, are scheduled to represent the committee in making the policy adoption request.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board will consider the following items:

- Proposed resolution for participating in a Regional Service Agency for handicapped children

- Evaluation of the Temptron Surveillance System, a computerized monitoring system installed in local schools last fall to prevent fires and vandalism.

- Northwest Educational Cooperative Data Processing Center.

Following the regular business meeting, the board is scheduled to go into executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

Resident to quit leaky apartment

Jeanette LaCayse, 173 Wildwood Ln., is continuing to withhold her January rent while workmen complete repairs on her apartment.

Last week, Mrs. LaCayse was threatened with being locked out of her apartment because she was withholding rent. This week she has decided to move on her own accord "as soon as I find an apartment."

Although repairmen have been working in the apartment for almost a week, Mrs. LaCayse said she did not think "it would be pleasant to be living here under the circumstances. If I can get out by the first of the month, I'll be happy to," she said.

MRS. LACAYSE decided to withhold her rent when a leaky pipe caused the bathroom ceiling to collapse. She said she also wanted the landlord, Donald Bundeson, to fix the water that had been running black out of her faucets since she moved in July 1.

Bundeson agreed not to lock Mrs. LaCayse out of her apartment providing she paid her rent. He also agreed to fix the leaky pipe and bathroom ceiling, but blamed the water problem on the village. Bundeson said he would let Mrs. LaCayse out of her lease and apply her security deposit to her final month's rent.

Village officials, however, maintain that the dirty water does not come from the village pipes, but rather is caused by pipes in the apartment building. The water is now being tested for a possible health code violation. Village Mgr. George Passolt said results of the tests

100 residents oppose sanitary fill site

by JOE FRANZ

More than 100 residents in the Horatio Gardens and Pekara subdivisions have presented a petition to Buffalo Grove objecting to a proposal to annex property in unincorporated Vernon Township for use as a sanitary landfill.

The residents presented their petition last week and were represented Tuesday night at a meeting of a special committee that has been appointed by the village to study the landfill proposal.

The 96-acre tract proposed for the landfill is bordered on the south by Busch Road and is on both sides of the Soo Line R.R. tracks. It is north of Horatio Gardens and northwest of Pekara. Both subdivisions are within two blocks and are the only residential areas in the immediate vicinity.

THE HOMEOWNERS are opposed to the landfill because it would be located only two blocks from Aptakisic-Tripp School. Garbage trucks from throughout the area probably would be dumping at the site, and the residents said this would create an increased volume of traffic.

In addition, they said the heavy trucks would severely damage roads and could make travel on them unsafe. However, Browning-Ferris Industries Inc., the company proposing the landfill, said it will post a bond with the Vernon Township Highway Department to cover any damage to the roads.

The firm also said it will attempt to discourage garbage trucks from passing the school on Weiland Road. Since most of the trucks would be under contract to Browning-Ferris, their routes can be easily regulated.

One way of preventing independent scavengers from traveling on certain routes would be by placing weight limitations on selected routes, according to one village official.

KENNETH Goodwin of Browning-Ferris has said the landfill will be operated in compliance with local, state and federal regulations. A number of precautions would be taken, he said, to prevent the landfill from becoming a public nuisance or health hazard.

Village officials have said they would seek to have the firm's license revoked in the event the landfill was not being operated properly.

According to Goodwin, garbage at the site would be spread, compacted and covered with dirt at the end of each day. This would help control flies, birds, mosquitoes and rodents at the site, he said.

In addition, the landfill would be surrounded by a fence to prevent loose paper from blowing off the property. Workers also would collect all scattered refuse in the area each day and deposit it in the landfill, Goodwin said.

SINCE BURNING would not be allowed on the site, he said the landfill should not create any unpleasant odors or air pollution. A berm also would be constructed around the landfill so it would not be visible to the outside.

Soil tests prior to selection of the site show that surface and subsurface water supplies will be unaffected by the landfill. Sanitary sewers would be installed under the landfill to catch rainwater running through the trash. The sewers would prevent water from entering the ground and contaminating the water supply.

Vents also would be installed at the landfill to allow the escape of methane gas. The flammable gas is formed when garbage decomposes.

Trustee Clarice Rech, chairman of the landfill committee, said yesterday her group is still studying the proposal and will make a recommendation to the village board. "What our recommendation will be I don't know," she said. "Some members of the committee have severe reservations about the landfill and others think it can be done as long as stringent controls are enforced."

THE COMMITTEE'S recommendation will be considered by the village board in a workshop Feb. 19. Prior to that, Browning-Ferris plans to meet with the homeowners in Pekara and Horatio Gardens.

Goodwin said landfills, such as the one proposed, will be needed in order to prevent "a solid waste crisis." He said his firm plans to lease the site from its owners for 10 years, the expected life of the landfill.

Once the landfill is closed, part of the property probably will be donated to the village for use as a park and the remainder will be used for industrial development, according to village officials.

THIS MAP SHOWS the relationship between the Horatio Gardens and Pekara subdivisions and the proposed landfill. Residents of those subdivisions have presented the Village of Buffalo Grove with a petition opposing the landfill.

Reintroduce mounted police to Chicago

The Chicago Police Drum and Bugle Corps played a musical salute to Lurch, a gelding quarter-horse, in the Civic Center Plaza yesterday. The occasion marked the reintroduction of a mounted police patrol in the city. The new mounted unit of 10 horses and 12 patrolmen will start patrolling Grant, Lincoln and Washington parks June 1.

$1.6 million of 'shoebox' to state

A judge Wednesday approved an out-of-court settlement giving the state of Illinois an estimated $1.6 million from the "shoebox" fortune of more than $3 million left by the late Illinois Secretary of State Paul Powell. The settlement grew out of a suit brought by Illinois Attorney General William J. Scott alleging the state was due some of Powell's money because Powell cast the state money by illegal use of his office.

Court rules on DeStefano bond, election

The Illinois Supreme Court yesterday refused to revoke the $100,000 appeal bond of convicted murderer and reputed mobster boss Mario DeStefano of Chicago. Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey asked the bond be revoked because he charged DeStefano's release was a detriment to law enforcement in the county. In another case, the court said state senators elected in 1972 were properly elected under state law despite discrepancies in the 1971 reapportionment.

New nuclear power station planned

Three utility companies operating in Illinois and Iowa announced their proposed new plant to be built near Savanna will be a nuclear power station with a 2200-megawatt capacity. According to preliminary plans, Commonwealth Edison of Illinois will build and operate the plant and own two-thirds of about 1455 megawatts.

Pipeline right of way signed

Interior Secretary Rogers Morton signed the right of way permit Wednesday for the trans-Alaska pipeline, ending a six-year campaign by seven oil companies to find a way to get oil from their rich strikes in northern Alaska to refineries. Alaska Pipeline Service Co. officials said construction would begin this spring, with completion expected in about three years.

Testifies Agnew involved in kickback

A one-time close associate of Spiro Agnew testified publicly in Baltimore yesterday the former Vice President was involved in a "clearcut kickback arrangement" with engineering contractors. Jerome Wolff, a former Maryland official said he and a Maryland mortgage banker participated with Agnew in a payoff scheme while Agnew was governor.

Hint wheat imports from Canada

The Agriculture Department predicted yesterday that U.S. wheat reserves will drop late this spring to their lowest point since 1947, increasing the probability that President Nixon will order imports from Canada as a hedge against shortages and soaring bread prices. Department officials said they were confident there would be no bread shortage in spring.

Education proposals to Congress today

President Nixon will send to Congress today a package of education proposals aimed at consolidating federal grants for elementary and secondary schools. Gerald Warren, White House deputy press secretary, said the proposals would follow "very closely" along the lines of the President's education revenue sharing legislation last year.

Delay search for snow-slide victims

Rescuers, fearing further snowslides, suspended their operation at an isolated highway service complex in Terrace, B.C., where seven bodies already have been found under tons of snow. Seven bodies have been found in the ruins, 20 hours after the massive slide hit and buried the truck stop. The only survivor, Volkmar Zobel, is reported in fair condition.

Militants walk out of Ireland Assembly

Militant Protestant legislators who plunged the Northern Ireland Assembly into fist-swinging chaos Tuesday, marched out of the assembly in Belfast yesterday. They said they would not return. Extra patrols, meanwhile, watched Belfast's Catholic Ardoyne district and Protestant areas after blast bombs were hurled at two Catholic homes and gunmen made two shooting attacks.

Crewmen: Most S. Viets down with ship

Rescued crewmen of South Vietnamese warship sunk last Saturday by Chinese naval missile and gunfire said their vessel went down with the captain and many of their shipmates. U.S. officials said "every effort is being made to learn the whereabouts of American Gerald Kosh, who has been missing since the attack. In Cambodia, meanwhile, government and Communist troops traded six small villages close to Phnom Penh in the see-saw battle for the capital.

The market

Healthy gain in stock prices

Various energy developments helped stock prices to a healthy gain on the New York Stock Exchange in moderate trading. The Dow Jones industrial average posted a gain of 7.53 to 871.00. Standard & Poor's 500 index rose 0.52 to 97.07. The average price of a NYSE common share increased by 18 cents. Advances led declines, 926 to 524, among 1,791 issues traded. Turnover totaled 16,890,000 shares.

Congress asked to spend $1.8 billion

Nixon outlines energy proposals

From Herald news services

President Nixon asked Congress Wednesday to spend $1.8 billion for energy research and development in 1975.

He also proposed to trim the oil companies' tax break, label "energy efficient" products and relax auto emission standards for two more years.

Breaking from tradition by outlining his energy legislative proposals prior to the State of the Union message Jan. 30, Nixon also repeated earlier "highest priority" requests for passage of the emergency energy act, a windfall profits tax, a job security assistance proposal, mandatory inventory reporting by energy firms and creation of the Federal Energy Administration.

The President's five new legislative proposals, which he promised to send to Congress within "the next several weeks," were:

- A change in the law to eliminate foreign depletion allowances and modify the system of foreign tax credits for U.S. firms that produce oil overseas.

- Accelerated licensing and construction of nuclear facilities.

- Mandatory labeling of all major appliances and automobiles sold in the United States to indicate their energy use and efficiency.

- Changes in the Clean Air Act to temporarily relax industrial emission standards where clean energy supplies are inadequate and to extend auto standards for one year.

- An energy facilities siting act to coordinate government approval of sites for energy facilities.

Nixon noted that his request for $1.8 billion for energy research and development was the first step in a $18 billion, five-year program and nearly double the level spent a year ago. He said he also would request an increase of $216 million for supporting programs in basic and environmental effects research.

The President appeared to get tough on the oil industry in references to proposals for a tax on windfall profits, mandatory reporting of inventories and an elimination of the foreign depletion allowance.

"We must not permit private profiteering at the expense of public sacrifice," he said. "The sacrifices made by the American people must be for the benefit of all the people, not just for the benefit of big business."

Meanwhile, federal energy director William E. Simon was reported Wednesday to be considering a mandatory rollback in the rising price of new domestic crude oil, but he opposed any punitive windfall taxes as self-defeating.

In other developments:

- Antipoverty director Alvin J. Arnett testified at a Senate hearing that poor families are unable to obtain home heating oil because some distributors are requiring minimum 200-gallon orders and payment in cash. Arnett complained that his proposals for helping the poor were not having a "substantial impact" on Simon's Federal Energy Office.

- The United States imposed export quotas for the first time Wednesday on American petroleum products, placing a limit of 46,000 barrels per day on exported gasoline, distillate and residual fuel oils. Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, said the quotas were "designed to assure continued availability of limited domestic supplies while preserving historic trade patterns."

- The president of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce said yesterday the federal government's gasoline rationing plan would mean a "severe hardship" for Chicago area commuters if it were put into effect.

Big-3 auto sales down 30.6%

From Herald news services

U.S. automakers, feeling the squeeze of the energy crisis and a consumer stampede from big cars, said Wednesday they sold 155,004 passenger cars in mid-January — a drop of 30.6 per cent from last year.

Overall, the industry decline was the sharpest for any 10-day period since mid-September, when the full impact of the energy crisis first hit the auto industry.

The smallest of the major four car companies, American Motors Corp., said its sales in the Jan. 1-10 period hit a 14-year high for the period.

But the "Big Three" carmakers reported sharp slumps.

General Motors corp., the giant of the industry, said sales during the second 10 days of the year fell 36.3 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

Chrysler Corp. said its sales dipped 37.5 per cent and Ford Motor Co. said sales fell by 29 per cent during mid-January.

Overall, the four companies showed a decline of 30.6 per cent for the mid-January period — the sharpest in any 10-day period since mid-September, when the energy crisis hit the industry. The 10-day figures compared with a 27 per cent slump over the Jan. 1-10 period. General Motors said its dealers sold 70,640 passenger cars in mid-January compared with 124,675 last year over the same period. The figure was a slight improvement over the whopping 42.5 per cent drop reported for the first 10 days of this year.

Chrysler, which slumped only 7 per cent in the first 10 days, reported sales for the second 10 days of 25,728 cars compared with 41,134 for the same period last year.

Ford, which earlier reported a 14 per cent slump, said its mid-January figures showed sales of 49,828 cars compared with 77,041 last year.

American Motors, which reported a 33 per cent jump in the first 10 days of the month, said dealers sold 10,000 cars in the mid-January compared with 8,323 a year ago over the same period. It called the figure a 14-year high for the second 10-day period.

PRESIDENT NIXON

Watergate unit to continue

From Herald news services

The Senate Watergate Committee — for the first time split on party lines — voted Wednesday to hold two weeks of hearings on President Nixon's campaign contributions from billionaire Howard Hughes and dairy industry cooperatives.

The hearings would be split into two three-day sessions, with Tuesday through Thursday next week devoted to the Hughes gift, and attention the week after on the dairy controversy.

Chairman Sam Ervin, D-N.C., emerged from a three-hour meeting to announce the 4-3 vote, saying the committee staff would draw up a new list of witnesses that might include Nixon friend C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Concentration would be on the $100,000 campaign gift from Hughes, which was accepted and later returned by Rebozo, and on the $437,000 dairy industry donation to Nixon's 1972 campaign and allegations it was tied to a 1971 hike in milk price supports.

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., the committee vice chairman, spoke for the three Republicans in saying he wanted the panel to end its work and turn over its findings to the House Judiciary Committee, now studying the possibility of impeaching Nixon.

He said the mood of the country is "getting on with the business at hand," including impeachment, and he expressed "grave doubts" over what could be accomplished by the hearings.

The committee also voted unanimously to ask again for a meeting with Nixon and the White House, with the stipulation that if he doesn't agree by the weekend, it may submit written questions to him.

In related developments:

- President Nixon was reported to have told a group of Republican House members he is "gonna fight like hell" against impeachment.

- The chairman of the House Judiciary Committee — Peter Rodino, D-N.J. — said a "thorough and complete" impeachment investigation can't be conducted without the cooperation of Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who has said he can't give information to the committee that's intended for grand juries.

- A former aide to President Nixon—Edward Morgan — predicted that convicted Watergate conspirator Egil "Bud" Krogh will soon "spill his guts" in a confession about the White House "plumb-line" operation that could lead to Nixon's impeachment. Morgan quit as assistant Treasury secretary last week, expressing despair over Watergate's impact on government, and predicting 1974 will be even worse than 1973.

- Sen. Russell Long, D-La., said Nixon almost certainly will be asked to pay back taxes because he was not entitled to the $78,000 deduction he claimed on the gift of his vice presidential papers. Long heads the House-Senate committee probing Nixon's taxes at the president's request.

Skylab gyro concern grows

From Herald news services

Ground officials said Wednesday they believe Skylab's troubled controlling gyroscope is "slowly but surely caving in" during the final days of the space mission first launched last May.

A space station picture-taking pass of the earth was canceled and engineers closely monitored the activity of the vital stabilization control device. If the gyroscope collapsed, it could severely curtail scientific activity aboard the spaceship, and possibly bring an early end to the mission, although that was not expected. Skylab 3 is scheduled for a Feb. 8 splashdown off Baja, California.

A space agency spokesman said Flight Director Neil Hutchinson was concerned about the deterioration of the gyro.

"He considers CMG No. 2 (the gyro) to be slowly but surely caving in," the spokesman said.

Experts in mission control said the condition of the misbehaving gyro had apparently stabilized after faltering early Wednesday.

"We're looking at continuing our watch for about 24 hours, winding up tonight, and then make a decision on whether to resume earth studies or what mode of operation to go in," ground communicator Bruce McCandless told the Skylab 3 pilots.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue were in no danger and would be safe if the gyro quit completely, officials said.

Mission control monitored the "distress" by radio commands. They said the rotation speed of the spinning wheel decreased and temperatures in the bearings increased.

It was the second day in a row that officials cancelled an earth resources maneuver because of the gyro, which began faltering Dec. 5, the 20th day of the flight.

Program Director William C. Schneider said he expected the pilots to stay in orbit the last two weeks of the 84-day mission, even if the gyro quit.

One gyro failed the eighth day of the flight. If the second gyro failed, backup gas thrusters on the station and engines on the Apollo ferry ship docked to Skylab's nose would be required to keep the lab stable.

Earth resources, solar physics and Comet Kohoutek photography would also be canceled because the cameras could not be kept finely pointed with only one working gyro.

Israel pulls some heavy equipment from W. Bank

From United Press International

Israel withdrew some heavy equipment from its foothold on the West Bank of the Suez Canal Wednesday in preparation for the pull back of its forces along the front with Egypt. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Syria was ready to start negotiations on troop disengagement on the northern Golan Heights.

Israel also permitted Egyptian ambulances to evacuate 300 wounded Egyptians from Suez City to Cairo. Israeli forces crossed the canal, surrounded Suez City and encircled the Egyptian 3rd Army last October. They have controlled the road to Cairo ever since.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the equipment removed Wednesday consisted of support vehicles and some tanks. Israeli soldiers also began picking up some of the estimated 750,000 landmines around the Israeli forces.

The mines will be replanted at the new Israeli lines east of the Suez Canal to which Israel agreed to withdraw after a week of negotiations in which Secretary of State Henry Kissinger played a major role.

The first Israeli troops are scheduled to pull back to positions north of the Suez-Cairo highway on Friday, along with tanks and artillery protection. U.N. forces will move into the positions given up by Israel and turn them over to Egypt six hours later to avoid contact between troops of the two sides.

In Rabat, Morocco, Sadat said Syria was willing to discuss a similar disengagement on Golan Heights. He said the Geneva peace conference "cannot restart as long as there is no agreement between Syria and Israel on disengagement. Damascus is ready to hold discussions on this matter."

Sadat's trip to Morocco was the last in a series of visits to Arab states to brief Egypt's allies on details of the Egyptian Israeli accord. He flew back to Cairo later in the day.

Stronger cigarette warning?

From Herald news services

The Federal Trade Commission told Congress it should strengthen the printed warning on cigarettes, and add a warning to little cigars, to let smokers know they may be running the risk of cancer, heart disease and other ailments.

It also recommended the government start an advertising campaign on radio and television and in print to discourage smoking, especially among young persons, and launch a research program to develop a "safe" cigarette.

The present health warning on cigarette packages reads: "Warning: The Surgeon General has determined that cigarette smoking is dangerous to your health."

The FTC report said that should be changed to read: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer, coronary heart disease, chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema and other diseases."

It also said little cigars — which like cigarettes are no longer allowed to advertise on radio and TV — should at least carry a warning that they may be dangerous "if smoked and inhaled in the same quantities as cigarettes." Preferably, the report said, the little cigar warning should also list the specific diseases recommended for the strengthened cigarette warning.

Graduation set at Forest View

Forty Forest View High School students will go through graduation ceremonies a semester earlier than their classmates Sunday.

The students have arranged a program of contemporary music for the commencement exercises, which will begin at 3 p.m. Graduate Sue Madero will present and invocation and Principal Jack Martin will address the graduates.

Students at all Dist. 214 schools may elect to graduate in midyear rather than in June. This is the second year that students at Forest View have had a ceremony with midyear graduation.

New courses slated at Harper

Harper College will offer a new real estate course this spring called "Property Management Methods."

The class will be offered on Tuesday nights beginning Jan. 29. Registration for the course will be held tomorrow through Saturday at the college.

A student may earn three semester hours of college credit for the course, which deals with property analysis, rental scheduling, budgeting, promotion, executive and management-control techniques. It will be taught by Robert A. Cagann, president of Robert A. Cagann and Associates, real estate appraisers, consultants and managers.

Other real estate courses offered this spring include principles of real estate, real estate appraisal, real estate finance and building construction principles for realtors.

Information on real estate courses is available through the college, 397-3000, ext. 314 or 311.

The college also will offer a new course called "Merchandising of Furnishings and Softline Goods."

The class will be offered on Monday nights and Thursday mornings beginning Jan. 28. Registration will be held tomorrow through Saturday. The course will focus on various aspects of retailing including duties and responsibilities of the buyer, budgeting, assortment, pricing, strategy, selection and promotion of merchandise and coordination of merchandising functions and processes within the retail store.

St. Viator council head elected

Larry Ostling of Mount Prospect recently was elected chairman of the parent-faculty-student council at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

Mike Skarzynski of Arlington Heights, a senior at St. Viator, was elected vice-chairman and Robert Strezewski, English teacher, secretary.

The parent-faculty-student council serves to advise school administrators on topics of interest to parents, faculty and students.

Other parents on the council are Paul Bruck, Frank McAleer, Robert Scanlan and Dolores White, all of Arlington Heights and Mildred Halas and Bernard Pierce, both of Mount Prospect.

Faculty members are Strezewski, Rev. James Crilly, Brother Robert Egan, Kevin O'Connor, Ken Peck, Rev. Arnold Perham and Marlene Weiczorek.

Student representatives are Skarzynski, Craig Ameel, Mark Anderson, James Aubry, Marty Brauweller, Terry Frett, Thomas Horvath and Rick Kaiser.

Harper 'second-chance' policy under fire

by WANDALYN RICE

Harper College may be penalized financially for giving flunking students a second chance and college officials are trying to find a way to avoid that problem.

A proposed solution to the dilemma, caused by a new Illinois Community College Board (ICCB) policy cutting off state funds for students enrolled in a class they have already taken, was explained to the college faculty this week.

The state policy, which may go into effect during the spring semester and which "will certainly be in effect next fall," will mean that Harper will not receive state aid money for students who are repeating courses in which they received "Ds" and "Fs" the first time around, according to Harper Vice President for Academic Affairs Clarence Schauer.

Harper receives $18.50 from the state for each credit hour for which a student is enrolled at the college. That means that the college receives $55.50 for each student enrolled in a three-credit course.

THE NEW STATE policy would mean no state money if a student was taking a course for which he had already received a grade. Under present Harper policy, students receiving "Ds" and "Fs" can repeat a course and the higher grade they receive counts into their grade point average. Schauer said he estimates that 20 to 40 students a semester re-take courses.

One way to avoid that problem, now is being recommended by an advisory committee set up by Schauer, is to create a new grade — "N" — which can be given to students who fail to complete any work in a course, according to Charles Falk, chairman of the committee and chairman of the college's business division.

In explaining the "N" grade to a meeting of the college faculty Tuesday, Falk said the "N" grade would be given to the student who does not attend class and who does not go through formal withdrawal from the class.

"A number of 'Fs' given in each division go to 'walk aways,' students who simply walk away from the class and don't withdraw," Falk said. The "N" grade would give the student the right to sign up for the class again without costing the college any money, he said.

"The college would still lose some funds for those students who stay in a class and earn a 'D' or 'F' and who then re-take the course," Falk said, "but faculty members who are uncomfortable giving 'Fs' to walkaways would have an alternative and those of you who have not felt at all uncomfortable giving walkaways 'Fs' could continue to do so."

SEVERAL FACULTY members objected to the proposal for the new grade. Assistant Prof. Robert Boeke said, "It seems as though the description of the 'N' grade will reward the student for being irresponsible. The student who stays with a course and takes the final gets an 'F' that could stay with him forever, while the student who walks away gets the 'N' grade."

Another faculty member said the "N" grade would also be unfair to students who receive incompletes in a class. Any incomplete, the faculty member said, turns into an "F" in eight weeks if a student does not make up necessary work and the "F" goes on forever.

Still another faculty member said he felt teachers who might otherwise flunk a student would feel pressured to give the student an "N" grade. "If I don't give the 'N' grade, I will be guilty of financially penalizing the college," he said.

Schauer said after the faculty meeting that he expects to present a recommendation creation of an "N" grade to the college board in March or April. Until then, he said, "it will be studied by various parts of the institution."

CROSSROADS CLINIC workers will have to move out of their present facilities at 222 E. Hicks Pl., when the office lease expires in April. The building's owner, Pete Philippe, has told the clinic to move.

Looking for new Palatine location

Crossroads being forced from its 'home'

by JULIA BAUER
Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.
The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.
"We're going to try to look in Palatine" for a new clinic location, Mrs. Michelin said.
DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.
Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Philippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.
If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort," Finlayson said. That clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.
FINLAYSON is building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.
The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.
In the meantime, Mrs. Michelin will begin working full time as Crossroads

Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.
Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.
PALATINE TOWNSHIP auditors reaffirmed their funding decision after nearly 2½ hours of public discussion Tuesday at Sanborn School. Primary objections centered on the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives without parental consent. Objectors charged that the practice may encourage promiscuity and harm parent-child relationships.
Petitions bearing more than 3,100 signatures opposing township funding of the clinic were submitted at Tuesday's meeting.
Supporters of Crossroads emphasize the clinic's success at reaching teenagers by supplying vital health services to teens including the detection of venereal disease in youths who did not know they carried the disease.
ALL YOUTHS coming into the clinic are tested for syphilis and gonorrhea. Contraceptives, according to clinic spokesmen, are an important part of a program that also treats post-abortion medical problems and gives pregnancy tests. Minor infections, such as yeast and trichomonis, are also treated at the clinic.
Palatine Township officials added a restriction to their grant that none of the $5,000 be used to reimburse the birth control activities of the clinic. The funds may be used to purchase medical equipment and supplies for examining rooms.

have not been received.
Mrs. LaCayse said the incident has left her "just completely exhausted mentally and physically." She praised village officials for their help, saying they gave speedy attention to her problem.
"A lot of people think you have to pay to get service from the village, and it's not so," she said. "It was very heartwarming to have these people so concerned about me personally."

Stanis heads Girl Scout fund drive

Eugene Stanis, 146 Norman Ln., Wheeling, is local chairman of the Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council 1974 Sustaining Membership Enrollment drive, which begins Saturday.

Under the leadership of Stanis, troop enrollment chairmen will contact Girl Scout families in the next two weeks, soliciting funds to support all phases of the Girl Scout program in this area.

The goal for Northwest Cook County is $33,000. The Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council includes 19 communities and serves 19,000 girls and adults.

Funds raised during the SME drive will supply about 7 per cent of the council budget, according to Clarine Hall, executive director of the Council.

"SME is our inflation-beater and budget-balancer," Mrs. Hall said. "Our job is to keep providing imaginative and outstanding year-round programs to Girl Scouts in this area at a modest cost, and SME gives us the supplementary income we need to maintain our standards in spite of inflation."

THE NORTHWEST COUNCIL is the second largest in the state. In addition to 768 troops of Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Senior scouts, the council serves more than 3000 adult volunteers through training, workshops and professional support and guidance.

More than 500 girls from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove attended scout camps last summer. Because the council believes no girl should be deprived of a camping opportunity for financial reasons, a campership fund is available to registered Girl Scouts.

To fulfill scouting's basic commitment to community service and enlarged horizons, "extra mile" summer caravans set up day camps last summer in the inner city and an additional day camp is staffed by older scouts of the Northwest Opportunity Center. Three girls from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove volunteered for these camps last year.

Girl scouting also can mean international travel opportunities. In recent years, local girls have visited Canada, Mexico, Wyoming and Washington, D.C., on a few of the council-sponsored trips.

LAST YEAR, hundreds of service hours were given to the community by

its Girl Scouts. The 1,454 scouts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove helped with the United Fund balloon sale, made Christmas ornaments for the Wheeling community tree and collected eye glasses for the Lions Club. They also filled "patient packs" for Northwest Community Hospital and entertained at Addolorata Village.

"Through our programs and opportunities, we offer each girl rich and varied opportunities for growth," Mrs. Hall said. "They learn responsibility and leadership, they develop self-awareness and lasting values; in every sense of the word, the Girl Scouts are more relevant than ever."

School news notes

Fourth grade students at Sandburg School in Wheeling are discovering the art of ancient Egypt by making their own bas relief plaques.

The students are making plaster forms and carving designs on them. The forms will be polished and then colored with poster paint to resemble plaques produced by Egyptian artists centuries ago.

The art project was prompted by an interest the students have shown in archeology. The pupils plan to do some excavating on the school site later this year.

A dental hygienist is scheduled to visit Irving School today to discuss her job with first grade children.

The students have been studying about health habits this month, including eating proper foods, getting sufficient rest, proper exercise, personal hygiene and dental health.

Dental hygienist, Josephine Leonard, is to bring along the tools she uses in her job and explain practices of good dental care to the students.

There is an unusual bulletin board in Rosalie Roth's fifth grade classroom at Twain School in Wheeling.

The large board is divided into individual sections for each of the students and Mrs. Roth. Some of the students use their portion of the board to display their work while others decorate their section.

While the mysterious Comet Kohoutek continues to evade astronomers searching the skies for its light, a replica of the comet can be clearly seen outside Dee Levi's classroom at Twain School.

As part of their study of comets, the first graders in Miss Levi's class created their own comet that is displayed on a bulletin board in the hall.

The first group of children in a proposed series of special classes have begun work on quickpoint embroidery projects at Sandburg School.

The students have drawn their own designs on needlepoint canvas and are learning the proper stitches under the guidance of Louise Learn, a volunteer and Doris Richter, learning center director.

Further classes will include cooking, guitar, knitting, simple crocheting, wood-working and photography.

The program was developed by Mrs. Richter and eventually will involve all intermediate children in the school. Part of the cost of projects is being paid for by the sale of ice cream during lunch periods.

How can you avoid catching cold? Just avoid people

I had a complete physical examination this year, and the result is I am in good health at age 73.

My problem is, I get a cold very easily. I have had five since January this year. I eat right, get my rest, avoid drafts and chilling and try not to become overtired. Is there some medicine or something I could take to prevent this condition?

Probably the best way to avoid colds is to avoid people. Colds are spread from person-to-person contact. The school environment is one of the main ways of spread. The parents of young school children have at least twice as many colds as adults without children, or those after the children have grown up. Almost all forms of activity that increase people-to-people contact increase the chances of getting the bug.

Of course, there are differences in susceptibility. That's why one person will get a cold and the other one will not, even when they are both exposed. You can improve your resistance by maintaining good health, not getting overtired or having excess exposure to undesirable climates.

THERE IS NO agreement on ways to prevent colds even among authorities. Some believe that large doses of vitamin C are helpful. There are studies that prove and others that disprove this concept. Certainly anyone who is not deficient in vitamin C or other vitamins or nutrients for that matter will have better health and hence better resistance if they have proper nutrition.

Our bodies and minds play strange tricks on us. When we have faith in a medicine we feel better — even if it had nothing to do with our health. I'm reminded of the story of one student who was part of a study on the effectiveness of vitamin C. He was so impressed with how much better he did in avoiding colds when he was in the study that he wrote back to the university the next year and wanted to travel several hundred miles to get some more anticold medicine. Guess what. He was in the control group and the pill he got contained no vitamin C at all.

The doctor says

FOR THOSE who want to try it, I see no harm in taking 500 to 1000 milligrams of vitamin C a day. Contrary to all the enthusiasts, I see no reason at all or any good evidence that massive doses at the onset of a cold will help abort the cold. Simply stated, I doubt there is any benefit at all for any amounts over 1000 milligrams a day, and even the idea that you will prevent colds with this amount is suspect. You may have a milder episode, though, if you have been taking vitamin C.

So, my best advice remains, eat a good diet, maintain good health, and if you want to try vitamin C, no more than 1000 milligrams a day.

One more thing, not all colds are really colds. A lot of allergies masquerade as colds.

You should also avoid crowds during the cold season, and, as far as practical, limit your exposure to those who have colds.

Postal Service changes its sale policy

The U.S. Postal Service has altered its policy concerning the sale of plate numbers and marginal markings through the Philatelic Sales Unit.

For stamp values from 1 cent through 16 cents, a full pane of each must be purchased. (Formerly, the full pane requirement applied to stamp values through 20 cents.) For stamp values from 17 cents through 50 cents, strips of 20 stamps of each must be purchased. The 60 cent stamps require the purchase of 10 stamps each and a purchase of 4 stamps of each is now required for values from $1 through $5.

THE 10-CENT international airmail stamp featuring the Statue of Liberty was released Jan. 11 at Hempstead, N.Y.

An 18-cent international rate postal card bearing the weathervane and the Bicentennial inscription was issued Jan. 4 at Miami.

Requests for first-day cancellations on both of these issues will be honored through Feb. 15.

Address your requests to 18-cent Statue of Liberty Stamp, Postmaster, Hempstead, N.Y. 11551 or to 10-cent Postal Card, Postmaster, Miami, Fla. 33101.

THE KENNEDY Space Center applied 171,386 cancels to mark the launch of Skylab IV last Nov. 16.

EACH PANE of the 18-cent Statue of Liberty stamp will carry two plate numbers.

Silver ingots a 'very poor' investment

Of the hundreds of pictorial silver ingot bars flooding today's market, a few may become collector items in the foreseeable future, but as a commodity investment, the one-ounce .999 Fine and 1000 grain Sterling Silver bars are a very poor investment.

At $2.82 an ounce, the average $4.50 pure silver bar is worth approximately $2.81718. One hundred such bars would gross the owner $281.72 . . . less an assay fee of $20 . . . less an $85 refining fee and .02c per ounce handling charges. Yielding a net return of $174.72 for an original investment of $450.00. Sterling silver bars would of course, return much less since their silver purity is .974 less than the .999 Fine ingots.

THE MARKET PRICE of silver would have to reach in excess of $6.00 per ounce for a seller to realize an even break. So unless you are prepared to hold for an indefinite period, buy select silver bars for their aesthetic value; never for their intrinsic value. And then only when assured of a limited edition to the lowest possible quantity.

On the other hand, Coin-Ingots are well worth consideration by the investor. The round, coin-like ingot is totally lacking in aesthetic properties of any kind, but contain a full ounce of .999 Fine silver.

Originally produced by the Letcher Mint of Lancaster, California, the Coin-Ingots sold at .75c to .30c over the spot market price of silver depending on the quantity purchased. Paramount Building, Englewood, Ohio, 45322. The averages reflect their prices and they will be glad to fill your needs.

This small premium could be absorbed over a short holding term, allowing the seller to take advantage of one assay fee and one refining fee for the lot, regardless of the amount of silver involved.

Whether or not Coin-Ingots are still available could not be ascertained at this writing, but interested readers may write: Al Letcher, The Letcher Mint, P.O. Box 107, Lancaster, Calif. 93534.

PARAMOUNT AVERAGES PORTFOLIOS

It is appropriate here to respond to the many inquiries pertaining to the availability of the four portfolios used in the weekly Paramount Averages report.

Any one of the four portfolios or any number of coins in any of the four may be supplied by your local coin dealer. Merely present your favorite portfolio to any dealer and ask him to match the prices shown. If he is unable to do so, write David W. Akers, Paramount International Coin Corp.

Central Federal opens Mount Prospect branch

Participants in the ceremony included Frank J. Kryda, president; Frank J. Kryda Jr., vice president and branch manager; Allan Anderson, executive vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Chicago; Robert Teichert, Mount Prospect mayor, and Robert Nelson, owner of the building.

The new branch office provides savings and home loan services. Drive-up window and parking space are available to customers. The association's grand opening activities will continue through the end of January.

Central Federal Savings maintains offices at 5963 W. Cermak, Cicero. It has served the public since 1892.

Channel 7 ghost hunt in progress

Insomniacs who want to attempt an electronic exorcism can tune their television sets to Channel 7 between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. and see for themselves whether ghosts have been driven from their video box.

ABC television is testing its new transmitter on Sears Tower during the early-morning hours. The new equipment, which will go into regular operation Tuesday, has been advertised as the end to Northwest area reception problems.

Materials industry must battle Crisis

by AL ROSSITER JR.

WASHINGTON — The industry that gave the housewife stainless steel, vinyl floors and teflon for her kitchen, synthetic fibers for her clothes and phosphor crystals for her color television must play a key role in the effort to combat the energy crisis.

That was one conclusion of a National Academy of Sciences committee, which spent three years studying the progress and potential of half a million specialists working in the field of materials science and engineering.

The 20-man panel said in a newly released report that the challenges to the materials industry have never been greater, particularly in developing the super alloys, exotic ceramics and other materials that must be used in the production, transmission and use of energy.

"The pressing demand for energy in this country is creating problems that simply cannot be solved without skillful exploitation of materials science and engineering," the committee said. "We must learn to generate, transmit, store and use energy more efficiently and within appropriate environmental, constraints.

"FEDERAL LEADERSHIP is essential for the coordinated development of energy technologies, but industry, despite the pressures of short-term economic survival, can do much to help solve the related long-range materials problems."

Probably one of the most difficult tasks the materials scientists will face in the years ahead will be developing the substances that will be needed in the components of a thermonuclear fusion power system if research in the next decade or two shows such a clean and virtually unlimited source of energy is feasible.

Some of the more immediate needs are improved or new materials for high temperature gas turbines which electric companies are turning to in order to make up generating shortages caused by delayed additions of nuclear or conventional generators, the report said.

Another area where much work is required is in the field of superconductors, materials which can transmit electricity with virtually no resistance when kept at very cold temperatures. Superconducting cable may eventually reduce the cost of transmitting large amounts of power underground.

The report said the development of nuclear breeder reactors, a high priority Atomic Energy Commission power generation effort, also faces major materials problems. One of the biggest challenges will be the development of the fuel pellets for the breeder reactor.

THE PROMISE of nonpolluting energy from the sun also is dependent to a large degree on progress in materials science and engineering. Conversion of sunlight to electricity requires large arrays of efficient, low-cost solar cells or collectors and, the committee said, existing materials cannot fully meet the requirements.

It recommended a detailed plan of action to deal with materials research and development. The plan requires strong federal leadership and close coordination with industry and universities.

"Certainly we must pursue a new federalism of the national scientific and engineering community, extending through universities, industry, research institutes and into the coordinating functions of the federal government," said Morris Cohen, the committee chairman, and vice chairman William O. Baker in a letter accompanying the report.

Musical instrument debuts

A new musical instrument manufactured by a small Arlington Heights firm will be introduced today to participants at the Illinois State Music Educators conference at Arlington Park Towers.

"Scalatron" is a dual keyboard instrument that allows the composer to use push button programming to achieve a variety of pitches. It's made by Motorola Scalatron Inc., 3034 Malmo Dr., Arlington Heights.

Motorola Scalatron is one of the Motorola "new venture" companies. It began as the brainchild of Herman Pedtke, head of the organ department at DePaul University. Pedtke is also musical consultant to Motorola.

Pedtke worked with Richard Harasek, former new products manager for Motorola's consumer products division and now the president of Motorola Scalatron, to develop the instrument. They had originally planned to develop an organ which would produce its own accompaniment.

The new company moved into its Arlington Heights quarters in February, 1973, and within a month the first Scalatron was completed. A number of units have been built and sold since that time.

Tax law changes to be explained

Changes in income tax laws and income tax forms will be discussed by Edward Pearlman and Paul Walsh at today's meeting of the Northwest suburban chapter of the National Assn. of Accountants. The meeting will be at the O'Hare Inn South.

Pearlman earned a master's degree from DePaul University. He has experience in the field of individual income taxes. Walsh is a CPA. He teaches a class on income tax for individuals in the Maine East adult education program.

The meeting will begin with a social hour at 5:30 p.m. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. For information on reservations, contact Earle Kuhn at 287-2400.

Israel report

at temple Friday

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, will hear a first-hand report on conditions in Israel from Rabbi Jay Karzen, who has just returned from a layal pilgrimage with the Rabbinical Council of America. His presentation will be during Family Sabbath Eve services Friday at 8:30 p.m.

A special Sunday School Sabbath afternoon happening is scheduled for Saturday, 5:15 p.m. Students and parents have been invited to participate in the traditional Mincha service followed by the "Shalosh Seudos" meal and candlelight (Havdalah) ritual. A special student presentation will also highlight this concluding Sabbath program.

Junior congregation will participate in a special treat Sunday, when a large group from the MTJC Religious School will attend a Chicago Bulls basketball game.

Immigration Service head visits Chicago

U.S. aide plans drive to root out illegal aliens

The new head of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service yesterday promised to step up efforts to apprehend illegal aliens in the Chicago area.

Leonard F. Chapman Jr., said he has appointed a study group to find better ways to enforce laws prohibiting illegal aliens from staying in the United States. The group is to report in February.

He also said the 85 immigration investigators in the Chicago area district, which covers Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, are not enough to handle the illegal alien problem. He said he will authorize additional personnel.

THE NEW COMMISSIONER was in Chicago yesterday to inspect the service's facilities here and to study the problem of illegal aliens. Chapman was named commissioner last November to replace Raymond Farrell, who retired. A retired four-star general, Chapman was Commandant of the U.S. Marine Corps for four years.

Last year, 11,214 illegal aliens were apprehended in Chicago and the suburbs. The Northwest suburbs in the past has been the scene of mass arrests of such persons, most of them Spanish-speaking.

Of those arrested in the Chicago area, 80 per cent are from Mexico and 5 per cent are from Latin American countries, according to Immigration officials. Only four of the service's investigators are Latinos.

The main objection to the presence of illegal aliens in the country is economic, according to Chapman.

"In most instances, they are good people but they are occupying jobs most Americans could handle instead of receiving welfare and employment payments," he said.

HE SAID THE number of illegal aliens in this country is on the rise — 670,000 were arrested last year — but there is no way of telling how many are here. Besides crossing the borders illegally, some foreign nationals enter the country on travel visas and stay after their visa expires — or come to study and instead get a job.

The U.S. Senate is considering a bill that would make it easier for the service to do its job, Chapman said. The bill, sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and U.S. Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., would authorize penalties, possibly criminal action, against employers who knowingly hire illegal aliens. Currently, employers are under no such restrictions.

Coin collectors can keep abreast of new issues and values, every Thursday in the HERALD.

Pastoral care forum features Carroll Wise

The fourth seminar in the Forum on Issues in Pastoral Care and Counseling will be held Feb. 4 from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church of Park Ridge, 418 Touhy Ave.

Carroll A. Wise will be the speaker. His topic will be "The Pastor: Being A Person to Others." Wise is professor emeritus of pastoral psychology and counseling at Garrett Theological Seminary and director emeritus of the Community Pastoral Counseling Center of Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. His latest book is "The Meaning of Pastoral Care."

The seminar is the fourth in a series of six sponsored by the pastoral care department of Lutheran General Hospital. The theme of this year's forum is "History and Theology in Pastoral Care."

The seminars are open to clergy of all faiths and their wives. The cost of an individual seminar is $15. Members of the clergy may register at the door on the day of the program.

are never opened put in its appearance. The system in toto has never achieved any real success. The absolute reliance on five-card-major openings is one reason.

On the other hand, it is good policy to open a four-card major suit only when you really can find no other reasonable call.

The bidding in the box is normal modern bidding.

South becomes declarer at three notrump. After the heart opening he is sure of two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and one club. He may wind up taking the club finesse for an overtrick.

Back in the 1930s most North players would open one spade. South would respond two diamonds. If North proceeded to bid two notrump, East would defeat the contract.

If North rebid three clubs, South might bid three notrump. But some South players might go back to spades, whereupon North would wind up playing an unsatisfactory spade or notrump contract.

Bob Lahey's column

Some questions posed for pro-RTA 'fact sheet'

It seems that the major issue of the March 19 primary election in the six counties of Northeastern Illinois will be whether the voters approve creation of a Regional Transit Authority as developed by the General Assembly.

The passage of the RTA referendum begins to look much more in doubt than was first assumed in this corner, and the prospects are for a flood of rhetoric and literature for and against the legislative proposal in the next seven weeks.

That is to the good. Discerning voters should be able to glean from the barrage of debates and propaganda some estimate of whether this is or is not a good plan.

It would be better if both the proponents and the opponents would temper their arguments to the point where the interested voter could get the facts without having to make a choice between who is giving them the straight dope and who is pulling their leg.

Opponents of the RTA proposal which the voters must accept or reject are making much over the power which that agency would be given to tax undeveloped "parking facilities."

That is a legitimate point, but they are carrying it too far by raising the specter of a tax on private home garages and driveways. It is a little much to imagine even the Illinois legislature trying to institute such a tax, and we suspect that even its supporters have difficulty keeping a straight face when reciting the "driveway argument."

But even while discarding the driveway theory, one must grudgingly concede that it is not beyond the realm of possibilities.

More disconcerting is the promotion of certain "facts" concerning the RTA proposal which have no basis in the law passed by the General Assembly which the people will be asked to ratify.

Here we are considering a "fact sheet" being distributed by the RTA Citizens' Committee, a coalition of Chicago powerhouses who plan to spend up to $500,000 to put the RTA referendum over the top.

In a three-page series of questions and answers, the RTA Citizens Committee purports to clear up some of the mysteries surrounding the RTA proposal which is the result of tough and secret bargaining between the powerbrokers in the Illinois legislature.

Sample:

Q. Are there any specific groups to whom the RTA must give preference?

A. Yes, the law says that the RTA must give special consideration to new services for the physically handicapped and the elderly.

Well, folks, the law says no such thing.

What the law says is: "The General Assembly finds . . . additional commitments to the special public transportation problems of the handicapped, the economically disadvantaged and the elderly are necessary."

That appears in the section of "findings and purpose" of the RTA bill, and it means, to put it succinctly, nothing so far as what the people who would run the RTA are required to do.

There are other vagaries in the committee's Q & A, but the most curious is this:

Q. How will the parking tax be imposed?

A. It is to be imposed on commuters to Chicago's central business district who park more than eight hours in lots open to the public.

Indeed? And who, may we ask, has decided that?

Says the law: "The Board may impose a motor vehicle parking tax upon the privilege of parking motor vehicles at parking facilities in the metropolitan region . . ." That is the extent of its definition of how the parking tax is to be imposed.

It appears rather clearly to give "the Board" some pretty roomy territory to figure out what kind of parking tax it is going to present us with.

Sure, they could confine it to downtown parking lots.

They could also extend it to shopping center parking lots. They could also extend it to municipal parking facilities. And yes, damnit, some idiot on the board might also propose extending it to private garages.

By what wisdom, then, has the RTA Citizens Committee divined that it is to be confined to "commuters who park more than eight hours in lots open to the general public" in the Loop? They don't even know yet who is going to be on the RTA board.

Or do they?

Go slow with drilling

One of the disturbing spinoffs of the current energy hysteria has surfaced dramatically in Illinois.

Several oil companies are seeking the rights to drill for, and eventually produce, gas and oil in the 251,000 acre Shawnee National Forest at the southern end of the state.

At last count, there have been 226 lease applications filed in Shawnee over the past two years, with the big flurry since the outbreak of the energy crisis.

Texaco already has 3,296 acres under lease for drilling, and interest in the rest of Shawnee has been so zealous that applications have been filed for leases totaling 360,434 acres — meaning many overlap one another. Amoco alone wants the rights on 180,000 acres.

Even though there's no imminent threat of the oil companies drilling and pumping in Shawnee, the meaning is clear: in the face of reported massive energy shortages, the companies are trying to stake out as much land as possible for future potential, even in relatively uneconomical production areas like southern Illinois.

The activity is being repeated all over the country, and is part of a pattern that saw the oil companies fighting for — and getting — the Alaska pipeline, rights to strip-mine for oil shale in the West and increased rights to drill offshore in the Gulf of Mexico.

In a word, environmental standards are taking a beating in the midst of the energy panic, and the oil companies are coming out way ahead on the short-term and long-term basis.

We don't want to see it happen in Shawnee, the only area of its kind in Illinois, and we strongly support Gov. Walker in his appeal to Agriculture Secretary Butz and Interior Secretary Morton to declare a moratorium on the granting of any oil and gas drilling leases in Illinois.

The federal government — through both the Bureau of Land Management and the U.S. Geological Survey — has the final say, though in Shawnee it holds only half the mineral rights.

Big questions must be answered first. Do the oil companies really need the Shawnee reserves? What guarantees are there that this hilly, wooded area — host to 750,000 visitors last year — won't be degraded?

Unless those questions are adequately answered, and before the hysteria also swallows up Shawnee, the oil companies should be told to stay away.

Berrigan does it again

by DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Rev. Daniel Berrigan, the Jesuit priest whose resistance to the Vietnam war led him to prison and stirred heated debate in the religious community, has done it again.

Berrigan didn't burn any draft records this time or talk about kidnapping high officials. Instead, he announced his support for the Arab cause in the Middle East and accused Israel of being the first "criminal Jewish community."

The antiwar priest's remarks to a gathering of Arab scholars were little noticed until American Report, newspaper of Clergy and Lay Concerned and one of the most widely read periodicals among religious liberals, reprinted his speech. Reaction came fast and furiously.

Berrigan's analysis — sometimes temperate, sometimes not fully informed — he admitted being "non-expert" on the subject — was challenged in American Report by Rabbi Arthur Hertzberg, president of the American Jewish Congress.

The flavor of the nondialogue can be captured in Berrigan's portrayal of himself as a "Biblical Jew" and his accusation that Israel had switched from "settler ethos" to "imperial adventure." For his part, Hertzberg accused Berrigan of "old fashioned theological anti-Semitism."

Hertzberg, like Berrigan, was a longtime opponent of the Vietnam war and his angry response to the priest emphasized the depth of the split on the Middle East question.

The response to Berrigan was not simply a Catholic-Jewish difference. Berrigan was attacked from within his own religious community, most strongly by theologian Michale Novak.

Novak said Berrigan's criticism of Israel "shows exactly how the 'new left,' including the Catholic left, has veered around to join the ancient right."

Soon after Novak's criticism, the Rev. Donald Harrington of New York Community Church dropped out of ceremonies at which he was to present Berrigan the Gandhi Peace award, given by the "Promoting Enduring Peace" organization made up of about 1,200 clergy and lay people.

Harrington refused to participate in the ceremony because he said Berrigan's speech was "inflammatory."

The peace organization then decided to poll its board on whether to present the award anyway. Before the results were in, Berrigan announced he was rejecting the award, refusing to be "a bystander at a degrading consensus game," after he said the group had yielded to pressure.

It might be argued that the entire incident is a tempest in the religious left's teapot. Instead, it suggests that the peace movement, like the American public at large, has failed to come to grips with the complex situation in the Middle East.

Allan Solomonow, director of the Committee on New Alternatives in the Middle East, takes this position. Writing in American Report after Berrigan, Hertzberg and several letterwriters had expressed themselves, Solomonow said:

"If the Great Berrigan Debate on these pages has done nothing else, it has finally moved Jews and Christians to talk firmly and openly. Before, only whispers broke the silence."

Solomonow, a Jew observed: "Whether Berrigan is right or wrong, the issues he raised are the legitimate, crucial human issues we must confront if we are to formulate any useful response to the needs of the peoples in the Middle East." (UPI)

Hulett 'not calloused'

I've been a resident of Elk Grove Village for the last 12½ years. I have a sense of community pride in Elk Grove and a real sense of belonging to the village.

My first reaction to this terrible tragedy was one of sorrow and shame that this happened in Elk Grove. Then it went into anger that Chief Hulett was being so berated for performing his duties as fire chief.

Neither side is blameless in this tragedy. It depends on what side you want to agree with and human nature being what it is people enjoy hearing and believing the worst that is televised and printed on this matter.

My heart goes out to Mr. Pettie and his five motherless children. My heart goes out to Chief Hulett and his family. The chief has done a fantastic job for the village.

My personal encounter with Chief Hulett was at Clearmont School. He came to lecture a parent group in the evening several years ago on "What to do in case of a tornado." You see he had first hand experience dealing with this type of disaster. He was fire chief in Oak Lawn when that terrible tragedy struck. My only reason for bringing up this situation was

letters to the editor

I can still remember the emotion in Chief Hulett's voice when he talked of the loss of life and the terrible disaster that happened a few years prior to his talk to us.

This is not a hard, calloused man who with the snap of a finger his command is made. This is a man who truly cared. A person doesn't go into a profession that deals with human life because he is hard and calloused.

God willing, I hope Pettie's and Hulett's lives can begin an upward swing and maybe can find some solace in the fact that maybe this terrible political football game between the village and the unincorporated areas will come to an end.

Gloria Casper
Elk Grove Village

She's 'sorry for Pettie family'

Along with Mike Kroil and others, I'm sure my neighbors and friends, I feel sorry for the Pettie family. I just wish no one had to die to force people who want ambulance service to pay for it. All incorporated taxpayers of Elk Grove pay for it every year, why shouldn't others. I feel if these people living in unincorporated areas, maybe in fancy homes with low tax bills, have the right to pay for it when it's needed, then we should too.

We live only two blocks from Alexian Brothers, too. In fact, the fire station is further away than the hospital. If I was sick, my husband could drive me faster than waiting for the ambulance to arrive.

Furthermore, why pay for Roselle fire and ambulance service if you intend to call Elk Grove in an emergency situation. Isn't that a waste of money?

Also, why damn the fire chief when it wasn't really his decision. The decision was up to the Petties. I think Hulett did the right thing.

I think all this publicity from newspapers and news broadcasters, especially Channel 7, with comments they made the night of January 17, is ridiculous. If you want Elk Grove service, pay for it or drive yourself to the hospital.

People telling their views from other towns should keep their mouths shut. What does your station do in your unincorporated areas? Are they using your taxes to save other lives while you die?

Mrs. Walter Lange III
Elk Grove Village

Film closing supported

I disagree with the Herald editorial of January 10, which labeled the Elk Grove film closing as "arbitrary."

In my opinion the authorities of that village exercised level-headed wisdom. Wisdom is not a word that belongs to the modern age. It seems to have lost much of its application in today's world with its emphasis of knowledge, money, security, power and entertainment. There were other ages though, and I don't mean a Camelot, when people had time and leisure to reflect on such facets of living as goodness, self-discipline and responsibilities in society. Just as these values have gone out of style, so has the force of the definition of "wisdom" faded in our society in the present day.

Furthermore, the degree of indignation which possessed these authorities is to my mind a measure of the clarity of their insight. For one thing, they must have recognized the limitations of human nature, namely that human appetites, when fed the wrong foods, can become cancerous. For another, they reacted as people with responsibilities to their constituents, to protect the impressionable young.

In this hour when we witness the disastrous results of negative leadership in government on all fronts, I respectfully take off my hat to the Elk Grove authorities who did not hesitate to take these steps which they knew would make them unpopular with a minority.

Lindberg finds himself with a little extra clout

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second part of a two-part interview with state Comptroller George W. Lindberg. A lawyer and former state representative from Crystal Lake, Lindberg is the first person to hold the post of state comptroller. He recently completed his first year in office.

by BOB LAHEY

In New York state recently, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt found in a study of funds authorized for sabbatical leaves in elementary and secondary schools that local school boards had spent some $14 million to provide extended vacations, early retirement and opportunities to pursue other interests to teachers throughout the state.

Levitt is one of only 10 state comptrollers in the nation. His authority to monitor spending by local taxing units is one of the things that makes Illinois Comptroller George W. Lindberg say Levitt is "the only one who exceeds me in authority."

The drafters of the 1970 Illinois Constitution, which created the office of Illinois comptroller, did not intend to involve him in local governments. But under the Comptroller Act of 1972, adopted by the Illinois General Assembly to implement the constitution, "I have a little piece of the action."

WHAT LINDBERG has is the power to require annual audit reports from each municipality, township and county in the state, with the predictable exception of Cook County and Chicago (but no excluding suburban towns and townships).

Such reports have been filed for several years in the former office of the auditor of public accounts, which the comptroller's position supplanted. But they have frequently been filled with meaningless information, at irregular intervals, or not at all.

Because the auditor had no real enforcement power over the local audits, they have lain moldering in state file cabinets.

LINDBERG, LIKE THE auditor before him, has no authority to correct improper practices that might turn up in the local audits.

But he does have the power to specify what the audit will cover and how it is to be reported. "We are upgrading the quality of the data," he said, "and will require public auditors to provide a lot more information, which we will compile in a meaningful manner."

George Lindberg

Local governments that fail to file the proper audit reports within 60 days of the specified time may be subjected to an independent audit.

To assist him in this system, Lindberg has established two advisory boards — one for municipalities and one for counties — composed of accountants, public officials and other financial experts. (Beryl W. Markwell, 2107 Jody Ct., Mount Prospect, president of an Elmhurst CPA firm, is a member of the county advisory board.)

Irregularities that might be discovered through these audit reports cannot be corrected by Lindberg. But in serious cases, he can turn over information to the local state's attorney, and Lindberg can make the information public.

LINDBERG DOES have authority to supervise private cemetery care funds, and he has eight field investigators auditing. Fifteen per cent of cemetery funds are required to be invested reasonably for future care.

Lindberg related one investigation that revealed that a trustee had "invested" in a Mark IV Lincoln Continental. He was persuaded that that was not a reasonable investment, Lindberg said.

In his own office, Lindberg said he is "operating on a principle that could be the surefire end of my political career."

Noting that "nobody has ever denied the connection between (political) contributions and (state) contracts," he said his office has declined to take advantage of a provision allowing it not to solicit bids for certain services.

CONTRACTS FOR "professional and technical services" are exempted from state regulations requiring public bids, a provision that allows state agencies to hire a wide range of consultants in sweetheart arrangements.

In seeking consultants to devise a uniform accounting system, establish personnel standards, and other functions in the new state office, however, Lindberg did it through public bidding.

"We sent out letters to 245 people, and got responses from 46 of them," he said. "We had a conference to explain our requirements and 23 of the 46 attended."

Finally, he said, six firms bid on four separate contracts. The result was that the comptroller's office received consulting services that it had estimated would cost from $1.8 million to $2 million, for $1.5 million.

'Spending patterns hurting state'

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The spending patterns of the past six months are "jeopardizing the fiscal health of the state," Illinois Comptroller George W. Lindberg said yesterday.

"The state is not living within its means," Lindberg said in his monthly fiscal report. "The bright outlook of four months ago is no longer so bright."

Lindberg said general fund spending in the period between July 1 and Dec. 31 was $166 million more than the same period the previous year. It also exceeded the estimate of Gov. Daniel Walker by some $100 million, Lindberg said.

And those figures, he said, are only for the state's general funds — the portions of the state's purse which fund most essential services. When all funds are included in the reckoning, Lindberg said, spending is up by $223 million over last fiscal year.

"THERE MUST BE concern now as we look down the road," the comptroller said. "Four months ago I reported that the state was in excellent financial condition. The $387 million left in the treasury at the close of fiscal 1973 on July 1 was the highest in the state's history."

"The picture has changed. That available balance has declined to $227 million," he said.

"My purpose is to raise a warning flag about the spending patterns of the past six months at a time when we face economic uncertainty about the remaining six months of the state's fiscal year," the comptroller said.

Considering only the past six months, Lindberg said, "The fiscal condition is sound as of Dec. 31, 1973, due to the large surplus that I reported in my July report. However, the trend of the past six months — that is, expenditures exceeding revenue — cannot continue without jeopardizing the fiscal health of the state."

The comptroller said the major spending increase over estimates was in public aid. Welfare spending, he said, climbed $109 million higher during the first six months of this fiscal year than during the same period a year ago.

Lindberg said total revenue to the state during the past six months was $2.021 billion — $62 million less than Walker had estimated. Spending, he said, was $2.81 billion — $100 million more than Walker's estimate.

Suburbs gain voice in environment plans for airport

by STEVE FORSYTH

Suburban communities now have a name and a face to talk to about noise and pollution problems at O'Hare Airport.

The name and face belong to James Sachay, administrative assistant to the commissioner of the Chicago Department of Aviation. Sachay has been selected to coordinate the suburban governments and the Department of Aviation in formulation of the environmental section of the Chicago-O'Hare International Airport Master Plan.

At the urging of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, chairman William E. Downes Jr. of the Department of Aviation named Sachay as liaison. NIPC routinely reviews and comments on federal grant requests in the area, and Chicago is seeking $1.32 million in federal funds for a $2 million airport master plan.

SACHAY BECAME involved with citizen concern over airport noise during a barrage of criticism that Chicago was unresponsive to the suburban problems created by the jet traffic at O'Hare.

He appeared as Downes' representative at a November meeting of the O'Hare chapter of the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) and offered to talk with any municipal representatives or committees if they would call him or send a letter requesting a date.

Now Sachay is working to promote a committee that will deal with the environmental problems. He said he has contacted Mayor Martin Butler of Park Ridge and Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams (R).

"I'm trying to get some kind of coordination early, so they can have a committee come in and see what we're doing," Sachay said.

He emphasized that he will not limit his contact to the committee, but he thinks that would be a more efficient way to handle the technical subject.

SACHAY'S job has been to coordinate the department's work so it gets all federal and state funding it needs for engineering projects, but when the planning grant is received, he will start on his new duties.

The 20-year master plan will show the airport as it is, and what it will need. Will a new terminal be needed? What will be done about an international terminal? What about Cargo City — a proposed cargo terminal that would be separate from the passenger facilities?

As for the environmental impact of the airport in the future, Sachay said the suburbs will play a big part in the study. "Our aim is to decrease pollution and decrease noise," Sachay said.

SACHAY said his work will involve writing alternatives into the master plan, showing various costs and benefits. He is particularly concerned that citizens realize the master plan will be a guide that can be changed after public hearings in the future. New technology, such as much quieter aircraft or planes requiring much less runway and approach space, would have a major impact on the future of O'Hare, Sachay said.

Emission, fuel dumping curbed

New federal rules have been issued to limit smoke emissions from some jet engines and ban airborne dumping of fuel from large turbojets.

The new Federal Aviation Administration requirements are already being met for smoke emissions. The FAA said a voluntary program to improve combustion in new and "in-use" jet engines is 99 per cent complete. The ruling applies to engines used in the Boeing 727 and 737 jets and McDonnell Douglas DC-9 aircraft.

The FAA rules also outlaw venting, or dumping of residual fuel, from the manifolds of turbine engines with more than 8,000 pounds of thrust. Specific procedures have been set up to prevent venting the fuel into the atmosphere. The dumping formerly was done shortly after takeoffs.

He said one of the most beneficial parts of the plan is that it will show updated noise levels around the airport, so surrounding communities can plan their zoning around the high-noise impact areas.

Efforts to control noise and pollution will be limited somewhat by outside factors, Sachay said.

"Our first responsibility is to the air-traveling public that uses the field. Second is those around it." He also cited limitations the Federal Aviation Administration exercises in the flight of planes, and power of the Civil Aeronautics Board to determine routes and frequency of flights.

There have been suggestions that O'Hare flights be curtailed during some night hours, as is done in New York and Washington, D.C., but Sachay said that isn't feasible. He said those cities have nearby alternate airports available while Chicago has no alternate that can handle the traffic, particularly the 747 jumbo jets.

"A third airport would be advantageous here," Sachay said, indicating that the uncertain plans for another major air facility might mean relief to the O'Hare area suburbs.

IN THE MEANTIME, Sachay said, there are some specific steps that can be taken.

"We'll look into the law for what changes we can initiate through legislation."

Other changes, could include microwave landing equipment and possible establishment of times for aircraft with dirty engines, he said. "Other than that, it's difficult to say at this time what we can do," Sachay said.

The 36-year-old ex-assistant to former U.S. Rep. Roman Pucinski is aware of criticism that Chicago has ignored the wishes of the suburbs in the past, but says, "I think we've shown good faith in the last year, attending meetings and other things."

A COLOR-KEYED MAP in the office of James Sachay indicates improvements planned for changes, including control of noise and pollution. O'Hare Airport. The master plan Sachay will soon be working on may deal with far-reaching changes, including control of noise and pollution. O'Hare-area suburbs.

3 MSL leaders win; Meadows-Grove showdown Friday

AREA'S BEST to date in the breaststroke is St. Viator's Kevin Szarabajka with a 1:04.4. The Lions beat Notre Dame Saturday, 102-50.

Lopsided wins highlight action

Swimming Editor

Lopsided scores were the rule in the Mid-Suburban League dual swim meets Friday.

Arlington's impressive showing — 111-59 — over Wheeling topped the list. Hersey was a close second with a whopping 107 points to Forest View's 57.

Then came Elk Grove over Prospect, 99-68, and Rolling Meadows over Buffalo Grove, 96-70.

Approaching the halfway points in the MSL schedule, the same three teams dominate the standings — Arlington, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows, all at 3-0. That will change, however, this Friday.

Elk Grove must meet hosting Rolling Meadows at 4:30 p.m. in Buffalo Grove's pool. Barring a tremendous upset when Arlington hosts undermanned Forest View (0-3) at Olympic Pool at the same time, the Cardinals and either the Grenadiers or Mustangs will be left alone at the top of the list.

Hersey (2-1) will host Prospect at Wheeling's pool, also at 4:30. Wheeling (1-3) and Buffalo Grove (0-4) are idle, having met earlier last week.

ARLINGTON IMPRESSES

Arlington's star performers — Charlie Dunn and Joe Nitch — rewrote the record books at Wheeling's pool... four times!

Dunn established new pool standards in the individual medley (2:07.6) and butterfly (56.6); Nitch did the same in the 200 free (1:52.5) and 500 free (5:03.9). They also were members of the winning relays — the medley (1:47.8) of Rob Carstens, Kiernan Mack, Dunn and Dan Stubing and the 400 freestyle (3:34.8) of Mack, Dale Patterson, Jeff Haseman and Nitch.

Paul Lindquist was Wheeling's only double winner, taking the 50 free (23.6) and 100 free (51.5).

Bill Modica, usually joining Lindquist in the select twin-win circle, established two new team records in the 200 free (1:54.5) and 500 free (5:05.9), but finished second to the very talented Nitch.

The same thing happened to Bill Blank, who posted the best backstroke mark ever at Wheeling (1:05.4), but finished in third behind the winning effort of Carstens (1:01.3).

The other Arlington winner for Coach Don Andersen was Pete Wroblewski in the breaststroke (1:09.3).

John Runion captured diving for the Wildcats of Coach Doug Cotner with a 145.0 point total.

HERSEY BOUNCES BACK

Hersey came back from its loss to Arlington by easily handling Forest View.

SENIOR MARK FOURNIER of Elk Grove is on his way to victory in the 50-yard freestyle against Prospect last week. Fournier and his teammates won 10 of 11 events in besting Prospect, 109-57.

Wildcats aim high at Wisconsin invite

Despite the lack of depth caused by the addition of Buffalo Grove High School, Wheeling will again take a pretty representative team north to Nicolet this weekend.

Coach Doug Cotner's Wildcats will take on eight Wisconsin schools that placed in the state meet at the Sixth Annual Knight Invitational Swimming Meet. The junior varsity portion begins Friday with the varsity battling on Saturday.

"I feel we can be in the top two or three on both levels," says Cotner. His jayvee team finished second to Nicolet last year with the varsity placing third. Nicolet had 171½ points with Marquette second, edging out Wheeling 149½ to 147½.

The 1973 invitational offered a "most valuable swimmer" trophy for the first time. Dazzling the rest of the field, Wheeling's Ken Bergman finished as the only double winner and earned the prize.

Cotner says Bill Modica, Wheeling's only other winner last year in the 400-yard freestyle, and Paul Lindquist have excellent chances of performing the rare doubles in their specialties. Modica excels in the 200 and 500; Lindquist is a sprinter — 50 and 100 freestyles.

"The freestyle relay team (Modica, Lindquist, Bill Blank and Tony Lauber) could also take a first," says Cotner optimistically.

However, a team title is probably out of reach because Nicolet as well as some of the other schools have more depth than Wheeling.

Also entered will be Hartford, Greenfield, Brookfield Central, Champion, Racine Horlick, Racine Park and Westbend West.

Area teams post 4 non-league wins

Area swim teams kept extra busy with non-conference meets last weekend and earlier this week. There were four local winners in the five meets.

Elk Grove and Prospect swam Tuesday with the Grenadiers besting Libertyville, 103-69, and the Knights losing to Notre Dame, 99-72. Forest View was scheduled to meet Stevenson, but the meet was rescheduled for next month.

In Saturday action, it was Arlington rolling over Maine West, 118-51, Rolling Meadows handling West Leyden, 47-35, and Maine North crushing Stevenson, 107-39.

Here are the details:

GRENAIERS BLAST FOE
Paced by 10 first-place showings Elk Grove enjoyed an easy victory over Libertyville Tuesday.

All told, the Bolin brothers — Scott and Brent — had a hand in six of the wins. Scott started it out on the opening leg of the medley relay. Paul Butchart, Steve Banach and Mark Fournier finished up for a 1:47.8.

Charles Dunn

Jeff Slack

Scott went on to win the butterfly (57.6) and the breaststroke (1:06.4).

Brent took the individual medley (2:12.4) and the 100 freestyle (54.5). He then finished up the meet by swimming anchor on the 400 free relay team. Jim Henry, Fournier and Bruce Kinn handled the other three legs (3:42.4).

In between Scott and Brent, these were the other Grenadier winners — Henry in the 200 freestyle (2:02.8), Fournier in the 50 free (23.8), Banach in the 500 free (5:41.5) and Jim Cashman in the backstroke (1:03.5).

PROSPECT FALLS

Chris Prinslow accounted for two individual firsts as well as being a member of the winning medley relay team despite the Prospect Knights' lopsided loss to Notre Dame Tuesday.

After Prinslow joined Don Balas, Brad Busse and Gary Eichhorst to take the relay (1:51.5), he won the 50 free (24.8) and the backstroke (1:00.6).

ARLINGTON SWAMPS WEST

The Arlington Cardinals won both relays plus eight-of-nine individual firsts as they routed Maine West, 118-51, in a non-conference meet held Saturday.

Charles Dunn paced Arlington with two firsts — in the 200 freestyle (1:56.5) and 100 backstroke (58.0). He also swam on the winning 400 freestyle relay team (3:35.5) along with Joe Nitch, Dale Patterson and Dan Stubing.

Kiernan Mack won the 100 breaststroke (1:07.0) and teamed with Rob Carstens, Peter Wroblewski and Dave Schultz to win the 200 medley relay (1:51.3).

Arlington's other winners were Carstens in 200 individual medley (2:20.5), Stubing in 50 freestyle (24.7), Doug Spaulding in diving (156 points), Nitch in 100 butterfly (1:00.8) and Patterson in 100 freestyle (54.4).

Paul Dyer was Maine West's only winner when he completed the 500 freestyle in 5:30.2.

MUSTANGS KEEP WINNING

Behind the school record of Jeff Slack, Rolling Meadows ran its overall record to a very fine 7-2 with a 47-35 victory over hosting West Leyden Saturday.

Slack became the first Mustang diver lin in the 100 free (53.3) and Cashman in the 500 free (5:13.3).

Brad Busse was Coach Roger Huergerich's only winner. This Knight sophomore took the breaststroke (1:08.4).

FROSH WINS 2 EVENTS

Rolling Meadows, behind the double victories of freshman Tom Stahnke, went on to capture six events to best hosting Buffalo Grove.

Stahnke took the individual medley (2:20.5) and the butterfly (1:01.5). Brother Ken won the breaststroke (1:08.3). Gary Grunwald's victory in the 100 free (56.8) and Rick Sievert's in the 50 free (24.9) accounted for the other individual firsts.

Coach Phil Pardon's medley relay teams started the meet off in the Mustangs' favor, taking 1-2. Swimming to the win were Jeff Gillen, Dave Knox, Dan Mate and Bob Hickox (1:52.2).

Dan Woodruff paced the Bison with wins in the 200 free (2:01.6) and 500 free (5:32.7). Other victors were Steve Johnson in diving (158.40), Mike Yasky in the backstroke (1:04.6) and the 400 free relay team of Woodruff, Yasky, Mike Foley and Steve Melcher (3:49.2).

ALTHOUGH ONLY a sophomore, Prospect's Brad Busse's effort in the breaststroke gave him the only first against hosting Elk Grove last week. Busse had a 1:08.4. Elk Grove, taking 10 events, won 109-57.

Lions capture 10 of 11 firsts

Coming back from a two-week layoff, St. Viator took its first step towards repeating as champion of Suburban Catholic Conference swimming.

Hosted by St. Patrick, the Lions of Coach John Fleck polished off the Shamrocks, 102-50, taking 10 of the 11 events in the process.

Ed Fitzsimons led the first-place blitz with victories in the 50 freestyle (22.6) and 500 free (5:07.0). Other winners were Rick Yasky in the 200 free (1:51.8), Steve Rogers in the individual medley (2:15.9), Jerry Tully in diving, Monte McCollum in the butterfly (59.6), Mark Rohl in the 100 free (52.4), Mark Nelles in the backstroke (1:02.8) and Kevin Szarabajka in the breaststroke (1:07.0).

The medley relay team of Nelles, Szarabajka, McCollum and Joe McMahon won in 1:49.1. The same was true of the 400 free relay team of Yasky, Jon Newcomer, McMahon and Joe Schroeder (3:34.0).

St. Viator will host Notre Dame on Friday at 4 p.m.

On growing old with stars, reminiscing & fight crowds

On growing 2-24
 "Just wait 'til you're 30," says someone who supposedly knows. "Then you'll really feel old."
 Ever since reaching what those under 25 refer to as "a quarter of a century," I've been hearing about the 30-year-old milestone, or is it millstone.
 Well, Monday — very quietly and without anyone in the office knowing — I moved within one year of that feared age — 30.

The cards came, as usual, from the relatives. Older kin left little notes saying, "Oh, to be 29-years-old again!"
 My six-year-old didn't particularly think 29 was young. Thinking in terms of single figure birthdays, she told her playmate of my age as if I had been around when the Stockmarket Crash of '29 occurred.
 Those sacred words — you're only as old as you feel — began to be doubted. Memories of embarrassing moments in trying to be a jock during the past year became vivid.
 Becoming winded after running football pass patterns only a short time ...

Muhammad Ali

misjudging an easy fly ball in a softball game ... failing to make the basketball moves the mind remembered but the body forgot ...

But I had an idea. Something to psyche me up out of this psyche out situation. Paging through some professional sports books, I renewed my faith.

Football stars like Doug Buffone, Bubba Smith, Mike Curtis and even Garo Yepremian are still "kicking" at the ancient age of 29. Not to mention such grid-ders as Claude Humphrey, Mike Garrett, John Niland and Cecil Turner.

Baseball standouts like Tom Seaver, Tug McGraw, Steve Carlton, Stan Bahnen, Manny Sanguillen, Ron Swoboda, Pat Kelly, Dave Rader, George Scott, Bill Singer, Freddie Patek, Paul Blair, Sal Bando and Buddy Bradford are still going strong at 29.

Such basketball stars as Cazzie Russell, Earl "the Pearl" Monroe and Rick Barry play like they're in their early 20's, not as 29-year olds.

That perked me up.

However, to overcome completely my fears of fading youth and a fast-approaching (it's only 363 days until Jan. 21, 1975) 30th birthday, I looked up those supposedly poor souls who are still playing at 30. That did the trick.

Joe ("Mr. Commercial") and "Mr. Sex Symbol") Namath is at that over-the-hill age. So are football players Paul Warfield, Donny Anderson, Fred Biletni-koff and Jan Stenerud. Presently playing at the age of 30 in basketball is Lou Hudson and in baseball is Bud Harrelson.

I guess 30 isn't all that bad an age, but its coming can wait a year.

Still wishing they were in their 20's are two big guys who had birthdays the week before me — Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier.

Frazier turned 30 a week ago today;

Ali hit 32 last Friday.

These "oldtimers" (gawd, would I love to have a physique just half as good as theirs) will dance and slug again on Monday night in a nostalgic rematch of their 1971 heavyweight championship fight. There's one difference — neither is champ. Still, there's a title at stake — the loser will be crowned a champ, a has-been.

When they first fought, Frazier had youth on his side as well as having the sharpness that comes from fighting regularly. Ali, coming off his imposed three-year layoff, wasn't the superb boxer he once was. As you'll remember, Frazier won a narrow decision.

This time these former great heavy-weight champions will be on more equal terms. The fight will only be 12 rounds instead of 15, so it promises to be as good or better than last time.

Although that super fight happened some 35 months ago, the excitement that surrounded it as well as the fight itself is still very clear to those who saw it.

For those who aired the big match, it is as memorable as if it happened yesterday. The people at Arlington Park have vivid recollections for they hosted nearly 10,000 people.

There was the constant fear that somehow the telecast from New York would fall before or during the fight. It had occurred before in some theatres, and it happened that night to one in Chicago. The enraged crowd tore the place up.

"It was something extraordinary," recalled Robert Timperio, general manager of the race track's hotel. "With the great fight we had last time — going the full distance as it did — it was remarkable that we had little problem with the people who came to see it. They were very orderly. Vociferous, to be sure. That was expected. But they weren't belligerent."

Arlington Park had a tremendous amount of security that night to protect both the hotel and its guests. However, Timperio said there would be less this time because the type of people that will be coming are less hostile than your normal fight crowd.

The Madison Square Garden Corporation, which owns Arlington Park, decided at the last moment to relay the closed-circuit telecast. With 425 rooms — all having TVs — as well as 80 additional monitors for the banquet halls, it didn't leave much time to get things set up. But Arlington Park will be ready for business Monday night.

Despite the inflation that's hit this country over the past three years, the hotel won't be charging any more than last time — $12.50 a seat in the banquet halls and $100 a room for private parties of up to eight persons.

Timperio said he expects close to as many people as the '71 fight, especially if the publicity becomes more intense by this weekend on TV and in the Chicago papers.

Arlington Park is the only place in the Herald area where you can see the color telecast showdown of Smokin' Joe and Magnificent Muhammad. The next closest is at Hillside — a long drive, especially after putting in a hard Monday at work.

Those who rent a room can enjoy all the hotel's facilities, starting at 6 p.m. — such as the indoor pool, dinner in their room and so forth.

If the slugouts in the preliminary fights (starting at 8:30) and the main event go anything close to the 1971 showdown, it should be more than worth the price of admission.

PROMISING JUNIOR Steve Banach, an Elk Grove freestyler, shows the form that helped him to a first in the 500 freestyle as well as contributing to the winning 200 medley relay against Libertyville Tuesday. Banach and his teammates took all but one first in winning with ease, 103-69.

Wildcats hike record to 12-4

by MIKE KLEIN

It's not probable that Ted Ecker will soon forget the timeout he called — but had already used once before — during holiday tournament action down at Centralia.

Ecker's unfortunate mistake, committed under heavy emotional pressure, cost one technical free throw that Rich East converted to beat Wheeling by one point. Only that loss has prevented the Wildcats from enjoying an 11-game winning streak.

"That'll be with me a long time, I'm sure," Ecker said Tuesday night, looking away as if he sincerely wished people would stop remembering.

But he also had happier thoughts. Ecker's Wildcats concluded their non-league schedule Tuesday with a somewhat convincing 69-57 victory over Maine West.

It allowed Wheeling a second five game winning streak this season, marred only by the Rich East game. The Wildcats improved to 12-4 overall and ended with a 5-3 record outside the Mid-Suburban, excluding post-season match-ups.

It was also the final non-Central Suburban date for Maine West whose Warriors ended at just 1-5 outside the league. They were 4-11 overall after Tuesday.

Ecker wasn't especially pleased with his ballclub Tuesday night, but that's not the entire reason he began liberal substitution after the regulars had a 22-10 lead at the quarter break.

"More than that, I wanted to rely on what some of our other kids can do," he said. "This being a non-conference game, I was bound and determined to get (Paul) Groot some playing time. He's got to be ready to help us."

Groot, who started occasionally at guard last year, lost his slot this season. But he left the bench late in the second quarter against Maine to hit four-of-five shots before halftime, the only points he scored.

Keenan led the Wildcats with 14 points and Bill Kenney had eight as the three guards totaled 30 of Wheeling's 69, mostly from far outside. "They're better guards than a year ago," Ecker said of his trio.

Midway through that second period, only forward Bill Pickler remained for Wheeling from among the starting five. It was Pickler who came alive for seven of his 10 points after Maine had drawn within one point at 45-44.

Groot was joined by Mike Brzuszkiew-

Trend toward earth colors, whites as shortages hit carpetmakers

by FRAN HECKART

All the talk of shortages in nature's storehouse has led to great interest in carpet colors that range from wheat, wood, earth, sand and stone to gray pearl and charcoal.

For the first time in more than two decades the tight supply of raw materials influenced the number of carpet introductions at the Winter International Home Furnishings Market held recently in Chicago. Still, according to Lee Koller, a vice president for Masland Carpets, the shortages of pigments, petroleum and other basics involved in producing fiber and yarn seem to be setting a new color trend in floor coverings.

Besides the earth tones, off-whites and whitened pastels also point a new direction for those seeking to retreat from a fast-moving world to the haven of more serene surroundings. Psychologically, carpet lends a feeling of warmth and comfort to any interior. Its color and texture relieve the bareness and coldness of hard-surface floor coverings. Thus, living or working in a carpeted environment seems more serene and pleasant.

The interest in earth tones and whites has not diminished use of bold colors in carpeting, however.

THE NEW BOLD COLORS are breaking rules for traditional color schemes in innovative style. Time was when traditional color schemes dictated dark colors for floors, bright shades for walls and patterns for upholstery and draperies. But in today's decorating, exciting new looks are being created with some of the brightest colors and boldest patterns ever in carpets.

Tropical pink and flash red which have an amazing clarity and depth of color are available to and gaining popularity among sophisticated home decorators.

Printed level-loop and plush styles take the fashion forefront in the new carpets of Herculon. As a result of improved printing methods, these patterns are sharper and more sparkling than ever before. Motifs are drawn from the classic geometric designs of Spanish mosaics, the free-form patterns of modern art and the shapes of nature in colors from earthy tones of brown and gold to vivid primary hues.

LUXURIOUS SHAGS and plushes in both solid colors and multi-color combination continue in popularity with the Herculon introductions. In response to the impulse toward the country look and Early American styles, shags are shorter and denser than in previous years. And in tweedy mixtures of earth tones and creamy beiges, these carpets are designed to complement the furniture designs of the past which are gaining a renewed popularity.

Inspiration was drawn from the four corners of the globe in the styling of the patterns and colors of the new broadloom introductions by Bigelow Carpets. Big on the fashion scene are designs depicting the hand-knotted rya look from Scandinavia, Japanese motifs, a fresh French floral, a pattern taken from a Moroccan tapestry, vivid oversized flowers in South Seas colorings, New Orleans grillework with a glow, the swirls of Italian marble, the folk art of Early Americana and the Colonies, solids with the sheen of Chinese silk and heather tweeds with a Scottish accent.

Four new carpet qualities were also unveiled by Armstrong at the recent '74 Market.

OMEN OF THE Lancaster Line is representative of the trend to dense, low-cut pile height. It combines as many as six colors in an evenly spaced symmetrical blend of colors.

Of the same line is Oakwynne, a new acrylic sculptured carpet in 13 colors (nine tweeds), that satisfied the need for informal colorations in a traditional carpet. Colorations include sage gold, crystal blue, paprika, bay leaf, damask red, Amazon brown, amberwood, seed pearl, butternut, gold lily, silver pine, Riviera moss and Sherwood green.

Popular Vote, a two-level loop product available in 14 colors, was introduced in the Contract Lines for commercial or heavy traffic areas. In the do-it-yourself carpet category, Armstrong introduced Sure Thing with bold geometric patterns, available in 12-foot widths.

A FLOOR COVERING gameboard has been created for the truly unconventional. Jorge's Carpet Mills introduced what they term the "newest achievement in carpet design... Games People Play Collection 2, Rated 'G'."

Made in Zimmer print pattern, this level loop carpet combines nine vibrant colors. The carpet gameboard comes with optional component kits which include bean bags for bean bag tic-tac-toe, plastic pins for bowling games and marbles for the carpet marble board. The smiling sunshine face in brilliant reds and yellows is perfect for a game of sunshine shuffleboard, according to the manufacturers.

Consumers will definitely have a limitless choice of new carpet fashions this year, but there's still the question of delivery amid "shortages." According to Ian McMeekin, designer for Burlington House Carpets, the energy shortage does not necessarily mean that deliveries of carpet will take any longer than what the American homemaker has become used to.

McMEEKIN POINTS out that 96 per cent of all carpet manufactured in the United States is made of synthetic fibers, which are derived from petrochemicals that are dependent on supplies of raw petroleum feedstocks. So, if people are running out of gas on the expressway, carpet mills are also running short of nylon and polyester, two of the most in-demand man-made fibers used in carpets.

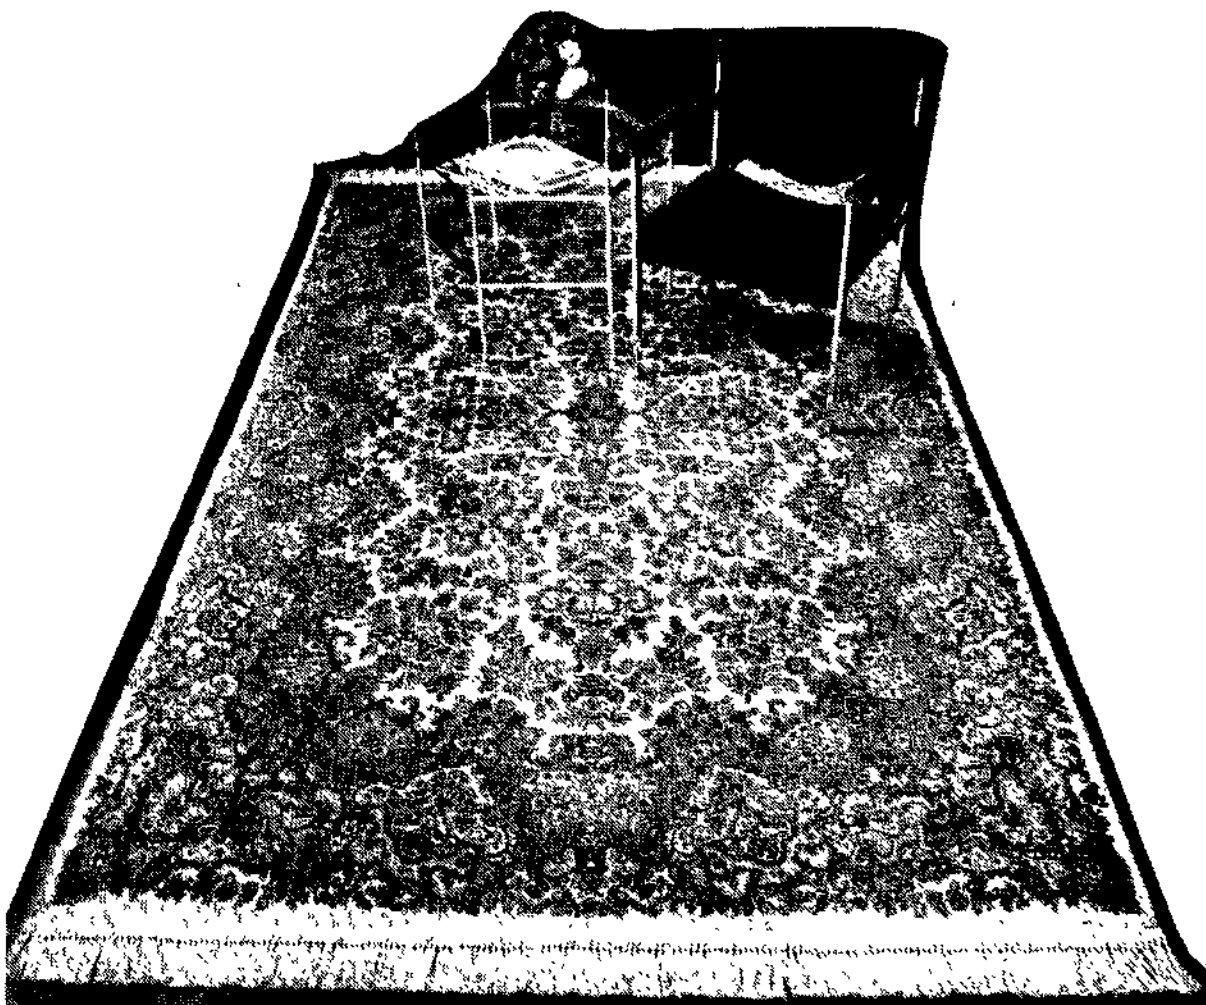

On the subject of deliveries, McMeekin has this word of advice for consumers:

"When picking a new carpet in the store, ask where the carpet is in stock. If the retail store has it in the store's own warehouse or if the carpet is in stock at the warehouse of a distributor located nearby, you're on safe ground. Delivery should be within the week."

A NEW BOOKLET from Monarch Carpet Mills, "What You Should Know About Carpet," is also consumer-oriented. Written as a guide to help consumers make decisions about value, quality and fashion when purchasing carpet, the booklet tells how, what and where to buy carpeting. Information about carpet fibers, styles, colors, prices and performance are features the booklet details. Specific instructions about carpet care are also included.

This paperback, written by Annette Stramesi, will be priced at $1.25 per copy at newsstands and will be available by mail through home decorating magazines at $1 per copy.

Readers wishing additional carpet information may call Reader Service, 394-2300, Ext. 263.

THIS IVORY medallion Kirman design rug by Karastan method for manufacturing multi-color carpets and rugs. Rug mills was produced on the Bondi System, a new This one is from a new Shahramer Collection.

CASA BELLA, by C. H. Masland Co., reflects the trend to shorter, denser shags and patterned cut and loop qualities. This rug of continuous filament nylon is available in 15 imaginative color combinations.

CHOCK-A-BLOCK shows clear sparkling colors in bold geometrics. The four colors may be selected from standard shades or on a custom basis from Brinton's Carpets Project Four collection of 56 designs.

LEAP FROG OR sunshine shuffleboard, anyone? Games People Play, a unique carpet introduced by Jorge's Carpet Mills, adapts to any residential decor. The decorative playboard combines nine vibrant colors.

YWCA takes survey

Teens look at the adults

by GAY PAULEY

The teens want adults to be more listening posts and less of the carping, critical types who've forgotten their own growing pains. They seek guidance and understanding.

They want more communication and less argument. And, at the same time they want a chance to find out about life on their own.

"We'd like to find time to discover for ourselves, not always having our parents and others telling us," is the way Letty Paez, of El Paso, Tex., put it.

Miss Paez was one of eight young women from four diverse parts of the country who came to New York to participate in a news conference when the Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA) announced results of a combined workshop and questionnaire study of teen women's needs and attitudes.

The YWCA project, worked out with various community groups, involved 1,112 teens from 15 to 19 years and crossed economic, ethnic and racial lines. It was carried out in El Paso, Greenville, S. C., Philadelphia, and South Bend, Ind. The findings, designed to help any group working with youth, are published in the YWCA's "Attention Is Needed, Action Is Called for."

IT WAS IN the one open-end question, "What is your opinion of adults today?", where the teens sounded off.

YWCA staff members found that slightly more than 30 per cent put the positive label on adults, particularly their parents, 40 per cent gave negative reactions, and about 30 per cent were uncertain of their viewpoints but open to listening.

The greatest number of negative replies described adults as uninformed, confused or lacking in understanding.

Said one teen, "they do not understand... young people. Rather than offer help, they complain about our shortcomings."

"I think they should remember that youths are shaped into decent adults by the adults around them; adults now expect us to grow up right with no one to show us how..."

"Adults are always and will always be one-sided, narrow-minded humans who think that we don't know what we are talking about because we are only 15 or 16 or 17," said another girl. "But I know a lot of 15 or 16 or 17-year-olds who have more common sense than some 35 or 36 or 37-year-olds."

SAID ANOTHER, "Some parents are not concerned enough, some concerned too much; too many parents are prejudiced against children of another race."

The teens accused adults of not communicating with the young. "They keep everything hushed up," said one teen. "They are really giving us a rough time by not letting us know about a lot of things."

"I don't see why they don't sit down and talk to you and tell you what's wrong and what's right, but also explain it," another wrote.

Frequent comments were that adults tend to dwell on the past and use old methods, are strict and overly protective of their children.

Said one teen, "... they think what we do is wrong when they did the same thing when they were young. They can't remember ever being a teen-ager."

"Maybe if adults spent more time with teens, there wouldn't be problems like V.D., drugs, etc.," another girl said. "Adults and teens should work together."

On the positive side, several teens felt adults were "concerned," "trying to help youth" and only a few "don't really care."

Said one girl, "I don't like adults in general, but I like my parents."

They graduate, and marry in December

It was five years ago while attending high school that Adrienne Voise and Richard Mottweiler first met. After graduation in 1970, both went on to study at the University of Illinois from which both graduated in December.

The couple were married Dec. 29 in a 5:30 p.m. service in Faith Lutheran Church, Arlington Heights.

Adrienne, a graduate of Arlington High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Martin W. Voise, 721 S. Vail, Arlington Heights, and Richard, a graduate of Prospect High, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mottweiler Jr., 504 S. Owen, Mount Prospect.

For the double ring, candlelight wedding Adrienne chose a gown of ivory silk organza with bodice of Alencon lace with seed pearls, a high neckline and long, bishop sleeves. Appliques of lace and pearls trimmed the A-line skirt, and the chapel train was edged in the Alencon. Her chapel veil fell from a Juliet cap of lace, pearls and crystals, and she carried white orchids with stephanotis.

Valerie Voise was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Pat Walsh, Arlington Heights, and the bride's Kappa Alpha Theta sorority sisters, Margi Morgan, Urbana, and Jayne Leritz, Taylorville, Ill.

ALL WORE IVORY chiffon gowns with gathered A-line skirts, long sleeves and stand-up collars. The bodices, necklines and sleeves were trimmed in ivory lace and pink floral braid, and they carried pink roses and ivory straw flowers with greens and ribbons.

Stephanie, 9, and Gretchen Kretschmer, 7, Arlington Heights, were flower girls. Their gowns were smaller versions of the other attendants.

Eric Rahn, of Lake Bluff, a Sigma Chi fraternity brother of the groom, was best man. George Turner, Indianapolis; Henri Stagemeler, Champaign; and Paul Veatch, Deerfield, also fraternity brothers of the groom; and Don Ward, Wheeling, a friend from the university, were ushers.

A dinner reception for 150 guests was held at the Camelot Restaurant in Des Plaines after which the newlyweds spent a week honeymooning at Montego Bay, Jamaica.

Chapel wedding for Bradley U couple

The Wayside Chapel (The House by the Side of the Road) of the Community Center Foundation in Palos Park was the setting Dec. 29 for the wedding of Jacquelyn Rae Rehr and John William Garms.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Harold R. Rehr, Oak Lawn, and the late Mr. Rehr, and the groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Garms of Arlington Heights, are both students at Bradley University, Peoria. Jacquelyn, a junior, is majoring in art, and the groom, a graduate of Arlington High School, is a senior majoring in business management administration.

Jacquelyn, given in marriage by her brother, Greg, wore a gown of white jersey. The Empire bodice and long sleeves were trimmed in heirloom lace, and her three-tiered veil, held in place by a Camelot headpiece, flowed into a chapel train edged with heirloom lace. She carried a cascade of white roses, pompons and Snowdrift mums.

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

If you liked the December special feature on terrariums, perhaps you're ready to graduate from wide-mouth containers to planting bottle gardens.

Those fascinated with ship-in-a-bottle will perhaps want to try their patience at garden-in-a-bottle. No glass cutting shortcuts; it's too easy that way.

Let me help you, as the veteran of 25 such insane ventures. The work is slow and tedious. Figure you're going to kill about four hours.

The trick to pulling it off is all in the tools. You must improvise gadgets for moving soil and plants, watering and pruning. Assuming you read the article on soil mix, choice of plants and laying out the design, here's how. (If not, drop a line, plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to "Bottle Gardens," c/o Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, and I'll see you have all the information.)

GET A FUNNEL and then make a heavy paper tube and insert it down the neck of the bottle, so that the tube is nearly touching the inside bottom of the bottle. Enough of the tube should be above the top of the bottle so a funnel can be slipped into it. Slowly pour one inch of birdgravel (for drainage) into the bottom, being careful not to let the dust rise in a cloud and settle on the inside of the glass. Add the potting soil mix.

To dig holes for the plants, you'll need a long parafilm spoon or a spoon (tiny one) taped to a chopstick or dowel. Remove excess soil under a cool, slow-running water faucet and disentangle roots of plants.

Lower the plant carefully with the aid of a coat hanger which has been straightened and looped on one end like a snare, a long-handled fondue fork or a "grabber" from an auto garage used for picking up things that fall into inaccessible places.

Tamp the soil down with the wrong end of a knitting needle or a cork attached to a dowel.

FOR WATERING and cleaning the sides of the bottle, you'll need a straw and a funnel, a turkey baster attached to a length of flexible plastic tubing, a hospital straw or aquarium tubing used as a siphon.

If the leaves get just a bit of dirt on them, use a long handled artist's brush to flick it off, a sponge on the end of a flexible wire, a long-handled bottle brush or a paper towel piece stuck on the end of a dowel with bubble gum.

For pruning and pulling out dead material: an injector blade attached to the end of a dowel, long-handled surgical scissors or a long-bent-wire hook for snagging out dead leaves.

And if I had to choose just one useful item of the above, I'd insist on the metal coat hanger snare gadget, which can move soil, drop plants in and snare dead leaves. For watering, I'd want the turkey baster gadget.

Bottles are difficult, but you never get tired of listening to people rave about how clever you are. Try it.

Expanded role for Consumer Reports?

Consumer Reports, the widely read and respected publication of Consumers Union, may be shifting to a new and expanded format of consumer coverage, as a woman takes over leadership.

The changes are expected to come under CU's new executive director, Rhoda H. Karparkin, a New York lawyer and CU's legal counsel for 16 years. Mrs. Karparkin replaces Walter Sandbach, CU director for the past eight years.

According to the Washington Post, an internal debate has developed within the $10 million consumer organization during the last year. Activists in CU, led by board member Ralph Nader, feel the organization should expand beyond its product evaluations to become a consumer watchdog over government agencies and to advocate consumer reforms.

But more conservative elements, including many of CU's engineers and product testers, fear advocacy would endanger the organization's credibility, particularly the reputation for objectivity enjoyed by the product testing division.

MRS. KARPARKIN has said the magazine will begin looking more closely at the intrinsic value of products, in addition to their performance. She said the organization could expand in both its product testing role and in consumer advocacy.

CU last year opened up a Washington office which watches consumer-related developments there and handles litigations.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

Other new consumer activists on CU's board of directors include Herbert Denenberg, insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania, who has taken on the giant insurance industry to battle for the consumer; University of Illinois law professor Jeffery O'Connell, who has led the fight for no-fault auto insurance; and former New York City consumer commissioner Bess Myerson.

The advocacy issue is something which has already confronted many other consumer organizations, Nader's included, as well as the media. The range of alternatives in meeting this dilemma is wide, and none of the solutions is without drawbacks.

NADER SEVERAL years ago opted for all-out advocacy in practically every subject area imaginable. The result has been a moderate decline in his public credibility, but an impressive record of accomplishments.

At the other end of the spectrum is an organization like Underwriters' Laboraories, which has placed a premium on objectivity in product testing and has completely spurned the idea of advocacy. The result there has been an impeccable reputation which yields its own kind of influence in the marketplace, despite criticism of UL's policy of confidentiality with regard to test data.

It's getting so you hate to eat mushrooms at all. With four mushroom recalls on record already in 1974, it seems safer to simply avoid mushrooms altogether.

But faintly an explanation for all the recalls has been provided, and the circumstances suggest that the trouble may be about over.

LAST FALL the Food and Drug Administration launched a survey of all the canned mushrooms in warehouses across the country, after mushrooms of five different processors had been recalled because of possible botulism contamination.

The survey revealed that half the mushroom canning plants in the country had defective equipment or procedures.

The reason, according to the National Canners Association, was that a year ago, the industry introduced a new filling device designed to shake down the mushrooms to increase their density. This was deemed necessary in order to compete with imported canned mushrooms, especially the industrial-size pizza packs.

The process involved changes in temperature and cooking time, apparently resulting in the contamination incidents. Proper formulas were finally arrived at on an industry-wide basis late in the fall. Most of the recalls have been stocks canned prior to that time.

Next on the agenda

ARLINGTON HOMEMAKERS

The program for this afternoon's meeting of the Arlington Heights Homemaker Unit is entitled, "Oriental Cookery." Mrs. Georgetown Duncker will give the lesson at 1 o'clock in the lecture hall of Arlington Heights Historical Society Museum, 110 W. Fremont.

The next craft lesson for the group is Feb. 12 at Mrs. Fern Anderson's home.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA

Chicago Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Sigma Sigma will toast the new year with a cocktail party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Johnson of Arlington Heights.

All the members will furnish hors d'oeuvres. Any new Tri-Sigas in the area may call 392-2655 for membership information.

ONES

The Ones Club, made up of single people over 21 years of age, will hold a tobogganing party on Sunday. The group will meet at the First Congregational Church parking lot, Graceland and Marion Streets, Des Plaines, at 1 p.m. If the weather is unsuitable, the party will be changed to a 7 p.m. bowling activity.

On Sunday, Feb. 3, the club has planned a hootenanny, with members bringing their own favorite instruments for a night of music and singing. The get-together begins at 7 p.m. at First Congregational Church.

Information regarding membership or any of the club's activities is available by calling 239-5551.

SPARES

Robert C. Wiedrich, Chicago Tribune columnist, will be guest speaker this week for the Spars Sunday Evening Club. His talk is entitled "Cops, Politicians, Mobsters, D. C. Jet Set, etc."

The club meets Sunday at 7:30 at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, 2328 Central Road, Glenview.

All single, widowed and legally separated adults are welcome to the program. Further details are available from Betty Zerbe, 724-5720.

Mineral spirits simplest way to clean wood floors

Dear Dorothy: We've moved into a new place and while the hardwood floors are lovely, they seem to be water-stained in spots. What's the recommended way of getting these stains out? And while we're at it, is there a good way to keep waxed, hardwood floors clean? — Theresa Swinford

It depends on whether the floors have been shellacked or varnished. If it's shellack, dampen a cloth with denatured alcohol and barely rub the water spots. If it's varnish, wipe with the cloth barely moistened with equal parts of denatured alcohol and turpentine. I've always found that the simplest way to clean wood floors is to wipe with mineral spirits which take up the dirt and wax. After the floor is wiped up you can re-wax immediately. Remember that mineral spirits (being a petroleum distillate) demands caution. Be sure there's plenty of ventilation if you use it. I can't handle the stuff at all. Makes me woozy.

Dear Dorothy: Flying five and six miles above earth is hardly "home" country, but you take in a wide sweep, and I thought you might be willing to print my complaint about the way the airlines discriminate against nondrinkers. You can starve to death on some flights while the stewardesses go gaga over salesmen who want to guzzle. There ought to be a law. — Mrs. Grace Porteus

It is a good leap from home, as you say, but I confess that the same thought has crossed my mind on more than one flight.

Salt water gargle

The medical newsletter, Executive Health, says there probably is no more benefit from most commercial gargles than you can obtain by gargling with warm salt water.

"Many ear, nose and throat specialists continue to advise gargling with warm salt water," reports Executive Health. (UPI)

Clinic for baby sitters

Babysitting is one of the first ways young people earn money, and to help them be better sitters, Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club is sponsoring a babysitting clinic.

All boys and girls in the fifth grade and up are invited.

The clinic will run for six consecutive weeks from Monday, Feb. 11, through Monday, March 18, in Miner Junior High School cafeteria, 1101 E. Miner, Arlington Heights. Each session will last from 7:15 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Main purpose of the clinic is to show today's baby sitters the proper care of infants and children and to make their job easier.

At one class a pediatrician will discuss medical problems which might arise in a sitting situation. At another class a teacher will provide suggestions for entertaining small children. Fire safety will be covered by the fire department's paramedics in a third session.

Registration forms for the clinic are available at all schools in District 25, as well as St. Peter's, St. James, Our Lady of the Wayside, Holmes School in Mount Prospect, and Sullivan School in Pros-

sell breakfast by the lox box

If you're looking for a nice 'n easy Sunday morning breakfast all wrapped up in a box, Aviva Chapter of Pioneer Women has a special offer for Feb. 17.

Members will deliver a lox box to the home in time for breakfast that Sunday. Priced at $5, the box includes one-third of a pound of regular or nova (unsalted) lox, a half dozen bagels, cream cheese, onion, tomato, coffee cake and other goodies.

MRS. D. GOLDBERG, 259-5069, and Mrs. D. Foreman, 469-0333, are taking orders for the boxes, and everyone is welcome to purchase them. Boundaries for delivery are north to Highland Park, west to Hoffman Estates, south to Peterson Avenue and east to Lake Street. Checks should be made payable to Aviva Pioneer Women. Deadline for ordering is Sunday, Feb. 3.

Area women interested in the chapter and its activities may call Rita Necheles, membership chairman, at 394-4448.

Card party Friday

To fight winter doldrums St. Stephen's Altar and Rosary Society, Des Plaines, is planning a card and bunco party for Friday evening. The 8 o'clock party will be held in Hanley Hall, 1267 Everett Ave.

Tickets, at $1.50, may be purchased by calling the chairmen, Evelyn Bayer, 827-5065, or Tekla Hoepfner, 827-4271.

A suspenseful 'Night Watch'

by GENIE CAMPBELL

The scene is New York City, the fashionable East 30s Elaine Wheeler, unable to sleep, is pacing the living room floor at 5 a.m. She looks out the window into the building across the way and screams. A man lies slumped in a chair. "He's dead!" she cries.

It's the beginning of "Night Watch," a suspenseful evening of entertainment currently being staged by Masque and Staff at Dempster Junior High School.

The community theater group of Elk Grove Village has blended all the right ingredients to produce a good, sophisticated mystery. It's not the edge of the seat type thriller but rather a mind puzzle. And an unusual twist at the very end adds extra punch.

MUCH CREDIT for the success of the show goes to the entire cast, highlighted by the performance of Bonnie Casey as Elaine Wheeler, a woman who appears to be insecure, emotional and very capable of misinterpretation. A record of a nervous breakdown in her past adds to that image. Bonnie effectively plays the part without losing any of the grace and charm one would expect of a very wealthy heiress.

The elegant stage setting, with copies of great masters' works lining the walls to emulate the real thing, is the first tip-off that the home of the Wheelers is not the ordinary dwelling.

The plot deepens with the introduction of each major character. John Wheeler on the surface is the epitome of the loving, concerned husband upset over his wife's apparent illusions and inability to sleep. John Grayson plays the role and Elizabeth Williams completes the triangle as Blanche Cooke, friend and former nurse to Elaine. Perhaps her visit to the Wheeler apartment is much more contrived than at first we might think.

BUT THESE ARE only wild guesses in the beginning. It's what keeps the play on a high pitch of suspense. The first act is over before anyone even realizes and the second and third are equally fast paced.

Adding to the total enjoyment of the play are the supporting actors who include Sandra Rode as the unkempt comical German maid, Helga, who is slow to move but quick to suspect that something is amiss in the house.

Art Hassel plays an eccentric neighbor, Curtis Appleby, whose frequent words of wisdom are equally amusing and confusing. He adds spice to the production.

Though Ed Westfall is on stage for only one short scene, he will remain quite memorable in his role of a very disturbed deli owner whose business is being hurt by strange rumors that murders are being committed upstairs of his store.

COMPLETING THE cast are Bill Cannon as Vaneil, a young officer, Pat O'Dea as the tired and overworked Lt. Walker; and Pat Soderlund as Dr. Tracey Lake, a psychiatrist who is called in to cure Mrs. Wheeler.

"Night Watch" is a good choice for community theater. Who doesn't like a good mystery? The fact that it has not been produced lately in the area adds to the show's appeal.

Shirley Johnson is directing the suspenseful drama that will again be staged tomorrow and Saturday. Tickets, 437-0786.

Spreading cold germs

Studies have shown that getting chilled definitely will not cause the common cold. And that's good.

The reason there are more colds in winter — when it is cold — than in summer is that people are indoors far more in winter than summer, clustering together and spreading cold germs (UPI)

N.W. Village Realty, Inc.

1009 S. Arlington Hts. Rd., Arlington Hts.
593-8373

92 Turner Ave., Elk Grove Village
956-0660

670 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg
894-0220

The northwest suburbs is one of the fastest growing areas in the country today because of the quality of life it offers its residents and N.W. Village Realty, Inc. is proud of the part it has played in this phenomenal growth. With a combined total of more than 40 years experience, Anthony N. Andros, John M. Christensen and Wayne E. Johnson began building Village Realty with the motto "Experience, Integrity and Results" as the cornerstone. The firm presently serves the northwest suburbs from three locations in Elk Grove Village, Arlington Heights and Schaumburg.

The continually increasing staff of over 40 has been carefully selected to go along with the original thought that integrity in serving the client is the secret to success and the only way to assure the continued growth of the northwest suburbs and N.W. Village Realty, Inc. Integrity plus the desire to excel has resulted in a professional and competent staff that boasts 10 active members of the Million Dollar Sales Club among its ranks.

Andros, Christensen and Johnson point to the fact all the original salespeople are still with the company because they too believe "Experience, Integrity and Results" is the key to their own success and they are proud to do business in this manner.

Even during the recent "tight money market" Village Realty still shows a continuous increase in sales and plans for future expansion are in the offing. In February, the Elk Grove office is scheduled to relocate in the new Village Realty Professional Building on Arlington Heights Rd. and Turner Ave. in Elk Grove Village. This move is being made to help Village Realty serve clients even better in the future. It is a result of the type of management and planning exemplified by the fact Village Realty has arranged ample mortgage commitments from local lending institutions to see their clients through any acute mortgage money shortage.

The management and staff of Village Realty are all residents of the northwest suburban community. Their pride in their community reflects in the individual attention given to each of their clients. They are not dealing with numbers on files, they're working with neighbors, fellow members of the community. All sales associates of Village Realty follow their own transactions through the whole procuring chain and assume personal responsibility for the manner in which the transactions are handled, thus assuring that new neighbors will find their real estate experience a pleasant one.

N. W. Village Realty, Inc. is a member of MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service, an active member of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, and participants in the Home to Home Nationwide Relocation Service.

Next month Village Realty will relocate its Elk Grove Village office to the Village Realty Professional Building at Arlington Heights Rd. and Turner Ave.

Says home buying won't slacken

Home buying will take significant new directions in 1974 as Americans change their living patterns in response to the energy crunch.

"And, despite some predictions of a major downturn in the housing industry, mortgage commitments will actually rise — topping the $80 billion mark by the end of 1974," says Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, who observes that "the key market for sales and for mortgage loans will be existing homes."

"In 1974 the total mortgage flow will reach $81.4 billion, up more than 13 per cent above 1973's estimated $72 billion," he says.

"Mortgages made on existing properties will capture over 70 per cent of the market — a projected $58.2 billion — as compared to $23.2 billion forecast for mortgage loans on new homes."

The 1973 picture shows $23.5 billion going into mortgage commitments on new homes and $48.5 billion for existing properties, Goss states.

"IMIC itself anticipates putting upwards of 80,000 families into their own homes during 1974," he notes.

Goss points out that as fuel supplies tighten, older homes have two distinct advantages over their newly built counterparts — an allocation of home heating fuel and, in most cases, a location closer to downtown offices and work places.

He explains, that lenders, home buyers and the construction industry during the coming year will focus on the "three R's" — rehabilitation, renovation and restoration — as older homes are purchased and revitalized.

"Specifically, the Northeast, Pacific Northwest and Great Lakes regions will be the hottest markets for mortgage commitments on existing homes. Allocation of heating fuel coupled with the large number of existing homes in need of rejuvenation will spur demand."

Goss predicts that the South, Southwest and Colorado — with their influx of population and rapid economic expansion in the past few years — will maintain a strong market in the sales of new homes, despite a national trend to the purchase of older structures.

He adds that "a continuing turnabout in the flow of savings back into thrift institutions will free mortgage money by the beginning of the second quarter of '74 and that house sales will be brisk by mid-year."

Bye leads Kunkel sales

John Bye achieved the distinction of sales leader for the month of December at Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, Des Plaines, announced Ralph H. Martin, president.

This is the second time Bye has been a Kunkel monthly sales leader. He has been a member of Kunkel's residential sales staff since 1965 and is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

In 1971, Bye was responsible for producing sales in excess of $1 million and was inducted in the famed "Million Dollar Sales Club" of the Illinois Association of Realtors Boards.

Bye resides in Arlington Heights.

"Americans' thirst for a home to call their own is unquenchable. And the mortgage insurance industry will be busier than ever in '74 helping home buyers defray rising costs of home ownership and meet this burgeoning demand."

"A slackening of home buying during the energy crisis: no way," Goss concludes.

John Bye

The 52 units of rental property acquired by Investment Development Inc. are for sale as individual townhomes with a unique "try before you buy program."

The models are furnished with carpeting, stove, refrigerator and are conveniently located in Des Plaines at 1363 Howard St. The townhomes are close to schools, transportation, parks and shopping centers. Models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Ed Joyce earns G.R.I.

Ed Joyce

Ed Joyce of Arlington Realty's North Arlington office is receiving congratulations from his associates after being notified this week that he has successfully completed Course III of the Realtors Institute of Illinois and has been awarded the designation G.R.I. (Graduate, Realtors' Institute).

Joyce will later be awarded his G.R.I. gold certificate and lapel pin. The Illinois Realtors Institute is a three-year course held each year in Peoria. It is a concentrated study covering all phases of the real estate business including marketing, mortgages, appraisals, management, investments, advertising, trade-in programs and other areas.

Joyce is the third Arlington Realty associate to receive the honor of the G.R.I. award. Others are Dorothy Jacobs and Lillian Marshall.

Other sales associates from Arlington Realty attending the Institute for Courses I and II were Iris Cosgrove, Celine Allen, Brenda Harris, Betty Kunzweiler, Billie Veres, Joyce Richards and Terry Leighty.

Leases space

Hawthorn Realty Group has announced that the law firm of Boodell, Seras, Sugrue, Giambalvo & Crowley signed a long term lease for over 11,000 square feet of office space on the 26th floor of One I.B.M. Plaza.

This transaction represents the 18th law firm to relocate its offices to I.B.M. and will bring the building to over 90 per cent occupancy level when the law firm relocates this coming May from its present quarters.

Krafsur speaks on location evaluation

"Corporate decisions on office, warehouse and plant relocation will have to be more critically reviewed by energy-conscious management in 1974," said Howard G. "Blackie" Krafsur recently. Krafsur, partner in Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates, and president of the Society of Industrial Realtors, was speaking at an American Management Association seminar on Relocation Management held at the AMA Management Center in Chicago.

In discussing the evaluation of a new location, Krafsur noted that most companies only move once, and the average company executive is rarely involved with more than one move in his lifetime. He stressed the importance of examining all the factors involved in a move (such as physical, human, political, economic) and dividing between "must" (primary) factors and "additional" (secondary) factors. That kind of ranking can help to eliminate a great deal of useless work.

Krafsur mentioned that there are three steps in locational analysis: first the general region is to be decided; second, the selection of the community; and finally, the site analysis and selection.

In outlining the basic steps to take in location evaluation, Krafsur included the following:

Establishment of corporate objectives
Project specifications and critical factors influencing the location decision

The location study (evaluation of present location; suburban vs. city; distant moves; site selection; economic projections)

The 2½-day seminar also covered: pre-move planning and management; personnel relocation planning and implementation; the physical move itself; and some actual case studies of companies which have moved their headquarters. The seminar was designed for top management and senior operating officers of companies with a minimum of 200 people and/or 100,000 square feet of office and/or factory space.

Krafsur has had 27 years of experience in the field of industrial real estate. As a partner in Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates, he has helped a number of firms in their relocation decisions. In November, 1973, Krafsur was elected President of the Society of Industrial Realtors, the foremost organization nationwide of specialists in the industrial real estate field.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates is considered to be one of the largest firms of its type in the United States in terms of industrial land development. The organization is involved in selling and leasing existing buildings, building new industrial facilities, and land sales and development for industrial and office parks. B & K has industrial park developments in San Francisco, Dallas, Denver, Milwaukee and Atlanta, in addition to Centex Industrial Park in Elk Grove Village, and Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park in Schaumburg.

Jane Jackson tops $2 million

Jane Jackson, sales associate with Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors in their Arlington Heights office, reached her $2 million in residential sales in mid-December, 1973. She joins a very exclusive group of $2 million sales achievers working within the MAP Multiple Listing Service.

Mrs. Jackson, serving with the Annen & Busse firm since 1969, received her fourth Million Dollar Sales Award in June of this year. She is one of 17 Annen & Busse associates to reach that high mark during the year 1973, and she continued during the coveted $2 million sales goal. Jane qualifies as a Lifetime Member of the Illinois Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Club and Lifetime Member of the MAP Multiple Listing Service' Million Dollar Club.

Condo conversions booming

The current condominium conversion boom is helping to speed up the American dream of home ownership for thousands of people.

So declares Robert W. Gaber, president of Conco Mortgage Company, San Francisco, who notes that "urban developers throughout the nation are finding a ready market close at hand when they replace 'For Rent' placards with 'For Sale' signs."

"The majority of urban apartment buildings that have been converted to condominium units have considerable features that prove attractive to potential buyers. Most of these older converted buildings, for example, were erected when the cities were growing at a rapid rate.

"They are, consequently, in convenient locations — close to transportation, shopping facilities and to the offices and stores where city dwellers work and shop," Gaber explains.

Further, he observes, the solid workmanship and strong construction of these structures add considerably to the investment potential.

"In many many instances, very little renovation is required to complete the conversion — new appliances and several coats of paint may be all that is needed.

"Additionally, many buyers who first shop around find that they frequently are able to get more room space for their money in a conversion," Gaber states.

Many apartment renters, he stresses, are availing themselves of the opportunity to buy their rental unit when the building is converted.

"In case after case, those who have bought condo units in converted apartment developments have found that their housing expenses remain relatively the same. But, they do gain added tax advantages as an owner that were not available to them while they rented," Gaber points out.

The conversion boom, he states, is being heartily welcomed by apartment owners and dwellers alike.

"Many owners welcome the chance to leave the rental business. And for apartment tenants, a conversion is an opportunity to change their status — to become homeowners without having to make an actual physical move.

"Apartment buildings across the nation will be converted to condominiums with increasing frequency in the months ahead," Gaber concludes.

IDS division ranks 10th

The Barrington Division Sales Office of Investors Diversified Services, Inc., was ranked 10th in the nation in sales for 1973.

The Barrington Division, which serves customers in Cook, Lake, DuPage and Kane counties, with 31 registered representatives, is one of 191 similar divisions nationwide. The Barrington office was credited with $19,470,000 in production during 1973.

The 3,800-person nationwide sales organization of IDS offers shares of seven mutual funds, life and disability insurance, face amount certificates, pension and profit sharing plans, variable annuities, oil and gas exploration programs, and other related financial services.

While IDS was founded in 1894, the Barrington Division was founded in February 1958. In these 15 years more than 20,000 customer accounts have been in the Barrington office. The asset value of the mutual fund accounts in the Barrington office totaled more than $48 million in January of 1973.

There is now $51 million of life insurance in force on 3,500 lives among the Barrington customers, and these customers own over $46 million in face amount certificates.

Robert Douglas, district sales manager of the northwest suburban area, estimates that $100,000 per month is being invested by the customers of his district. Most of these dollars are invested by means of automatic bank authorizations through the many banks in the area.

ARTIST'S RENDERING of the new $12.5 million, 520-room Holiday Inn near O'Hare Airport to be completed early next year. Comprising 400,000 square feet of space, it will be the largest Holiday Inn ever built in terms of interior space and will have its own adjoining 25,000 square-foot pillarless Convention Hall.

Holiday Inn starts construction

Construction has started on what will be the largest Holiday Inn ever built in terms of interior space, 400,000 square feet. It will also have its own adjoining convention auditorium, which will house the largest convention hall in the Chicago Metropolitan Area, with the exception of McCormick Place.

The $12½ million, 520-room project is being built on an 8½-acre site at Balmoral and River Roads, Rosemont, near O'Hare International Airport. The broad 14-story tower will be 100 per cent lodging and have five elevators. All meeting rooms and restaurants will be located in the auditorium building.

The new Holiday Inn, to be completed in early 1975, is a development of Marshall J. Padorr and James L. Schwartz, owners and operators of 12 other Holiday Inns, including one building currently under construction in downtown Evanston.

The 25,000 square foot pillarless convention hall will accommodate 4,000 persons assembled in theatre style or more than 2,500 people in banquet style. This 300-foot long hall can also be partitioned off to provide six separate meeting rooms. In addition to the convention auditorium which is located at street level, and which will also house general offices, a sub-level will contain 14 private meeting rooms. Other related facilities in the complex will include two restaurants, a coffee shop, three cocktail lounges, and a cafeteria.

There will be parking for 700 vehicles on the property and room for an additional 150 vehicles on another property directly across the street.

With its other Holiday Inns in the general airport area, P & S Inns, the parent organization, will have in excess of 1,000 rooms available when the new Holiday Inn is completed, more rooms than any other hotel or motel serving O'Hare.

Padorr and Schwartz acquired the first Holiday Inn franchise for the Chicago area in 1959.

Their other properties now include Holiday Inns in Melrose Park, downtown Danville, Schiller Park, Highland Park, Elk Grove, Bloomington, Indiana; La Salle, downtown DeKalb, Cleveland, Ohio, near Hopkins Airport; Evansville, Indiana; and Evanston. Last year they also acquired a second franchise for Danville. Construction is not yet underway for this 14th Holiday Inn.

Plan 'Operation Optimism'

"Operation Optimism" will be launched this week by Richard Parrish Gallery of Homes, Elgin, as part of a nation-wide response to the energy and money crisis on the part of more than 15,000 members of Gallery of Homes, Inc.

In announcing local participation in the campaign, Realtor Richard Parrish said, "The entire project is an effort to restore public confidence in the strength and advantages of living in America. We think there is no better way of doing this than by reacquainting the benefits of home ownership and the ease of acquiring same."

The Gallery effort will focus on ways of overcoming shortages and costs for both money and energy.

"With respect to financing," Realtor Parrish said, "We hope to overcome exaggerated 'horror' stories by assuring people that money is available for home mortgages at relatively reasonable rates considering anticipated appreciation in property values."

Among various approaches to home financing to be stressed is the availability of the Gallery of Homes Equity Advance program. Under such a plan Gallery of Homes, Inc. advances cash to a home buyer enabling him to acquire a new residence while his former home is being sold.

"In approaching the energy crisis," Realtor Parrish said, "it is our hope to convince people of the numerous recreational and leisure time activities that can be centered around a good home. In addition, we will continue to support and participate in neighborhood-centered community activities, including the use of meeting space at the Gallery office, 761 Walnut Ave., Elgin.

"Rather than use a lot of gas exploring various areas," Realtor Parrish added, "prospective home buyers will be urged to visit the Parrish Gallery where they may view full-color photographs of all homes currently listed for sale."

Nationally the Gallery campaign is designed to stress the continuing vibrancy of the residential real estate market despite pressures of the economy. According to Gallery Executive Vice President Thomas W. Dooley, the housing market continues to be strong in most sections of the nation, especially the resale market for existing homes.

"The major reason for this continuing buoyancy," Dooley stated, "is the steadily increasing corporate transferee market." Within Gallery of Homes International Relocation Service, which is specifically created to accommodate transferees, Dooley reported that 11 month volume of activity surpassed expectations by 35 per cent and was 48 per cent greater than for a comparable period in 1972.

Richard Parrish Gallery of Homes is the exclusive member of the marketing network in the Elgin area.

Shopping centers may go vertical

Shopping center developers of the future may find themselves building upward — rather than outward.

"High-rise shopping centers, with supermarkets or other large retail facilities on the ground level could become a common sight on the American landscape in the not too distant future," reports the real estate arm of Esmark, Inc., Chicago, a diversified company with principal interests in food, chemicals and energy, as well as insurance and other financial and business services.

"While the supply of available land for commercial development in and around our major cities is going down, costs are going up. This combination of factors will become an increasingly important consideration in the design and planning of future shopping centers," Esmark's specialists note.

Another major factor that will have to be considered by shopping center developers, the report points out, is the nation's energy situation.

"New design concepts and building materials and techniques will have to be developed to make the most efficient possible use of land and of fuel and other energy supplies," the report emphasizes.

With these factors in mind, however, medium-and-high-rise shopping centers could be built — and without any loss of customer convenience.

"Totally enclosed structures with hollow core centers may be one possible design. Shops and boutiques would be built around the outside walls of such a center with display windows and entrances on balconies around the open core.

"Shoppers could easily reach the stores without having to walk long distances, as is the case in many of today's wide-spread, single-level malls," according to Esmark.

Tomorrow's vertical shopping centers, the report states, may, in fact, become self-contained communities.

"With stores occupying the lower levels of a high-rise center, upper floors could contain offices and apartments.

"Residents would not need to make long drives to work or to do their shopping.

"A quick elevator trip would put them at the doors of supermarkets, clothing stores and other facilities within a matter of minutes," the Esmark report concludes.

Take checklist along for apartment hunting

High interest rates on new mortgage money are forcing many people to put off buying their dream house. Instead, they are staying in their rented apartments. The result is a shortage of multi-family rental units in many cities.

But the multi-family housing picture isn't all that bleak. According to Wes Wise, the publisher of Apartment Construction News, apartments for sale are readily available. He mentioned that of the 1,800,000 new housing units scheduled to go up in 1974, about one-third will be townhouses for sale to consumers.

"People interested in buying a condominium in 1974," Wise said, "will have the luxury of being able to shop around."

It's a good idea to take along the checklist while inspecting the premises before buying. Prior to looking at a new apartment, write down the measurements of your current place. Empty rooms always appear larger. The measurements will give you a yardstick for comparing both the total living area and the size of rooms in the new apartment.

Inquire about storage space. Remember that if you're moving from a house, you won't have an attic or basement to store things in. Be sure there is ample closet space near the front entrance as well as in the bedrooms. Look to see if the kitchen and dining areas are convenient for cooking and serving meals.

Try to imagine how the furniture will be arranged to fit the room layout taking the placement of windows and doors into consideration. Inspect the windows and doors for signs of quality craftsmanship. Wood windows and wood panel doors add beauty and indicate the builder's concern for comfort.

You can be more confident of quality if the wood windows in an apartment have insulated glass, double glass with an insulating air space between. Insulating glass provides comfort in winter by keeping heat in.

Before purchasing the unit, make sure the apartment has enough electrical outlets. As a general rule, any point along the floor line of a wall should be within about six feet of the nearest outlet. And they should be double outlets.

In kitchens there should be several outlets at countertop height for appliances. Outlets in all areas preferably should be the three prong, grounded type to prevent shocks from faulty equipment.

And don't forget to check the neighborhood and evaluate the location. Ask the neighbors or the school superintendent about local schools and teacher-pupil ratios.

Can children walk to schools, the store, parks? How close is shopping? If you're a commuter, how far away is the bus stop, train station or expressway? Ask neighbors, or better yet, make the trips yourself to find out for sure.

Finally there is the question of how much you want to spend. When buying, a practical rule of thumb is to limit the purchase price to about two and a half times your annual take home pay.

Gallery turns off lights

Turning off the lights recently at the Elmhurst Operational Headquarters of Gallery of Homes Inc., international real estate marketing organization, were Tom Dooley, executive vice president, assisted by Archie Anderson, director of member services.

According to Dooley, Gallery potentially will be conserving enough energy daily to heat hundreds of homes by instructing its 1,400 facilities throughout the continent to extinguish all interior lighting from 10 p.m. to 10 a.m. daily.

Primarily affected, Dooley explained, will be Gallery's unique system of merchandising property by displaying photos of homes in large rear-lighted frames of "shadow boxes."

"The 'shadow box' concept will continue to be a hallmark of Gallery merchandising," Dooley said, "but for the remainder of the energy crisis, we are recommending that lighting be used only 12 hours per day."

An informal calculation of the kilowatt hours estimated as being saved by the Gallery action indicates that enough energy will be saved to heat 480 homes each day, Dooley indicated.

Gallery offices currently are located in every major marketing area in 49 states and six Canadian provinces.

Hawthorn sells 88 acres

Hawthorn Realty Group recently announced it has completed the sale of 88 acres, zoned for 2,080 multi-family residential units on the east side of Plum Grove Road, just west of Woodfield Mall in Schaumburg. The seller was The Larwin Group. The purchaser was an undisclosed institution.

In April, Larwin will begin construction of 440 units on contiguous property. Larwin will also begin construction of the entire street and open space system for both properties, including a man-made 12-acre lake, which will be the central part of the development of the balance of the property.

Housing expert says waiting can cost

If you're waiting for interest rates on home mortgage loans to come down before you start hunting for a house, you may be making a costly mistake.

Chances are that you'll pay more in the long run by waiting than by buying now at the minimum interest rate being charged by most lenders.

"You're better off buying now and refinancing your mortgage at a later date when, hopefully, interest rates go lower," advises Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, for Baird & Warner, Inc. "If they don't drop, you're sure to lose."

The key to this strategy is the continuing escalation of house costs.

"A recent survey of our 30 Chicago and sales offices showed that from the summer of 1972 until the summer of 1973 the average value of an existing home in the metropolitan area has increased about 10 per cent. There is no reason to believe it won't appreciate another 10 per cent in the next year," said Walters.

He gave the following example of how your monthly payments may be lower by buying now at the highest interest rate possible in the state of Illinois than by waiting for interest to drop.

Assume that you buy a $50,000 house and get a 25-year mortgage at 7.9 per cent interest with 20 per cent down — or $10,000. Your monthly payments on your $40,000 mortgage comes to $306.12 monthly for principal and interest.

Next, suppose that in a year the situation changes and mortgage interest rates drop to 7 per cent, a drop of 9/10 of one percentage point, and in the meantime that house has appreciated in value by 10 per cent to $55,000.

If you refinance the house it will be on the basis of your original $40,000 mortgage, not on the increased value of the house. The appreciation is just an extra dividend.

It's likely, noted Walters, that you could be assessed a prepayment penalty for refinancing your house. This ordinarily comes to six months interest on the unpaid balance of your mortgage. In this example, the penalty, assuming you had made payments on your mortgage for one year, would amount to $1,250. This would be tacked onto your mortgage and your new principal balance would be $40,730. At 7 per cent interest, your new monthly payments would then be $287.96 per month for principal and interest.

Now suppose you decided to wait a year to buy that house.

First, you'll have to come up with a higher down payment of $11,000, which is 20 per cent of $55,000. Your mortgage is then $44,000. At 7 per cent interest, your monthly mortgage payments for principal and interest comes to $338.80, excluding taxes.

pal and interest comes to $338.80, excluding taxes.

"There are a couple of other things to keep in mind," suggested Walters. "During the year you've decided to wait, you still have the expense of housing your family somewhere, so you might as well deduct that from whatever you figure you might be saving if you wait. Also, by buying you are able to deduct the interest portion of your mortgage payments. This is worth many hundreds of dollars that you can subtract from the expense of home ownership."

Walters contends that mortgage rates are not likely to fall below 7 per cent in 1974. "We think that interest rates are likely to remain in the 7 to 8 per cent range in the absence of any changes in interest rates by the Illinois General Assembly."

In conclusion, he suggests, "the best real estate values are available now. The price of hesitation can be high."

Starck reports sales increase

Home sales in December, 1973, spurted 55 per cent over December, 1972, and set a record for the month, according to Robert W. Starck, president of Starck, Realtors. Twenty-nine homes were sold by the firm's five offices for a volume of over $1.3 million.

Starck attributes the increase to a number of factors. The Relocation Department recently established by the firm caused a significant increase in transferee activity for the company. Other factors cited were buyer concern over rising home prices in the future, easier mortgage money, and a sharp reduction in new home construction that has turned buyer interest to preowned homes. Starck, Realtors, have projected a sizeable increase in their home sales for 1974 and are considering additional offices in other market areas.

Banks expand commitment to housing

Despite tight money conditions, the banking industry expanded its commitment to housing during the third quarter of 1973, Rex J. Morthland, president of the American Bankers Association (ABA), said recently.

Morthland, who is also chairman of Peoples Bank & Trust Co., Selma, Ala., said the latest statistics released by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), "reflect banking's ability to meet increased demands for new housing and for home improvements which are so vital to the growth of our communities."

Highlights of bank activities outlined in the HUD report are:

New commitments by banks in long-term residential loans for September 1973 were up 8 per cent over September '72, as opposed to a 46 per cent decrease over the same period for nine other lender groups.

Net acquisitions of long-term residential loans for the first three-quarters of '73 were 5 per cent higher than the same period in '72. That's $14.3 billion compared to $13.6 billion.

Acquisition of residential construction loans rose 16 per cent over the first nine months of 1972.

Banks accounted for 25 per cent of the total net acquisitions of 1973 residential long-term and construction loans through September.

Humidification saves money

Proper humidification of indoor air in winter can save you money on your heating bills, states the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute, and — perhaps more important in the long run — help alleviate the energy crunch.

When relative humidity is kept in the 30 to 40 per cent range, most people are comfortable at a lower thermostat setting than when the air in the house is dry. The reason is that at 76 degrees, for example, with a relative humidity of 10 to 14 per cent, your body becomes an evaporative cooler — giving up moisture in the form of perspiration to the dry air.

If the relative humidity is raised to 30 per cent, the same people will be comfortable with a thermostat setting of 70 to 72 degrees.

The saving on your heating bill can be considerable if humidification of your air allows you to feel comfortable at a lower temperature, says ARI. Since each degree of heat over 70 degrees adds three per cent to your fuel bill, reducing the temperature from 76 degrees to 72 degrees would reduce your fuel costs by 12.5 per cent. Lowering the temperature to 70 degrees would result in savings of more than 18 per cent.

Most houses will require a humidifier device to bring indoor humidity to a point where people will be comfortable at a lower temperature, says ARI. An average house of 1,250 square feet, for example, requires approximately 1/2 gallon of water per hour to maintain a proper humidity level in winter. Cooking, bathing and other activities of a family of four will add only about 3.2 gallons of water to the air in a day.

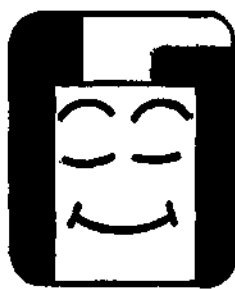

To determine the amount of energy your central system humidifier uses, figure on 1,000 BTU's of energy required for each pound of water evaporated, or 8,000 BTU's per gallon.

Example: a 12 gallon-per-day (1/2 gallon per hour) humidifier will at maximum capacity require 4,000 BTU's of energy per hour. If your furnace uses 100,000 BTU's per hour of energy, and you save 21 per cent or 21,000 BTU's per hour by turning the thermostat down seven degrees, they your net energy savings will be 21,000 minus 4,000, or 17,000 BTU's per hour.

TO HELP CONSERVE NATURAL GAS — AND YOUR HOUSEHOLD BUDGET

KEEP YOUR FILTERS CLEAN.

Your furnace isn't the only gas appliance with a filter — there's a filter on your gas clothes dryer, too.

Your furnace filter collects dust and your dryer filter collects lint, so they should be cleaned regularly, and replaced periodically.

Keeping your filters clean is a good conservation practice... because your gas appliances will operate more efficiently (and more economically) and burn less gas if they don't have to fight a clogged filter.

Your gas appliances will breathe a lot easier (and so can you) when their filters are cleaned or replaced regularly.

Home Town adds three

Ray Carrell

Joe Quinlan

Trudy Triner

Larry Doyle, residential sales manager for Home Town Real Estate, recently announced the addition of Trudy Triner, Ray Carrell and Joe Quinlan to the sales staff in Home Town's Schaumburg office.

Mrs. Triner graduated from Monmouth and did graduate work at the University of California in Santa Barbara. She has been a foreign language teacher in the Palatine School District for several years.

Quinlan has worked for a security and commodity broker in downtown Chicago for the last 12 years. He and his family reside in Schaumburg.

Carrell, a broker salesman, graduated from Eastern Illinois University, receiving a bachelor's in education and was awarded a masters degree in industrial education. He has spent 19 years in public school education, and in recent years has served as an educational consultant and has authored articles for various professional journals. Carrell is an active member of the First Christian Church of Hoffman Estates. He and his family reside in Schaumburg.

Home Town Real Estate is a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and the M.A.P. Multiple Listing Service with offices in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg and are presently planning the opening of a fifth office in the very near future.

People spend more time in bath

Everyone knows the gasoline shortage means more weekends at home but one expert suggests a trend to more time in the bathroom as well.

"Bathroom improvements already rank second only to painting and paneling efforts in popularity among do-it-yourself home improvement projects," said P. J. Dowliatt, research director for Borg-Warner Plumbing Products.

"And our new stay-at-home lifestyle can only serve to boost this growing American interest in bathroom facelifts and additions," he continued. "Last year alone Americans remodeled or added more than 3.5 million bathrooms in their homes."

Dowliatt holds that the popularity of bathroom improvement projects is due in good measure to recent technological breakthroughs in bathroom fixture materials and installation techniques.

"Light-weight fiberglass-strand acrylic bathtubs are taking the brunt out of remodeling," he said, "along with thermoplastic flush tanks, rimless lavatories and complete four-piece unitized bath/shower coves."

"The Borg-Warner comfortub, for example, weighs less than 80 pounds and — because of a unique tiling flange — requires no troublesome tub-to-tile grouting."

Dowliatt continued that for years the complexities and sheer back-breaking work involved in bathroom remodeling scared many do-it-yourselfers away from such projects.

"A certain degree of stick-to-itiveness is certainly still required," he said, "but the many new products and techniques now being employed have cleared away the major remodeling stumbling blocks. And with all those stay-at-home weekends ahead, there'll be plenty of time to master the rest."

RELO honors Starck

Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, was publicly honored at the annual meeting of RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, Inc. in Washington, D.C., in mid-November in conjunction with the National Association of Realtors annual meeting.

The 13-year-old firm was awarded a plaque citing Starck's performance in 1973 that included more than $2.7 million in residential real estate sales to buyers referred to it by other RELO members located elsewhere in the United States, Canada and abroad. It marked the third year in a row the $2 million milestone was reached by Starck.

Another plaque was received by Starck for its origination of over 500 outgoing referrals of clients moving from the northwest suburban area served by Starck to other cities. These outgoing referrals resulted in sales of over $2.3 million, and placed Starck eighth in outgoing referrals out of over 650 RELO members. Additionally, an engraved clock was presented to the firm for its combination of incoming and outgoing referral sales that totaled over $5 million last year, again placing Starck in the top ten RELO members in the country.

Members of RELO, with offices in more than 7,000 residential real estate markets throughout the United States, assist families on the move by selling their former residences and referring their housing needs to members in destination communities. "In this way," says Robert W. Starck, president, "much of the wasted time and confusion of house-hunting in strange cities can be eliminated, because preliminaries can be accomplished before a family makes its first visit to the new community."

Selective marketing is key

Selective marketing is the "name of the game" for both commercial and residential construction during 1974.

So declares Robert W. Gaber, president of Conco Mortgage Company, San Francisco, a national mortgage banking and brokerage organization with offices in principal cities throughout the United States.

"The energy crisis will be a dominant factor. Consequently, builders and developers must concentrate on specific market demands before launching construction projects in '74."

"The outlook for office buildings, for example, is bright — supply has been lagging behind rapidly growing demand," Gaber observes.

Shopping center construction, he adds, will continue strong in 1974, to keep pace with most areas where residential building has been at consistently high levels during the past 18 to 24 months.

"Present predictions are for 1974's overall residential construction start rates to sink below the 2 million-plus level established in the past few years. Multi-family units will increase their share of the market, but still will fall short of new single-family homes' starts. The demand for condominiums will continue to climb, though not quite as sharply as during 1973," Gaber says.

"Keenly aware of rising construction and money costs, builders will need to watch market trends closely and thoroughly gauge housing preferences and demands before initiating new projects in any sector of residential construction," he forecasts.

Gaber emphasizes that there will be a growing trend to rebuild existing structures both in cities and close-in suburbs as a result of fuel shortages.

"How much more serious the energy situation will become, as well as other questions concerning the entire economy, are still to be answered."

"These are the questions being watched closely by builders, developers, mortgage bankers and lenders," Gaber concludes.

Replacing heating plant?

One of the more profound bits of advice handed down by experience goes like this — "Don't throw good money after bad."

This maxim is usually repeated when you are about to make a major repair to your old car exactly one week after it had been given a complete tune-up. Better to buy a newer car with less headaches.

Today, when heating fuel costs almost as much as a trip to the moon, all of us had better take a second look at our old or heating plant, advises the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. Despite the fact that it was adjusted and cleaned at the start of winter, is it using more fuel than last year? If so, it may be wise to investigate replacing it.

If your home has hydronic (modern hot water) heating, you have a pleasant surprise in store for you. Today's boilers, unlike your old one, are small and look like appliances. In fact, most of them have attractive jackets and fit in with almost any decor.

According to the Council, one of the reasons for the increase in the number of finished basements is the appearance of the modern hydronic boiler. And as small as they are, they are extremely efficient, and will save you enough money in fuel consumption to pay for, if not a trip to the moon, at least for its own cost within a few years.

Named to Moody Bible position

Trygve Lars Larsen, 398 Hawthorne Rd., Buffalo Grove, has been appointed manager of employment services in the personnel department of Chicago's Moody Bible Institute. Prior to taking his present position at MBI, he was director of personnel at Trinity College, Deerfield.

Larsen's new position at the Institute involves working relations with more than 900 persons employed in the MBI faculty, Moody Press, the Moody Monthly magazine staff, five MBI radio stations and Moody Institute of Science (California), as well as other institute departments.

Now ranks third in industry

United Van Lines, one of the nation's leading carriers of household goods, has climbed into the moving industry's third position for the first time in its 27-year history. P. B. Goelz, the van line's vice president and general manager, announced.

"When the 1973 total revenue figures are completed, it is anticipated that United's combined revenues will be $105 million," Goelz reported. "This figure includes a transportation revenue increase of 15 per cent over 1972, and a jump in our market share from fourth to third."

Previously, Aero Mayflower Transit Co. was the industry's third largest carrier. Allied Van Lines, Inc. is the biggest in terms of total revenue and North American Van Lines is second.

Goelz said United's total revenue figure includes the incomes of the van line and its subsidiaries, United Overseas, Inc.; United Foreign Shipping Co., and UVL Properties, Inc. Of the total revenue, United Overseas and United Van Lines' international division contributed about 10 per cent.

While United was moving up in the industry's rankings, a 40,000-square-foot addition to its World Headquarters building in St. Louis County was completed and occupied. It marked the fourth time in 15 years that United's corporate offices had been expanded.

Goelz attributed part of the revenue increase in 1973 to the addition of a number of excellent moving companies to United's 900-member world-wide agency family.

"We've been very fortunate that as an agency-oriented carrier, many moving companies find affiliation with United most desirable," Goelz explained. "Agents who have joined United from other carriers have said that it is a welcome change to be with a van line whose board of directors and management will listen and are open to the ideas of its agents."

In addition to growing in terms of revenue and physical plant, United Van Lines acquired authority from the Civil Aeronautics Board to act as an air freight forwarder in 1973. This, coupled with the van line's continuing effort to acquire Interstate Commerce Commission authority to haul certain new products, has given agents two new forms of transportation to offer the shipping public.

Assuming that the rationing of fuel will not be necessary, United Van Lines anticipates a growth factor of an additional $74 million in revenue by 1978. In preparation of this, steps have been taken to increase the number of over-the-road trailers in the fleets of both the van line and its agency family. Conventional furniture vans and flatbed container transport trailers are being acquired, Goelz said.

"We are very much aware of our role in the nation's transportation industry," Goelz explained. "And, we are preparing to take whatever steps are necessary to not only assure our position as a leader, but to guarantee our continued growth."

Office building features hanging live plants

Besides beautiful flowers, the circular courtyard in the Le Ronde office building being built at 950 Lee St. in Des Plaines features hanging live plants and hanging seats suspended by chains.

This unique courtyard, designed by architects Erickson & Stevens, makes up the center core of the Le Ronde office building, which will be ready for spring 1974 occupancy. The building is constructed on concrete columns and provides open ground floor parking for 80 cars. The exterior is finished in buff, decorative fluted blocks.

All offices in the building face the circular courtyard and are decorated to fulfill the individual requirements of each tenant. The offices feature vertical louvered drapes, wall-to-wall carpeting, acoustical drop ceilings, air conditioning and daily maintenance services.

For information on leasing, contact the leasing and management agents: the Commercial-Investment Division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, 734 Lee St. in Des Plaines or call 298-5055.

Monthly real estate transfers by township announced

Schaumburg

County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen in the first 1974 monthly Schaumburg township real estate transfer report listed the sales of 49 properties in Hoffman Estates, ten in Roselle, eight in Hanover Park, and 121 in Schaumburg and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not allow the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document.

Secrets to caring for two homes

Some women have difficulty running just one home smoothly, but there are many, many more who play the role of chateaine to two — and do a remarkable job.

"And, they too, like successful captains of industry, have their trade secrets," observes Robert W. Taber, president and

Matthew L. Cockrell, president and general manager of Cockrell Coffee Service, Inc., 2207 N. Hammond Dr.,

Matthew Cockrell

Schaumburg, was recently elected to the board of directors of the National Automatic Merchandising Assoc. (NAMA), trade association of the $10 billion vending and foodservice management industry.

Chosen during the opening session of the 27th annual Convention-Exhibit of Vending and Foodservice Management, Cockrell will serve a three-year term.

Cockrell attended the University of Louisville and Northwestern University. He entered the vending business in 1953.

He is a founder and past president of the Illinois Automatic Merchandising Council. He and his wife, Betty, reside at 4610 Dawngate, Rolling Meadows.

chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Company.

"The woman who has two homes has honed her housekeeping chores to a fine edge. She rarely makes meaningless purchases, avoids clutter and aims for top efficiency," says Gaber.

He points out that the number of two-home families is on the increase. Americans now have more leisure time — and, concomitantly, more leisure homes.

"This means more responsibilities for the wife. To enjoy these two homes, she has to plan wisely."

Gaber offers some meaningful suggestions he has received from dual home-keepers:

Don't allow chores and errands to fall behind. Set up a regular schedule — and strictly adhere to it.

A real time saver: employ a regular window-washing service.

Keep ample quantities of staples — flour, sugar, rice, coffee, cereals and cookies — in tightly-capped, moisture-proof jars.

Prepare dishes for the freezer that can be defrosted and then heated at leisure.

Do not clutter the vacation home with knickknacks. Keep it strictly functional.

Maintain furniture surfaces free of hard-to-dust breakables.

Install lighting which turns on automatically at sundown.

Ice makers and deep freezers are ideal — particularly at the usually far-away second home.

Keep extra sets of clothing at each home. Don't tire yourself by "lugging" apparel and accessories back and forth between the two houses.

Stock bathroom cabinets with identical sets of often-used toiletries and medicines — particularly prescriptions.

All bills and correspondence should be sent only to one home.

"As one wise lady we know said, 'every short-cut helps you enjoy your two lovely homes as much as your family,'" Gaber concludes.

SCHAUMBURG/MT. PROSPECT AREA

condominiums that say "home" not "apartment"

Shopping, transportation and all the necessities of everyday living are virtually at your doorstep... and a thirty-five-acre lake is just a stone's throw from your balconied home. Village on the Lake is that rare combination of charm and convenience. Acres of landscaped walkways, bike trails and forest preserves abound. The lake offers sailing, fishing and skating in the winter. A large swimming pool and tennis courts are exclusively yours. All in an extra-spacious home near to everything important.

Inside living is remarkable, too. Living rooms are sweeping in size. There's a formal dining room as well as a breakfast room with balcony. And there's another balcony off the luxurious master suite. Naturally, there's wall to wall carpeting, full appliances, individual heat and air conditioning. It's all maintenance free, so time is yours to just enjoy.

Tips for African violets

African violets are the most popular house plants in the country. They flower the year round and their cultural requirements are easier to provide than those of nearly any other house plant says James E. Schuster, extension adviser, horticulture, at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service office in Wheaton.

Both single and double flowering varieties are available throughout the year. Varieties range in flower color from white to pink, blue lavender and deep violet.

Flowering is primarily influenced by light. It may be necessary to try various locations in order to find the best site for continuous flowering. If light is too intense, the foliage may be bleached and burned. Insufficient light causes poor flowering and elongated petioles. From November through February, locate plants to receive direct sunlight. Move the plants to indirect bright light from March through October.

African violets can be grown entirely under artificial light from two 40-watt fluorescent tubes in an industrial fixture. Gloxinias, Episcias, Tuberos Rooted Begonias and Ever-blooming Begonias can also be grown with this installation. One standard cool white and one daylight tube placed 8 to 10 inches above the foliage will provide minimum light necessary for flowering. At least 12 hours of light are required each day, but 18 hours of light produces more plant growth and flowering. A four-tube fixture (two tubes of each type) approximately doubles the light intensity and produces more desirable plants.

Use water at room temperature for surface application to violets; cold water causes spotting of the foliage. Bottom watering is convenient. Wick-watering containers are especially good for African violets; a fiberglass wick draws water by capillary action from a separate pan or reservoir beneath the pot into the soil. The soil is kept moist, neither excessively wet nor dry.

Both of these systems may result in accumulation of salt or hardness on the surface of the soil since the water moves up rather than down. Periodic leaching (heavy surface watering) to wash out accumulated salts will usually prevent problems.

Night temperatures of 65 degrees to 70 degrees are satisfactory for violets; day temperatures can be five degrees higher. Foliage will curl downward and flowering will be retarded if plants are exposed to temperatures lower than 65 degrees says Schuster.

Kucharski named consumer director

United Air Lines has appointed Paul A. Kucharski of Arlington Heights to the post of director-consumer relations.

Paul Kucharski

Kucharski succeeds William A. Speicher who has been named director-reservations and passenger services.

A Chicago native, Kucharski joined United in 1967 as a marketing analyst, and has served as manager-commercial and government sales, assistant to the vice president-marketing, and most recently as manager-passenger marketing for United's Central Division.

As director-consumer relations, Kucharski will be responsible for development of corporate policies as they relate to all aspects of consumer affairs at the local, state and federal levels. He will also have direct responsibility for consumer relations activities involving customer suggestions, complaints and comments. Kucharski will be based at United's corporate headquarters near Chicago.

Kucharski is a graduate of Purdue University.

Mundelein College elects Calibraro

Daniel Calibraro

Mundelein College, Chicago.

A resident of Arlington Heights, Calibraro is vice president, assistant to the president and a director of WGN. He has served as an associate trustee of Mundelein College; a trustee of the pension fund of the Better Business Bureau of Chicago; and chairman of WGN Continental's Profit Sharing Committee.

An alumnus of Loyola University, Calibraro was the recipient of the 1970 Alumni Award from the university.

Calibraro's election brings the number of board of trustees members to 25. The board is comprised of five Sisters of Charity, the religious order which founded the College, and the balance of the members are lay. Mundelein College is a four-year liberal arts college for women at 6363 Sheridan Rd., Chicago.

Continental Food promotes Lamonia

Paul Lamonia of Buffalo Grove, Product manager, Continental Food Manufacturing Co., a division of CFS Continental, has been promoted to director of product management.

Lamonia received his bachelor of business degree from Western Illinois University in 1969 and his MBA degree from Loyola University in 1972. He joined Continental in April of 1972 as product manager, following three years of varied experience in the food service industry.

In his new assignment, Lamonia will have total marketing responsibilities for all of Continental's manufactured food items, including the development of new products. Continental Food Manufacturing Co. is one of the leading manufacturers of food products exclusive to the food service industry.

Repairing plaster walls requires patience, care and a few inexpensive tools

Plaster walls can develop cracks for a number of reasons. A child bangs into the wall with a toy. The lack of a door-stop causes a door to open too far back and hit the wall. A piece of furniture may be shoved too close to the wall.

Or nothing at all may happen and the cracks come anyway as the house settles. They happen in new homes as well as old.

They don't indicate the house is falling down. They are unsightly, however, and if neglected become larger.

It isn't difficult to repair plastered walls. The job requires patience, care and a few inexpensive tools.

A PLASTERER'S steel trowel may be needed when you get to filling large holes, but for most minor patching a putty knife will do. A throw-away pie tin is great for mixing the plaster. Large cracks should be undercut so that they are wider at the bottom than at the surface. There is a tool for this but you can make do with a small screwdriver or a beer can opener.

Hairline cracks and tiny nail holes can be repaired with a prepared spackling compound or special crack filler. This dries more slowly than plaster but it can be handled more easily and has good adhesion even when applied in very thin layers.

Larger cracks and holes are repaired with patching plaster. Do not use plaster of Paris which dries too quickly and is difficult to work with.

Even regular patching plaster sets fairly fast. Mix only what you think you can use in 15 or 20 minutes.

ALL CRACKS and holes should be cleaned out of all dust and loose material. For a tiny crack or hole just make a generous application of spackling compound smeared over the hole and then smoothed out with a putty knife. If you work carefully you may not have to sand the patch.

Larger cracks should be chipped out to make certain there is no loose material. Undercut the edges. This will keep the patch from pulling out. Wet the opening thoroughly, they apply the plaster. Deep holes and cracks should be filled part way, then allowed to dry. Then wet again and make the final application, sanding this to a smooth finish when it is dry.

WHEN A BIG chunk of plaster has fallen out a little more work is required but the process is the same. Clean and undercut. Apply your patch only on sound material, even if you have to scrape right down to the bare lath. Wet the area and apply the plaster in layers. The first layer should be pressed firmly into the lath. Wet between applications of additional layers.

If you find no backing to the hole you will have to provide one. If the hole is large, make it a little larger until you find the wall studs. Then nail plasterboard to the studs for backing.

If the hole is small, stuff loosely crumpled newspaper in it. It should be big enough to stay in place. Apply some globs of plaster so that they cover the paper and the edge of hole. When dry apply succeeding coats of plaster on this backing.

25 developments and 52 weeks later, the Bosworths have found a home.

Finding the ideal townhome wasn't easy for a family of six. "We found many developments designed for a young couple just starting out, and many others for older, retired couples... but until we found The Crossings, there was nothing in our price range that was adequate."

Since the Bosworths have lived in four homes previously, they knew exactly what they were looking for. Now after a year of visiting some 25 developments, they've chosen The Crossings — and couldn't be happier with their new home.

One of the qualities they were looking for was an easy-care floor plan. Mrs. Bosworth is glad the traffic pattern doesn't lead through the dining or living rooms. She also likes her General Electric kitchen and insulated windows to save storm window chores. Like her four active girls, Mrs.
Bosworth is looking forward to summer recreational activities. A swimming pool, tennis courts, lakes for fishing and sailing, and a private clubhouse. Also, shopping at nearby Woodfield Mall and Long Grove's Antique Village.

Without worrying about exterior chores, Mr.
Bosworth can spend time with his family out of doors, or relaxing around the fireplace. "What I think we've found is a home with all the benefits of a private residence and none of the maintenance problems." The Bosworths feel The Crossings was well worth waiting for.

Get central humidification with any heating system

The benefits of controlled indoor humidity during the heating season can now be enjoyed in any home, regardless of the type of heating system used. They include increased comfort at a lower thermostat setting, protection of plaster walls and home furnishings against drying out, and the reduction of troublesome static electricity.

Exactly what happens in the winter-time that alters the moisture content of the air to such an extent? It stems from the fact that whenever outside air is heated — no matter what the method — its capacity for holding moisture increases rapidly. Air heated to 70 degrees can hold 22 times as much moisture as 0 degree air.

The term "relative humidity" is the amount of moisture actually present in the air, compared to the maximum amount that air can hold at that temperature. Relative humidity of 50 per cent means that the air is only half-saturated and could hold twice as much additional moisture.

Most heated homes without humidification have an average relative humidity of about 13 per cent all winter long, compared with the recommended 30-35 per cent. It's understandable, then, why so many families feel chilly — when the thermometer registers 72 degrees or even sometimes when it registers 75 degrees. The extremely dry air is the cause.

Perhaps you have noticed clues to low humidity in your home. If so, you should consider installing a humidifier — one that has the capacity to provide the moisture needed to maintain humidity at the proper level. When you compare the various models of humidifiers you should keep several important points in mind. You should know, for example, that there are installed units and portable units. There are many advantages to installed units and most homeowners will wisely give them top preference.

If you have a forced air heating system you will want a central unit that is installed on the furnace and sends humidified air through the existing ducts.

A typical model for use in a home without forced air heating is installed out of sight on the basement ceiling, in a closet, heated crawl space or utility room. The humidifier utilizes service hot water drawn from the hot water heater and distributes humidified air into the home through a single duct.

Before deciding on the humidifier you want, check with various dealers on these five key points: capacity, control, operational efficiency, ease of maintenance and ease of installation.

An informative booklet on relative humidity in the home and how to choose a humidifier is available free of charge. Send your request for "Humidification Facts" to Research Products Corporation, Madison, Wis. 53701.

New York Life cites two agents

Two area agents recently qualified as members of the 1973 Star Club of New York Life Insurance Co.

They are Mrs. Olga Bowker, 208 N. Parkway, Prospect Heights; and Bernard H. Fink, 1813 Boulder Dr., Mount Prospect.

The Star Club is composed of New York Life agents who achieved significant sales records in 1972-73, according to North Central Regional vice president, John T. DeBardeleben, CLU.

As members of the Star Club, they attended an educational conference in Lake Ozark, Mo.

ARLINGTON REALTY

ARLINGTON REALTY

Dear Mr. Banker,
Nov. 1, 1973

Thank you for letting us come I appreciate it, How is it going down there? I really liked the vault room, I never went on a tour in a bank.

Thank you for those folders and that candy and toy that goes up in the air. I color in my coloring book I have fun with all the things you gave me. I'll bet it costed a lot of money. I think it's hard to work in the bank. I'm glad we could come that Thursday.

I had a lot of fun I mean it to in fact I had, very very very very very very very very, very much fun. I really enjoyed it at the bank & really really, really really really really, lot, lot.

Sincerely,

Ricky Frieder
Roosevelt School

Ricky Frieder's letter was one of many we received from students of Grade 3, Room 209, Roosevelt School, following their visit to Citizens Bank. Here students made friends with a computer and other facilities that will serve them well as they become citizens of the future.

You're welcome, Ricky.
And it's going very, very, very, very well down here! Really, really, really, really!

When Ricky Frieder of Roosevelt School wrote to thank us for playing host to his third grade class, he asked, "How is it going down there?"

We're happy to report to Ricky—and to you—that "it" is going very well, indeed.

The old year, 1973, was a happy year for us, thanks to you. You helped our assets increase by more than $27,000,000 in 1973. In fact, in the past four years, you've helped us grow by over $148,000,000—a whopping increase!

And that made 1973 a happy year for you, too.

Because you found our banking services the best around.

You found the right plan for you among our many different daily interest plans.....including high-yield savings bonds that pay up to 6½% on as little as $100.00.

You liked our two checking account plans, our exclusive new Photo Checks™ and our full range of personal loans for any worthwhile purpose.

You also liked our complete trust services including financial counseling and professional investment management.

You took out loans in six figures to help expand your business and used our data processing services to help you operate more profitably. You found that we did more than just lend you money, too.

Result? Our assets now top $305,000,000, and our total deposits make us Illinois' largest bank outside Chicago.

As we keep growing, we'll keep finding better ways to serve your needs...to help make for all of us, including our young friends like Ricky, a very, very, very, very HAPPY NEW YEAR!

WE'LL PAY YOU TO LEARN A MARKETABLE SKILL! (NIGHT SHIFT)
That's right! If you are a mechanically inclined high school graduate desirous of learning a technical job, we would be interested in talking with you concerning apprenticeship training in our Plastic Molding Department. You'll learn how to operate plastic molding presses, set them up and trouble-shoot molding problems. You'll also learn the characteristics of a wide variety of Thermoset and Thermoplastic materials. IF YOU WANT SUCCESS!

Real Success is a direct result of knowledge & hard work. I would be interested in talking to some young men who have been selling for 2 or 3 yrs. & have achieved some degree of success, yet are not satisfied with the results of their efforts.

By definition of a complete salesman is that individual who is a creative prospector who can make a professional demonstration & has the ability to close sales. Our Company has two protective territories open for two men who have gained some knowledge in direct sales & are not afraid of the sacrifices that success demands. The income available is considerable but you can be the judge of that.

A POTLUCK WELCOME!

What better time for old friends and neighbors to show off their culinary skills than at a new-neighbor party. Moving blues vanish for the newcomers with good food and hospitality while conversation flows and friendships blossom. Make it easy on the hostess with a planned potluck buffet. A little organization adds up to smooth sailing at a co-op party such as this. Plan a basic menu, then let each neighbor select which dish she'd like to bring. Set up the buffet with hearty casseroles, salads, and desserts plus a hot spiced tea punch to chase mid-winter chills.

Convenience foods plus creativity offer a head-start when cooking for a group. Canned or packaged pastas excel as inexpensive foods, combining well with vegetables or small amounts of meats for colorful, bubbling casseroles. Canned cling peaches add goodness to an unique salad tray, made unusually nutritious with high protein, high vitamin Fruit and Tuna salad molds. Pitted prunes, combined with a convenient spice cake mix, go well in a popular family dessert. Plentiful peach slices join forces with ever ready pie crust sticks for a brilliant fruit cobbler dessert.

Tea, beverage of versatility, has the ability to blend with spices for a hot invigorating punch.

This type of party is so simple, inexpensive and so much fun, you'll want to round up the neighbors often for all kinds of reasons.

WELCOME PUNCH

- 5 quarts water
- 12 cinnamon sticks (2 inches long)
- 15 teabags or 1/2 cup loose tea
- 3 cups orange juice
- 3 tablespoons whole cloves
- 1 1/2 cups lemon juice
- 2 cups honey

Bring water to a full rolling boil. Pour over tea and spices, cover and let stand for 5 minutes. Strain into a large container. Add fruit juices and honey. Stir until well-blended and keep warm. When ready to serve, pour into a large pitcher and place on candle warmer. Ladle into individual mugs. Garnish with a cinnamon stick stuck through a lemon slice. Makes about twenty-five servings.

INSTANT TEA FOR A CROWD

Bring 4 quarts freshly drawn cold water to a full rolling boil. Pour over 1/2 measuring cup instant tea. Stir well to dissolve. Makes about twenty-five servings.

CALIFORNIA SALAD TRAY

- 2 cans (16 oz.) cling peach halves
- 1 can (16 oz.) pear slices
- Bottled Italian dressing
- 1 package (12 oz.) pitted prunes
- Cheddar cheese
- Monterey Jack cheese
- Grapes
- Lettuce
- Fruited Tuna Molds

Marinate peaches and pears in dressing and stuff pitted prunes with cheese. Rinse grapes well. Drain. Line tray with lettuce. Arrange grapes in center. Place salad molds around grapes. Place marinated peaches and pears on tray. Arrange stuffed prunes. Keep refrigerated until serving time.

Fruited Tuna Molds:

- 1 can (17 oz.) fruit cocktail
- 1 can (7 oz.) tuna
- 2 envelopes (1 tablespoon, each) unflavored gelatin
- 3 cups tomato juice
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon celery salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire
- 5 drops Tabasco sauce
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- Water cress

Drain fruit cocktail and tuna. Soften 1 package gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Combine 2 cups tomato juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and seasonings in saucepan. Bring to boil. Add softened gelatin. Simmer 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in fruit cocktail. Fill 1/2 cup individual molds half full with mixture. Chill to set.

Combine tuna and mayonnaise. Soften 1 package gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Bring remaining 1 cup tomato juice and lemon juice to boil. Add softened gelatin. Simmer until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in tuna mixture. Pour into molds over jelled tomato fruit mixture. Refrigerate until set. Unmold to serve on California Salad Tray. Garnish with water cress. Makes ten individual molds.

BAKED RAVIOLI DINNER

- 1/2 can (12 oz.) luncheon meat
- 1/2 lb. Mozzarella, shredded
- 1 tablespoon shortening
- 1 cup fresh broccoli flowerets
- 1 cup chopped bell peppers
- 1 tablespoon soft butter or margarine
- 3/4 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons breadcrumbs
- 2 cans (15 oz.) ravioli
- 1/4 cup water

Cut luncheon meat into triangles 1/4-inch thick. Sauté in shortening until lightly browned. Add peppers and onions, sauté until golden. Remove from heat, add two cans ravioli and water. Stir lightly. Turn into 1 1/2 quart greased baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes. Arrange Mozzarella on top of mixture during last ten minutes of baking. Blanch broccoli for five minutes; drain. Combine broccoli with butter or margarine and breadcrumbs. Arrange broccoli on top of ravioli. Serves six.

SPAGHETTI FRIENDSHIP RING

- 2 packages (19 1/2 oz.) spaghetti dinner with meat sauce
- 2 packages (10 oz.) frozen, chopped spinach
- 1 1/2 cups chopped onions
- 1 jar (4 oz.) pimientos, chopped
- 1/4 cup margarine
- 3 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms or mushrooms, drained
- 1 jar (4 1/2 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
- 1 tablespoon oil

Preheat oven for 375 degrees. Cook spaghetti according to package directions. Combine frozen spinach and onions in a saucepan containing 1 1/2 cups boiling water. Simmer until spinach is completely separated; drain. In a large bowl or pot, combine cooked spaghetti, spinach, pimiento, packaged canned cheese, margarine, and eggs. Toss with fork. Spoon into one well-greased 8 1/2 cup ring mold, pat lightly. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes. Cool ten minutes. Run knife along edge and center of mold to loosen spaghetti. Unmold on large serving platter.

Heat sauce in saucepan. Sauté mushrooms in oil for five minutes, drain. Add to sauce. Simmer sauce and mushrooms together for ten minutes. Serve over spaghetti ring. Serves eight to ten.

SPICY PRUNE CAKE

- 1 cup cut-up pitted prunes
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 package spice cake mix
- 1 can (6 ounce) orange juice concentrate
- Powdered sugar

Simmer prunes in water for 5 minutes. Cool. Follow package directions for mixing cake using orange juice concentrate for part of liquid. Fold in prunes. Bake in 13x9x2-inch baking pan according to package directions. Dust with powdered sugar. Cool. Cut diagonally to form diamonds.

GOLDEN PEACH COBBLER

- 2 cans (29 oz.) cling peach slices
- 1 cup marmalade
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 teaspoons brandy extract
- 2 pie crust sticks

Drain peaches, reserving syrup. Combine 1/2 cup reserved peach syrup with marmalade. Combine cornstarch with 1/4 cup reserved peach syrup and add to marmalade mixture. Stir in brandy extract. Roll out pie crust thicker than usual. Cut in 1-inch strips. Turn peach slices into 1 1/2 quart shallow baking dish. Pour marmalade mixture over fruit and top with lattice of pastry strips. Bake at 450 degrees for 30 minutes. Serves eight to ten.

Send cookies off to college

If you have a young one away at school — especially a freshman — why not send a "care" package? Bar cookies travel very well and don't dry out as quickly as other types. Below is a recipe for Cinnamon Apricot Bars, rich with chopped apricots and walnuts, fragrant with a bit of cinnamon. They're easy to make and just chewy enough to keep them from shattering in transit.

Equally yummy are Choco-Sesame Crunch Bars, cookies studded with semi-sweet chocolate pieces and generously sprinkled with sesame seed.

If you're in an experimental mood — or your student loves one spice more than another, you may want to change the spicing of these cookies. Almost any favorite sweet spice can be used in either — nutmeg, mace, cardamom, cloves, allspice, coriander, anise or ginger. In varying amounts, of course. Cloves, mace or cardamom are much more potent than cinnamon, so you'd use half as much. Coriander is quite mild and you'd probably use more than cinnamon. If you prefer blends, either apple pie or pumpkin pie spice can be used in amounts to compare with cinnamon.

CINNAMON APRICOT BARS

- 2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour, divided
- 1/2 cup granulated sugar
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons unweetened cocoa
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1 package (6 oz.) dried apricots, finely chopped
- 1 cup chopped walnuts

In a large bowl combine 1 1/4 cups of the flour and the granulated sugar. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs, using a pastry blender or two knives. Pack evenly into a greased 13x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, combine remaining 1 1/4 cup flour with cocoa, cinnamon, baking powder and salt; set aside. Beat eggs with brown sugar; blend in vanilla extract and reserved flour mixture. Stir in apricots (about 1 1/4 cups) and walnuts; spread over baked layer. Bake for 30 minutes or until a cake tester inserted into top layer comes out clean; cool in pan. Cut into 48 bars. Yield: 4 dozen bars.

CHOCO-SESAME CRUNCH BARS

- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
- 1/2 teaspoon pure almond extract
- 1 package (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
- 1/2 cup sesame seed

In a large bowl cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Stir in flour and salt just until blended. Add vanilla and almond extracts along with the chocolate pieces; mix well until blended. Spread evenly in an ungreased 15 1/2 x 11 1/2 x 1-inch jelly-roll pan. Sprinkle with sesame seed. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for 20 minutes or until light brown. While warm and before removing from pan, cut into 48 bars. Let cool in pan on rack. Yield: 4 dozen bars.

Skillful mixing of pieces key to chop suey casserole

Chop suey means "mixed pieces," the name for this Chinese-American dish having derived from the Cantonese tsap sui or the Mandarin Chinese equivalent cha sui. How good it is when brought to the table depends upon your skill in putting the pieces together.

A favorite of ours is Chop Suey casserole, originally suggested to me by a reader from Michigan. However, I have made several modifications of the recipe.

Remove skin and debone a chicken breast. Cut into small squares. Dice 1/4 pound lean beef round or sirloin and 1/4 pound lean pork. In a wok (or skillet) put 2 tablespoons peanut oil and brown meat.

Add 1 medium onion, chopped, 1 stalk of celery, sliced, and 1/2 cup chicken broth. Simmer until meat is tender. While meat is simmering, cook half of a 12-ounce package of medium noodles according to package directions.

Butter a large casserole dish and put in the meat, onion and celery. Drain thoroughly a No. 2 can of bean sprouts and a 3-ounce can of bamboo shoots, mix and spread over meat. Now, in layers top with a can of cream of mushroom soup (undiluted), the cooked noodles, and a can of cream of chicken soup (undiluted).

Overall sprinkle 2 tablespoons soy sauce, then top with crushed potato chips. Place in a preheated 350 degree oven, and cook for 1 hour. Serves 6 to 8 people.

BY THE WAY, if you're never tried cooked Chinese cabbage (Nappa) I recommend this vegetable with its long, pale-green and white crinkly leaves.

Thoroughly wash a good-sized head and shred coarsely. Discard the bottom, tough part of the head. Select a saucepan large enough to hold the cabbage. Put 1 inch of water in the pan, add 1 teaspoon salt and bring to boil. Add the cabbage, cover and cook rapidly for 5 minutes (no more). Add 3 tablespoons butter, toss and put into a heated serving dish. Enough for 4 to 6 people.

ABBY'S EVERY DAY COOKING FOR GIRLS & BOYS

POULET AUX FINES HERBES

- 5 lb. fryers, cut up
- 2 T. each, oil and butter
- salt, freshly ground pepper
- 2 T. shallots, minced
- 3/4 c. condensed chicken stock
- 3/4 c. Vermouth
- 1 bouillon cube
- 1 t. thyme
- 1/2 t. chervil
- 1/2 t. tarragon
- 2 T. chopped fresh parsley
- 1 t. butter
- 1 t. flour
- Additional chopped parsley

Wash and dry chicken well. Brown deeply in oil and butter. Season generously. Remove from pan, set aside. Brown shallots. Add stock, wine, bouillon cube, and herbs, including 2 T. parsley. Add chicken, simmer until tender (30 min.)

Remove chicken to platter or casserole. thicken gravy with flour and butter which have been combined into a paste, simmer pour over chicken. sprinkle additional parsley. If chicken is to be reheated, do it slowly, do not overcook, taste occasionally.

I suggest Boursin and/or Rambol with almonds for your drinks, a marvelous risotto (rice) or wild rice if you want to be tres elegante (sold by the handful from barrels), broiled tomato halves romaine salad, and fresh berries—frasesou framboises—strawberries or raspberries—for a fantastic finale!

You can find everything at Treasure Island

You know-and I know-that anyone who wants quality fun in the kitchen goes to Treasure Island. Treasure Island has always been a fantastic ethnic experience. No matter what your choice—they have everything!

So it's only natural that Treasure Island will be taking trips to various countries and their cuisines. Our first stop is France, and the recipes appearing each week will have been tested in my kitchen. These recipes and menu suggestions will include as many food specials as possible (permit us some occasional splurges!) We'll try to be interesting despite the rising food costs! The recipes will be available in the stores, and watch for the announcement of our superb French cooking demonstration you won't want to miss—That is, if you're a serious cook but want to have more fun in the kitchen. This way we're all bound to have more fun.

Mrs. Bill Siegel

She's noted for her dinner rolls

by LOIS SEILER

Delicious homemade dinner and pecan rolls have made Mrs. Bill Siegel of Buffalo Grove a noteworthy cook among her family and friends.

Sandra Siegel candidly admits that she never succeeded in making good bread, but one practice session with the roll recipe brought her instant success.

"The secret to the exceptional texture of the dinner rolls is kneading each roll individually," Sandra explained. She acquired this recipe from her aunt and now makes them for all family functions, her own entertaining, and always keeps a supply in the freezer. The recipe makes four dozen so she wraps them in packages of six for freezing.

Her pecan rolls are truly a labor of love, but are such a favorite with her husband and daughters Janet, 12, and Phyllis, 10, that Sandra considers them well worth the effort. The rolls are light, sweet and very caramelly. Sandra serves them for breakfast or as a dessert with coffee and has used them for church meetings and other social functions.

Another family favorite is her appealing Beef Rolls Sauterne. In this recipe, meat balls are simmered in a savory gravy made from bouillon and sauterne seasoned with onion, celery, mushrooms and herbs. It may be served over noodles or rice and is ideal for a family meal, a potluck supper or a buffet.

Sandra's dinner rolls are a good accompaniment for this dish, along with a cole slaw made from an old family recipe. Sour cream dressing is tossed with shredded cabbage just before serving. Sliced bananas and pineapple tidbits or grapes may be added to this economical slaw which makes a nice change from lettuce.

DINNER ROLLS

2 cups milk
1 cup water
2/3 cup melted butter
4 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup sugar
10 cups flour, unsifted
2 packages dry yeast
2 eggs
In a saucepan, heat to lukewarm the milk, water, butter, salt and sugar.

Put five cups flour into a large bowl. Sprinkle yeast around the sides and make a well in the middle of the flour. Into the well add the eggs and saucepan mixture. Mix with electric mixer until smooth.

Gradually add the remainder of the flour a little at a time, stirring by hand with a lifting motion. When all the flour is mixed in or the dough leaves the sides of the bowl and stays together in a ball, knead on a floured board adding as little flour as needed. Knead until dough is soft and elastic.

Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease the top. Let rise until double in bulk. (Caution: do not hurry or force the rising or the rolls will have a coarse texture.) Rising will take from one to two hours.

Do not punch down dough. Holding bowl on its side, allow dough to gently ease onto floured surface. With a sharp knife, mark the middle of the dough. Cut off chunks for 48 individual rolls.

Knead each roll in the following manner: place a round of dough in left hand, press left thumb through the middle and with the right hand gently stretch outside portion of dough over thumb while pulling thumb away. Turn dough 1/4 turn around in your hand and do this over again about 10 or 12 times. Round the dough in the palm of your hand so it has a nice, smooth shape and place on a greased jelly roll pan — 24 rolls per pan.

When all the rolls are placed on the pan, put some shortening on the top of a finger and gently dab the sides of each roll so that after baking they will break apart easily.

Let rise until the rolls touch each other on all sides (not too big.) Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until golden. Check for doneness by pressing top of rolls and lifting with spatula to see if bottom is baked. Yield: 4 dozen rolls. They freeze well wrapped in foil in desired quantities. Reheat in foil to serve.

PECAN ROLLS

4 1/4 to 4 3/4 cups all-purpose flour
2 regular cakes compressed yeast or 2 packages dry yeast
1/4 cup lukewarm water
1/2 cup sugar

2/3 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs or 4 yolks, beaten
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, packed
1/2 cup butter or margarine, melted and cooled
1/2 teaspoon mace or ground cardamom (optional)

Sift flour once, then measure. Crumble compressed yeast or sprinkle dry yeast into lukewarm water. Stir in one tea-

SANDRA SIEGEL'S dinner rolls have a soft, bread-like texture as well as a soft crust. Since the rolls are large she figures on one per person.

Salads pack vitamin punch

This is the time of year when more and more persons keep popping vitamin C pills hoping to avoid the common cold. One pleasant way to get added vitamin C plus more iron and minerals to keep one healthier is to eat salads and green vegetables every day.

A bitey green salad using fresh ingredients that go with meat, fish or poultry, is a Spinach and Endive Salad. Another vegetable treat is Fresh Brussels Sprouts Creole. Try to coax non-salad eaters into the habit by encouraging them to try at least a few bites each time a salad is served.

SPINACH AND ENDIVIE SALAD

1 clove garlic, cut in half (or one green onion diced)
1/4 cup olive or salad oil
1 bunch curly endive
1/4 pound fresh raw spinach
3/4 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
Add garlic to oil and let stand 1 hour.

Remove garlic from oil and rub over inside of wooden salad bowl. Wash and dry endive and spinach thoroughly. Tear into bite-size pieces and place in salad bowl. Add remaining ingredients to garlic oil and pour over salad. Toss lightly and serve. Makes 6 servings.

FRESH BRUSSELS SPROUTS CREOLE

1 quart Brussels sprouts
1/4 cup finely chopped fresh onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons oil, butter or margarine
2 cups diced fresh tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon poultry seasoning
Wash and trim Brussels sprouts. Soak 20 minutes in cold water using 1 quart water and 1 teaspoon salt. Drain and set aside. In skillet, cook onion and green pepper in hot oil until tender. Add tomatoes, seasonings and Brussels sprouts. Stir and cook 5 minutes, uncovered. Cover and continue cooking 10 to 15 minutes or until sprouts are tender. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. Siegel shares successful roll recipes

spoon sugar and let soften ten minutes.

Put milk and remainder of sugar and salt into a saucepan and scald. Cool to lukewarm in a 4-quart mixing bowl; stir in yeast mixture and beaten eggs. Add half the flour and beat hard with rotary beater or electric mixer. Then beat in cooled shortening, rind and mace or cardamom, if desired. Gradually stir in as much remaining flour as needed for dough to handle well, reserving at least 1/4 cup for kneading. Mix well. Cover, let stand ten minutes to stiffen and then turn out onto board or pastry cloth sprinkled with remaining 1/4 cup flour. Knead thoroughly, at least five minutes. The dough is soft, but its richness prevents it from adhering to board if kneading is done fast. The dough must be soft to make delicate, flakey rolls.

Place dough in a lightly greased bowl; turn once to bring greased side up. Cover with a damp cloth and let rise in a warm place until double, 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Punch down, turn over, cover and let rise again until double, about 30 minutes.

Pan Spread:

1 1/3 cups moist brown sugar, packed
1/2 cup soft butter
12 teaspoons white corn syrup
Pecan halves or chopped pecans
Grease two dozen muffin cups or foil cups. If foil cups are used, place on two cookie sheets.

Cream brown sugar and butter until smooth and place 1 tablespoon of the mixture in bottom of each muffin cup. Then add 1/2 teaspoon syrup and pecan halves or chopped pecans to each cup.

Turn dough out on lightly-floured board or pastry cloth, round up, cover with bowl and let rest ten minutes. Meanwhile, assemble the following ingredients:

1/2 cup soft butter
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
Melted butter

Roll half of the dough into a 15 by 8-inch rectangle, about 1/3-inch thick. Spread with butter and sprinkle with sugar which has been mixed with cinnamon. Starting at wide side, roll up snugly like a jelly roll, stretching dough slightly while rolling. Moisten edge and pinch to roll to seal. Cut into 1/4-inch slices. Place cut-side down into prepared muffin cups. Brush with melted butter. Repeat with remaining half of dough.

Cover lightly and let rise in a warm place until double, about one hour. Bake at 375 degrees for 25 minutes. Remove from oven; let stand a half-minute. Loosen edges with a knife and turn upside-down onto serving plate. Hold pan over rolls a minute for syrup to drain out on rolls. Serve warm, nut-side up. Yield: 24 rolls.

BEEF BALLS SAUTERNE

1 pound ground chuck
1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
2/3 cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2/3 cup evaporated milk (1 small can)
1/2 cup butter
1 1/2 cups thinly-sliced celery
1 cup sliced green onions
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced

1 beef bouillon cube
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1/2 cup sauterne
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/2 teaspoon marjoram
1/4 cup flour

Combine ground beef, bread crumbs, 2/3 cup onion, salt, pepper and evaporated milk. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Shape into 12 meat balls. Melt butter in large skillet. Add meat balls and brown well on all sides. Push balls to one side.

Add celery and green onions and continue cooking until onion begins to look transparent. Remove from heat and add mushrooms, bouillon cube which has been dissolved in boiling water (or a 10-ounce can condensed beef bouillon), sauterne, thyme and marjoram. Mix lightly.

Blend flour with 1/4 cup water and stir into liquid, blending well. Heat mixture to boiling, then reduce to simmering. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. Serve over noodles or rice. Serves 6.

COLE SLAW

1/2 cup sugar
Vinegar
1/2 pint sour cream
1 medium head cabbage
Sliced bananas
Canned pineapple tidbits or halved white grapes

A few days before serving, mix dressing ingredients. Place sugar in a small bowl and slowly pour in just enough vinegar to completely moisten sugar. Stir in sour cream. By storing a day or more before using, the sour cream gets a chance to thicken and the dressing is not watery.

Shred cabbage with a sharp knife. (Can do ahead and store in plastic bag.) Just before serving, put cabbage in a bowl and add sliced bananas and pineapple tidbits or grapes. Add dressing and gently mix. Serves 8 to 10.

Ways to avoid buffet bacteria

Energy shortage or not, don't depend on candlepower to keep food hot on the buffet tables, cautions Consumer News, newsletter from Uncle Sam's Office of Consumer Affairs.

Small candles used in warming units may not produce enough heat to keep food at "safe" temperatures. Ways to avoid buffet bacteria also include:

—Keep hot foods above 140 degrees, especially casseroles containing seafood, poultry and meat, beans, eggs, cheese and other dairy products. Use electric frypans, hot trays or chafing dishes.

—Keep cold foods chilled below 40 degrees, especially cream pies and other desserts containing eggs, milk and cream, and salads made with seafood, poultry or red meat. Chill both the food and the serving dishes first in the refrigerator and, if possible, place them on the buffet over bowls of crushed ice.

—Don't keep any food, cold or hot, at room temperature more than two or three hours. A groaning board may look hospitable but it can leave your guests groaning from the effects of food poisoning. Instead, keep only limited quantities of food on the table and refill serving dishes often.

Hearty black bean soup is well worth your time

A friend of mine once concluded that, in his experience, the quality of the soup was often a good indication of the quality of the food to follow. Granted, any good chef would scorn the idea of serving anything but carefully prepared homemade soups from flavorful stock. And if pressured, a clever chef could probably create a flavorful soup by combining quality processed products with a few carefully selected additions of the "real thing."

However, any attempt to disguise those inexpensive canned soups we often find at lunch seldom fool even the least sophisticated diner. Still, some restaurants try. At a recent banquet-type dinner the chef had boldly left these little paste letters floating around in a quite watery soup base.

This is not to say that the inexpensive canned soups do not have a place in everyday family menus. They're great for lunches, sauces and a limitless variety of uses. Some of the better brands can also be served with complete confidence at your most formal dinner party. Still, the flavor seldom compares with a hearty homemade soup.

The only expense to consider when making homemade soups is your time. Good soups generally take a few hours. But seldom do they require constant attention or expensive ingredients.

The following recipe for Black Bean Soup comes from the Coach House in New York. It is reprinted from "Nobody Ever Tells You These Things about Food and Drink," by Helen McCully. She refers to it as "the best Black Bean Soup I ever tasted."

THE COACH HOUSE BLACK BEAN SOUP

4 cups black beans
3 stalks celery, finely chopped
3 large onions, finely chopped

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter

2 1/2 tablespoons flour

1/2 cup finely chopped parsley

Rind and bone of a smoked ham

3 leeks, finely sliced

4 bay leaves

1 tablespoon salt

1/2 teaspoon freshly ground pepper

1 cup dry Madeira wine

2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped

Pick over and wash the beans, cover with cold water, and soak overnight.

Drain. Place beans in a large kettle, add 5 quarts fresh, cold water, bring to a boil, then simmer for 1 1/2 hours.

Meanwhile, melt butter in a second large kettle and saute the celery and onions for about 8 minutes or until tender.

Blend in the flour smoothly, add the parsley and cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute. At this point, stir in the beans and all their liquid. Add the rind and ham bone, leeks, salt and pepper. Simmer over a very low fire for 6 hours.

Remove and discard rind, ham bone, and bay leaves. Force the bean mixture and broth through a fine sieve. Stir in the Madeira, bring to a boil. Remove from fire immediately and mix in the finely chopped eggs.

Serve in hot soup plates with a thin slice of fresh lemon floating on top. This makes a generous quantity of an extraordinary soup that should accommodate even a large, hungry family for at least two meals.

Average prices showed a general decline this week in the weekly food-price survey taken Monday. Ground beef remained stable, however, pork chops reflected a noticeable decrease of 10 cents. Whole broiler fryers declined five cents while bacon and ocean perch fillets rose seven and two cents, respectively.

The average cost of milk and eggs remained stable but slight, one-cent decreases were noted for cheese, margarine and butter.

Fresh produce prices decreased this week. Lettuce and celery each went down five cents and white potatoes two cents. One-cent increases were recorded for processed tomatoes, processed pears and frozen orange juice. Cereals and dry groceries remained stable with the exception of jelly which dropped three cents.

Recorded food prices are based on averages obtained from four area supermarkets to measure general trends.

Meatless dishes save fuel, money

by JEANNE LESEM

Meatless recipes from the great De-precession are helping at least one woman cope with today's high meat prices.

Writing in NRTA Journal, Erica Planck tells of the recipe-sharing that went on among her neighbors in Buffalo, N. Y., during the 1930s. The journal is published by and for the National Retired Teachers Assn., Long Beach, Calif.

The following recipes from Ms. Planck's article are fuel as well as money-savers.

The time needed for cooking tomato soybeans can be halved if you use a pressure cooker for preliminary step. Cover 1 cup of dried soybeans with 4 cups of water, bring to boil and boil at least 1 1/2 hours, or until tender; or pressure cook them, following cooker manufacturer's directions.

Drin, reserving liquid for soup. Alternate layers of beans with layers of cooked, whole-kernel corn in a baking dish, using 2 cups of corn. Mix 2 1/2 cups of stewed tomatoes with 1 teaspoon each of sugar and salt and pour over beans and corn. Top with 1 cup of soft bread crumbs, sprinkle with 1/2 cup of grated cheddar cheese and paprika. Bake 30 minutes in preheated 350-degree oven.

QUICK-COOKING split peas make these croquettes a time and energy saver. Cook 1 cup of the peas in 2 1/2 cups of boiling water until tender. Drain and force through a sieve. Add 2 tablespoons of butter, 1/2 teaspoon of sage and a dash of nutmeg. Let cool, then stir in 1 tablespoon of grated onion, 1 egg, beaten and 2 tablespoons of heavy cream or other liquid. Chill until firm. Shape into croquettes, roll in wheat germ or bread crumbs, using total of 1/2 cup. Fry in hot oil until browned.

Tuna in tomato aspic needs no cooking at all. Soften 1 envelope of unflavored gelatin in 1/4 cup of cold water 5 minutes. Place over low heat and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add 1 1/2 cups of tomato juice, 2 tablespoons of vinegar, 2 teaspoons of lemon juice and a dash of salt. Chill until mixture starts to thicken, then mix in 1 7-ounce can of tuna, drained and flaked and 1/2 cup diced celery. Pour into 4 molds and chill until set. Serve on lettuce leaves with sliced egg garnish.

FISH CAKES make good use of leftovers. Combine 1/2 cup of flaked cooked fish with 1/2 teaspoon each of minced onion and lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste, 1 egg, slightly beaten, and 1/2 cup of cold mashed potatoes. Mix well, form into cakes, coat with 1 tablespoon of flour and brown on both sides in 2 tablespoons of shortening.

Onion cheese pie bakes in only 30 minutes. To complete the meal, serve a mixed green or a cooked vegetable salad and sliced apples baked in a covered dish at the same time as the pie. Melt 4 tablespoons of margarine and mix with 1 1/2 cups of cracker crumbs. Press mixture on bottom and sides of a pie pan. Sauté 3 onions, thinly sliced, in 2 tablespoons of margarine until tender and soft. Place the cooked onions in a crust. Beat 2 eggs with 1 cup of milk, 1 teaspoon of salt, 1/4 teaspoon of pepper and 1/2 cup sharp cheddar cheese. Heat gently until cheese melts. Pour over onions, sprinkle with 1/2 cup of cracker crumbs and bake 30 minutes in preheated 325-degree oven. Serve hot.

WARM GRATED apple pie in graham cracker crust would be a good dessert to follow eggs in tomato cases. They can be baked simultaneously, but the pie should be started first, because it takes longer to cook. To make the main dish, cut tops from 4 small tomatoes and scoop out the pulp, saving it for the sauce. Prebake tomato shells 10 minutes in a dish containing 1-inch of water in a preheated 350-degree oven.

Remove, cool slightly, place 1 teaspoon of butter in each tomato, season with salt and pepper and carefully break 1 egg into each tomato shell. Return to oven until eggs are firm but not hard. While they bake melt 2 tablespoons of butter in a small saucepan, stir in 2 tablespoons of flour and 2 cups of milk and cook, stirring, until thick. Add 1 teaspoon each of worcestershire sauce and sugar, 1/8 teaspoon of celery salt, 2 teaspoons of minced onion, chopped, drained tomato pulp and salt and pepper to taste. Serve the tomato cases on toast and top with sauce.

Baked cauliflower is a protein plus

Cauliflower is an easy vegetable to prepare and makes a good nibbling vegetable raw or cut up in a salad. It also is excellent pickled. Try it as a stretch dish with a high protein cheese topping and baked.

BAKED CAULIFLOWER

1 medium head cauliflower
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
3/4 cup milk
1 cup shredded gouda

cheese

Cook whole cauliflower in boiling salted water for 8 to 10 minutes or until tender but do not overcook, drain. Meanwhile, stir soup in saucepan until smooth. Blend in milk and cheese. Heat until cheese is melted and sauce is smooth. Place cauliflower in shallow buttered casserole. Pour sauce over vegetable. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until hot and bubbling. If desired garnish with buttered bread crumbs or crumbled cooked bacon. Makes 6 servings.

Quick bread features pears

Winter pears from Oregon, Washington and California add variety to fresh fruits available for eating out-of-hand, in salads or for baking. Something special is a Sour Cream Pear Bread which is a moist and flavorful quick bread to go with morning coffee, for an afternoon snack or into a lunch box. Bake it in a large loaf pan or make smaller individual loaves which are the right size for gift giving. Shut-ins or older persons will be pleased with such a tasty, nutritional gift.

SOUR CREAM PEAR BREAD

1 1/2 cups diced fresh Western winter pears
1 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup melted butter
3/4 cup dairy sour cream
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon cardamom
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 cup finely chopped walnuts
Core and dice pears, but do not peel. Combine brown sugar, melted butter, sour cream and eggs. Stir until well blended. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder, soda and cardamom. Stir into sour cream mixture, mixing until thoroughly moistened. Add grated lemon peel, pears and nuts. Pour into 1 (9x5-inch) or 4 (5 1/2x3 1/4-inch) loaf pans. Let stand 20 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 15 minutes (1 hour for small loaves), or until bread tests done.

100 residents oppose site for new sanitary landfill

by JOE FRANZ

More than 100 residents in the Horatio Gardens and Pekara subdivisions have presented a petition to Buffalo Grove objecting to a proposal to annex property in unincorporated Vernon Township for use as a sanitary landfill.

The residents presented their petition last week and were represented Tuesday night at a meeting of a special committee that has been appointed by the village to study the landfill proposal.

The 96-acre tract proposed for the landfill is bordered on the south by Busch Road and is on both sides of the Soo Line R.R. tracks. It is north of Horatio Gardens and northwest of Pekara. Both subdivisions are within two blocks and are the only residential areas in the immediate vicinity.

THE HOMEOWNERS are opposed to the landfill because it would be located only two blocks from Aptakisic-Tripp School. Garbage trucks from throughout the area probably would be dumping at the site, and the residents said this would create an increased volume of traffic.

In addition, they said the heavy trucks would severely damage roads and could make travel on them unsafe. However, Browning-Ferris Industries Inc., the company proposing the landfill, said it will post a bond with the Vernon Township Highway Department to cover any damage to the roads.

The firm also said it will attempt to discourage garbage trucks from passing the school on Weiland Road. Since most of the trucks would be under contract to Browning-Ferris, their routes can be easily regulated.

One way of preventing independent scavengers from traveling on certain routes would be by placing weight limitations on selected routes, according to one village official.

KENNETH Goodwin of Browning-Ferris has said the landfill will be operated in compliance with local, state and federal regulations. A number of precautions would be taken, he said, to prevent the landfill from becoming a public nuisance or health hazard.

Village officials have said they would seek to have the firm's license revoked in the event the landfill was not being operated properly.

According to Goodwin, garbage at the site would be spread, compacted and covered with dirt at the end of each day. This would help control flies, birds, mosquitoes and rodents at the site, he said.

In addition, the landfill would be surrounded by a fence to prevent loose paper from blowing off the property. Workers also would collect all scattered refuse in the area each day and deposit it in the landfill, Goodwin said.

SINCE BROWNING-FERRIS would not be allowed on the site, he said the landfill should not create any unpleasant odors or air pollution. A berm also would be constructed around the landfill so it would not be visible to the outside.

Soil tests prior to selection of the site show that surface and subsurface water supplies will be unaffected by the landfill. Sanitary sewers would be installed under the landfill to catch rainwater running through the trash. The sewers would prevent water from entering the ground and contaminating the water supply.

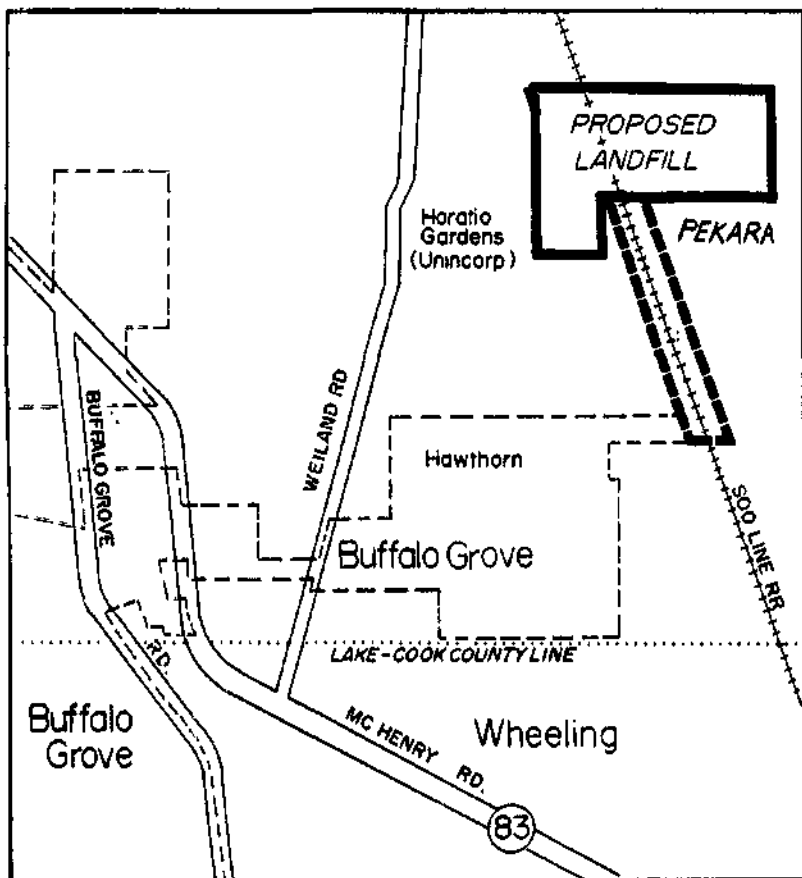

Vents also would be installed at the landfill to allow the escape of methane gas. The flammable gas is formed when garbage decomposes.

Trustee Clarice Rech, chairman of the landfill committee, said yesterday her group is still studying the proposal and will make a recommendation to the village board. "What our recommendation will be I don't know," she said. "Some members of the committee have severe reservations about the landfill and others think it can be done as long as stringent controls are enforced."

THE COMMITTEE'S recommendation will be considered by the village board in a workshop Feb. 19. Prior to that, Browning-Ferris plans to meet with the homeowners in Pekara and Horatio Gardens.

Goodwin said landfills, such as the one proposed, will be needed in order to prevent "a solid waste crisis." He said his firm plans to lease the site from its owners for 10 years, the expected life of the landfill.

Once the landfill is closed, part of the property probably will be donated to the village for use as a park and the remainder will be used for industrial development, according to village officials.

THIS MAP SHOWS the relationship between the Horatio Gardens and Pekara subdivisions to the proposed landfill. Residents of those subdivisions have presented the Village of Buffalo Grove with a petition opposing the landfill.

Heitkotter florist shop still lacks financing

Buffalo Grove has given tentative approval to a flower shop on the old Heitkotter Farm, but the person who made the proposal is having difficulty obtaining financing to purchase the property.

Austin Brodman, owner of Jo-Ann's Country Flowers, 125 N. Buffalo Grove Rd., has asked the village for annexation and zoning so he can move his business to the farm. He plans to operate the business out of the barn and live in the farm house.

Brodman's attorney this week, however, asked village officials to defer action on the ordinances approving the project until his client gets the loan he needs to purchase the property. The delay was requested, he said, because the present owner of the property is not interested in annexing to the village should Brodman be unable to purchase the site.

In the event Brodman does get financing, he said a request will be made for the village board to follow through with the ordinances.

IN GIVING TENTATIVE approval to the project, the village board granted residential use with a special use permit to allow the flower shop.

Under the annexation agreement, Brodman has agreed not to build on or subdivide the property without village approval. The flower shop will utilize only existing facilities.

The four-acre site is on the west side of Ill. Rte. 83, south of Checker Drive, in unincorporated Lake County.

Jaycees to sponsor discussion on RTA

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees will sponsor a discussion tonight on the controversial Regional Transit Authority.

The community forum, open to the public, will begin at 8 p.m. at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. The discussion is part of Jaycee Week activities.

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, a proponent of the RTA, and State Rep. Donald Deuster, R-Mundelein, who opposes the RTA, will discuss the issue.

Jaycee Phil Ralston, Republican area chairman, will be moderator of the discussion.

Resident to quit leaky apartment

Jeanette LaCaeyse, 173 Wildwood Ln., is continuing to withhold her January rent while workmen complete repairs on her apartment.

Last week, Mrs. LaCaeyse was threatened with being locked out of her apartment because she was withholding rent. This week she has decided to move on her own accord, "as soon as I find an apartment."

Although repairmen have been working in the apartment for almost a week, Mrs. LaCaeyse said she did not think "it would be pleasant to be living here under the circumstances. If I can get out by the first of the month, I'll be happy to," she said.

MRS. LACAESSE decided to withhold her rent when a leaky pipe caused the bathroom ceiling to collapse. She said she also wanted the landlord, Donald

A DRAGON BY THE TAIL — Karen Adler tries to make last-minute repairs on a homemade dragon during a parade at Longfellow School yesterday. The parade was part of a Chinese New Year celebration throughout School Dist. 21.

Charge schoolbooks discriminate

Parents' group raps 'sexist materials'

A committee of School Dist. 21 parents tonight plans to ask the school board to stop the use of what the committee feels to be sexist materials in local schools.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The committee intends to request that the school board include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., and Linda Hays, 3215 N. Volz Dr., both of Arlington Heights, are scheduled to represent the committee in making the policy adoption request.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board will consider the following items:

- Proposed resolution for participating in a Regional Service Agency for handicapped children.

- Evaluation of the Temptron Surveillance System, a computerized monitoring system installed in local schools last fall to prevent fires and vandalism.

- Northwest Educational Cooperative Data Processing Center.

Following the regular business meeting, the board is scheduled to go into executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

Sears outlet to open by April 1

The new Sears catalog surplus store being built just west of the Dunhurst Shopping Center is scheduled to open by April 1.

Harry Linsky, developer of the Sears building and adjacent stores, said work on the building will be complete in the next month or six weeks. He said the store is planning a spring opening, although no date has been set.

The Sears project has been in the works for nearly three years. Linsky said despite some delays, construction is about 90 days ahead of schedule.

In addition to the new Sears store, Linsky said he is planning to build 60,000 square feet of store space adjacent to the building. He said he is currently negotiating with several well-known "desirable" firms to rent this space. He said he expects to announce these tenants in the near future.

Jerry Cohen, manager of the Sears outlet store now located in the Dunhurst Shopping Center, said the new store will provide shoppers with an expanded selection of merchandise and more convenient shopping facilities. The new store is about 2½ times the size of the current outlet operation.

Cohen said the opening of the new store is being planned so that "we'll close one night and open the next morning."

Linsky said the construction of the additional shopping center space probably will begin this spring. The proposed stores will be located just west of Jack London Junior High School.

CROSSROADS CLINIC workers will have to move out of their present facilities at 222 E. Hicks Pl., when the office lease expires in April. The building's owner, Pete Philippe, has told the clinic to move.

Looking for new Palatine location

Crossroads being forced from its 'home'

by JULIA BAUER
Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.

The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.

"We're going to try to look in Palatine" for a new clinic location, Mrs. Michelin said.

DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.

Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Philippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.

If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort," Finlayson said. That clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.

FINLAYSON is building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.

The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.

In the meantime, Mrs. Michelin will begin working full time as Crossroads

Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.

Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.

PALATINE TOWNSHIP auditors reaffirmed their funding decision after nearly 2½ hours of public discussion Tuesday at Sanborn School. Primary objections centered on the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives without parental consent. Objectors charged that the practice may encourage promiscuity and harm parent-child relationships.

Petitions bearing more than 3,100 signatures opposing township funding of the clinic were submitted at Tuesday's meeting.

Supporters of Crossroads emphasize the clinic's success at reaching teenagers by supplying vital health services to teens including the detection of venereal disease in youths who did not know they carried the disease.

ALL YOUTHS coming into the clinic are tested for syphilis and gonorrhea. Contraceptives, according to clinic spokesmen, are an important part of a program that also treats post-abortion medical problems and gives pregnancy tests. Minor infections, such as yeast and trichomonis, are also treated at the clinic.

Palatine Township officials added a restriction to their grant that none of the $5,000 be used to reimburse the birth control activities of the clinic. The funds may be used to purchase medical equipment and supplies for examining rooms.

RTA topic of forum

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees will also sponsor a discussion in the controversial Regional Transit Authority (RTA) as part of Jaycee Week activities.

The community forum, open to the public, is scheduled for 8 p.m. today at the village hall.

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Arlington Heights, a proponent of the RTA, and State Rep. Don Deuster, R-Mundelein, who opposed the RTA, will discuss the issue.

Phil Ralston, Republican area chairman, will moderate the discussion.

Stanis heads Girl Scout fund drive

Eugene Stanis, 146 Norman Ln., Wheeling, is local chairman of the Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council 1974 Sustaining Membership Enrollment drive, which begins Saturday.

Under the leadership of Stanis, troop enrollment chairmen will contact Girl Scout families in the next two weeks, soliciting funds to support all phases of the Girl Scout program in this area.

The goal for Northwest Cook County is $33,000. The Northwest Cook County Girl Scout Council includes 19 communities and serves 19,000 girls and adults.

Funds raised during the SME drive will supply about 7 per cent of the council budget, according to Clarine Hall, executive director of the Council.

"SME is our inflation-beater and budget-balancer," Mrs. Hall said. "Our job is to keep providing imaginative and outstanding year-round programs to Girl Scouts in this area at a modest cost, and SME gives us the supplementary income we need to maintain our standards in spite of inflation."

THE NORTHWEST COUNCIL is the second largest in the state. In addition to 768 troops of Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes and Senior scouts, the council serves more than 3000 adult volunteers through training, workshops and professional support and guidance.

More than 500 girls from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove attended scout camps last summer. Because the council believes no girl should be deprived of a camping opportunity for financial reasons, a camping fund is available to registered Girl Scouts.

To fulfill scouting's basic commitment to community service and enlarged horizons, "extra mile" summer caravans set up day camps last summer in the inner city and an additional day camp is staffed by older scouts of the Northwest Opportunity Center. Three girls from Wheeling and Buffalo Grove volunteered for these camps last year.

Girl scouting also can mean international travel opportunities. In recent years, local girls have visited Canada, Mexico, Wyoming and Washington, D.C., on a few of the council-sponsored trips.

LAST YEAR, hundreds of service hours were given to the community by its Girl Scouts. The 1,454 scouts in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove helped with the United Fund balloon sale, made Christmas ornaments for the Wheeling community tree and collected eye glasses for the Lions Club. They also filled "patient packs" for Northwest Community Hospital and entertained at Addolorata Village.

"Through our programs and opportunities, we offer each girl rich and varied opportunities for growth," Mrs. Hall said. "They learn responsibility and leadership, they develop self-awareness and lasting values; in every sense of the word, the Girl Scouts are more relevant than ever."

Plan commission meeting canceled

The regular meeting of the Wheeling Plan Commission scheduled for tonight has been canceled.

The commission was to have reviewed plans for the Devoncourt Condominiums proposed by the Zale Construction Co. Zale, however, has asked that the matter be continued to the next commission meeting.

School news notes

Fourth grade students at Sandburg School in Wheeling are discovering the art of ancient Egypt by making their own bas relief plaques.

The students are making plaster forms and carving designs on them. The forms will be polished and then colored with paste show polish to resemble plaques produced by Egyptian artists centuries ago.

The art project was prompted by an interest the students have shown in archeology. The pupils plan to do some excavating on the school site later this year.

A dental hygienist is scheduled to visit Irving School today to discuss her job with first grade children.

The students have been studying about health habits this month, including eating proper foods, getting sufficient rest, proper exercise, personal hygiene and dental health.

Dental hygienist, Josephine Leonard, is to bring along the tools she uses in her job and explain practices of good dental care to the students.

There is an unusual bulletin board in Rosalie Roth's fifth grade classroom at Twain School in Wheeling.

The large board is divided into individual sections for each of the students and Mrs. Roth. Some of the students use their portion of the board to display their work while others decorate their section.

While the mysterious Comet Kohoutek continues to evade astronomers searching the skies for its light, a replica of the comet can be clearly seen outside Dee Levi's classroom at Twain School.

As part of their study of comets, the first graders in Miss Levi's class created their own comet that is displayed on a bulletin board in the hall.

The first group of children in a proposed series of special classes have begun work on quickpoint embroidery projects at Sandburg School.

The students have drawn their own designs on needlepoint canvas and are learning the proper stitches under the guidance of Louise Learn, a volunteer and Doris Richter, learning center director.

Further classes will include cooking, guitar, knitting, simple crocheting, wood-working and photography.

The program was developed by Mrs. Richter and eventually will involve all intermediate children in the school. Part of the cost of projects is being paid for by the sale of ice cream during lunch periods.

Talks under way for water system in outlying areas

by STEVE BROWN

Officials from Des Plaines and the Citizens Utility Co. of Illinois opened preliminary talks Tuesday on the possible purchase of the water system in unincorporated areas in the western portion of the city.

The talks mark what could amount to the first steps towards annexation of the Waycinden Park area, a neighborhood of about 520 homes that is completely surrounded by the city.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said yesterday the session was an excellent meeting. He added both the city and water company agreed to have all details of a possible agreement ready for final negotiations in June.

"We also asked the representatives from Waycinden Park to meet with their homeowners to decide whether or not they wished to come into the city," Behrel said.

THE MAYOR explained the city would not be interested in purchasing the water company unless the residents in the area would be willing to annex to the city.

"This has to be a mutual agreement. The residents would have to agree to sign a voluntary annexation petition with the city, before we take action to purchase the water system," he said.

Behrel said it would not be known until June if purchase of the water system in the area would be feasible. He said both sides agreed to research the costs of purchasing the system between now and June.

He noted that if the system is purchased, which would require full city council approval, the costs would be passed along to the residents over a long term basis.

HOWEVER, IT is possible the residents would not pay any more for their water and the costs of purchasing the system if it was operated by Des Plaines.

Presently the utility company is seeking a sizable rate increase from the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The residents are now paying about $36 per year for sewers. The proposed rate increase would hike that charge to about $72. Des Plaines does not charge its residents anything for sewer rates and it is possible those charges could be applied to the costs of purchasing the water system.

WAYCINDEN PARK residents are currently fighting the water rate hike along with some residents of Mount Prospect and several other suburbs which are served by Citizens Utility, before the Illinois Commerce Commission, which controls utility rates in the state. Another hearing on the increase will be held next month.

Behrel stressed that all phases of the possible annexation and purchase of the water system are in the "very preliminary stage." He said the city has agreed to keep the Waycinden Park Homeowners Association informed of all details of the negotiations with Citizens Utility. He said purchase price was discussed at Tuesday's meeting.

Program for handicapped may lose class facilities

A federally funded program for pre-school youngsters with learning disabilities might be forced out of its present facilities in Park Ridge if school officials there agree to sell the Oakton School to Maine Township.

A spokesman for Project Predict said the program, which screens 3 and 4-year-olds for learning disabilities and offers general development training to the youngsters, would probably have "some trouble" finding new offices if the school is sold to the township.

Maine Township officials are expected to make a bid of about $200,000 to the Park Ridge Elementary School Dist. 64 Monday for the purchase of Oakton School, 2100 Oakton St., Park Ridge.

School officials are currently leasing the school to Project Predict, which serves youngsters throughout Maine Township.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS also will have to examine the bid in light of a $600,000 offer made by the developer, who has guaranteed the bid on the 5½-acre site if proper zoning for condominiums can be obtained.

Maine Township officials outlined their plans earlier this week to the Park Ridge City Council.

Township Auditor Margaret Wirsén told The Herald the building would be paid for with a portion of the township revenue sharing money. She indicated the township will propose the facility will be paid for over a three or four year period.

In addition to the purchase price of about $200,000, she estimated the township would have to spend between $75,000 and $100,000 to remodel the school for their programs.

A SPOKESMAN for Project Predict said if they are required to move, the program would have to split up amongst the various schools in the township.

"Buying this school would certainly be less expensive than building our own new building," Mrs. Wirsén said. She said the township has been looking for a permanent office building for over a year. Presently the township rents office space at 2510 Dempster St., Des Plaines.

She said if the township does obtain the building, there are plans to locate all township social service agencies there, open a sheltered workshop for the mentally retarded and emotionally handicapped and possibly develop a hot meal program for the township's senior citizens.

'Friendship festival' set by industry

Local industries will make an all-out attempt to meet the public this spring when they stage the Des Plaines Friendship Festival.

"Let's Talk" is the theme of the festival to be held May 8 and 9 at Maine West High School. Sponsorship of the Industrial Division of the Des Plaines Chamber of Commerce and Industry, the festival is being organized by ten major industries in the community.

In announcing the festival yesterday at a press conference at Universal Oil Products Corp., Will Nilis of DeSoto said the festival is hand-tailored to the community of Des Plaines and is the first festival for a community of this size to be held in the United States.

Nilis said their purpose is to help to bring a better understanding of the benefits which business and industry can bring to a community.

THE FESTIVAL, which is open to the public, will be located in the spectator gym at Maine West. Sixty-six booths will be sold to local firms so they can explain their operations and display their products.

A "let's-talk" area will be included where top executives from local companies will be on hand to answer questions on their companies in particular or the industry as a whole.

A 10-minute slide presentation on the history of industry in Des Plaines will be shown periodically.

Nilis said there has been a loss of credibility between the public and business and industry. One poll he said, showed that 60 per cent of those surveyed had lost respect for business and industry.

LOCAL LEADERS will attempt to answer questions on rising prices, legislation, job opportunities and other issues.

Students from the four Maine Township high schools will attend during school hours. The festival will be open to the general public after school hours.

Companies represented on the Let's Talk committee include DeSoto, General Telephone Directory Co., Universal Oil Products, Central Telephone Co., Banner Service, White Collar Girls, City Products, Bade-Marquette and International Tool Works.

Vandals smash car windows in nighttime spree

Vandals caused an undetermined amount of damage to autos outside homes of Des Plaines residents after smashing windows with unknown objects.

Official damage estimates were unavailable from police yesterday who said the figure probably exceeded several hundred dollars.

Police also said the same persons were probably responsible for each of the seven reported incidents.

According to reports, Rudolph Capiz, 940 Beau Dr., told police someone damaged front and rear windows of his auto left outside his home, causing $100 damage.

Three Dulles Drive residents also told police windows in their autos were shattered while one woman, Marilyn Willick, 299 Dover Dr., reported four scratch marks on the hood and fender of her auto. Police said the vandals struck Tuesday night.

A Wilson Drive resident and an Arlington Heights woman who left her auto in that neighborhood also told police windows in their cars were broken.

Correction

The Wednesday edition of the Herald contained a typographical error in the story describing the Des Plaines City Council's approval of a new ordinance regulating restaurants.

The article stated Ald. Spencer Chase (3rd) proposed an amendment to the ordinance requiring restaurants to provide nine parking spaces for every two seats.

The sentence should have read Chase proposed the restaurants provide nine-tenths of a parking space for every two seats.

The Herald regrets the error.

The local scene

Comedy at St. Stephens

"You Were Born on a Rotten Day," a full length comedy, will be presented by members of St. Stephens Parish Feb. 1, 2 and 3.

The play under the direction of Bob Reda will be presented on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and the Sunday performance will be at 7 p.m. Refreshments will be available between acts. Tickets can be purchased at the church after the masses on Jan. 27 or at the door the night of the play. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children.

Gourmet meal class set

Students will dine their way through gourmet meals in a class that teaches them all about foods, what to serve, when to serve it, and where to find some of the best ethnic delicacies in the area.

"Gourmet Dining Out" is a six-session class, taught by Elaine Sherman for Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program.

Class members will dine out at five restaurants, eating specialties chosen to illustrate the best in a particular country's foods. The opening orientation session will be held at Maine East High School, Dempster Street and Potter Road, Park Ridge, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Jan. 30.

Guest experts will be featured at some of the dinners to discuss food preparation. Recipes of all dishes served during each meal and tips on how to prepare them will be provided at each session. Fee for the course, $50, includes dinners and gratuities. For further information or to register call 696-3600.

Gemini school discussion

The Board of Education Dist. 63's subcommittee on communications will hold its first informational team open session Jan. 31 at 7:30 p.m. at Gemini School, 8955 Greenwood Ave., Niles.

All Gemini parents and other residents are invited to attend this informal discussion of the Gemini program and any other items of interest in the district. The listening/informational team, composed of a board representative, a member of the central administration staff, Donald Huebner, principal of Gemini, and several Gemini staff members will provide comments and answers to questions and concerns.

This program will be the first of a series of listening/informational team meetings to be held throughout the district's nine elementary and two junior high schools.

Burglars hit gas station, two homes

A television set and an undetermined amount of change and cigarettes were stolen when burglars forced their way into a Des Plaines service station, said police.

According to reports, the burglars broke a bay door window to make their way into Bruce's Mobil, 2100 Miner St., and rifled a cigaret machine with a pry tool.

Owner Bruce Anderson notified police after discovering the break-in when opening the station Tuesday.

Police also said would-be burglars were unsuccessful in attempts to enter the apartment of Richard Bennett, 388 Third Ave.

Mary Bennett told police she noticed the door partially opened but still secured with a chain lock while preparing to leave for work Tuesday morning.

She also told police she heard noises outside the apartment several hours earlier but did not investigate.

Another Des Plaines resident, Phillip Garrou, told police someone tried to break into his house at 536 Beau Dr., Tuesday.

According to reports, Garrou returned home from work about 5:30 p.m. and noticed windows out in his garage and rear house door.

School board OKs hiring of lawyer

The Dist. 62 board of education has authorized the hiring of Chicago Attorney Wesley A. Wildman as "personnel consultant" for the board.

Wildman, a negotiator for several area school boards, was recommended for the position by the board faculty committee at Monday night's meeting of the board.

Board member Stuart Kisten said that Wildman will be available to assist the board "in matters of negotiation and very possibly could" serve as board negotiator in upcoming contract talks.

The Dist. 62 board decided to hire a consultant since last year's negotiations "were entirely too long," Kisten said.

"We thought that by hiring a personnel consultant, negotiations should be much more efficient — hopefully they won't be prolonged like last time," he said.

The board and Dist. 62 teachers signed a 1973-74 teacher's contract Nov. 19, ending an 11-month contract dispute. Contract negotiations for 1974-75 are scheduled to begin March 15.

Kisten said the board still is negotiating salary with Wildman, who is a senior research specialist and associate professor at the University of Chicago.

Oakton board wrapup

Board member hits Jaffe teaching job

State Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, became the subject of controversy Tuesday at the meeting of the Oakton Community College board.

Board member Stephen Loska of Des Plaines objected to the fact that Jaffe, a candidate for reelection this year, is on the college's payroll as a teacher in a political science course, "Election 74." Jaffe will earn $900 this semester for the three-credit course.

"It is difficult to conceive that a state representative of either party would be hired by the college in an election year," Loska said. He said residents of the Oakton district complained to him about the situation after seeing reports of Jaffe's job.

Board member Thomas Flynn, a Democratic candidate for the Illinois House of Representatives, partially supported Loska's objection, although he said, "I think Aaron Jaffe is very qualified to teach the course and will make an excellent instructor."

The only problem, Flynn said, is that Jaffe "has a press advantage" over his opponents because of news releases about the course issued by the college. A voter at a candidate forum had pointed out a press release on Jaffe from the college and one from a homeowners' association and "they were both political press releases, but one came from us," Flynn said.

Flynn said he thought "Mr. Jaffe should be limited to teaching the course and nothing else."

College Pres. William Koehnline said, "We are committed to fairness," but added that "the administration thought it was assuring fairness and expertise in the election process" by hiring Jaffe.

The board upheld the hiring of Jaffe in a vote on all part-time teachers to be employed by the college. Loska and board member Griffith MacDonald abstained from the vote.

Approve formal policy

The Oakton board has agreed to a formal policy for salary discussions with the faculty and staff at the school, but has balked at using the word "negotiate."

The board approved the new policy, which officially recognizes the Faculty Executive Committee and the Classified Staff Association as agents to "participate in discussions of salaries and employee benefits" for the faculty and staff. However, the final approval was preceded by parliamentary wrangling as board member Thomas Flynn tried to change the reference from "participate in discussions" to "negotiate."

Flynn's move came after Faculty Executive Committee President Ann Hastings said the faculty was concerned about the absence of the word "negotiate" in the policy. "We recognize the spirit of the policy," Mrs. Hastings said, "but it's a far cry from what we were asking for — we were asking to negotiate."

The term "negotiate," she said, implies that the faculty and board will come to a mutually acceptable agreement. With a policy allowing the faculty to "participate in discussions," she said, "what you're saying is that you'll listen to our position and take it into account and then you'll arrive at the decision."

Trustees resisted efforts to change the language of the policy because, according to Griffith MacDonald, "We took advantage of legal counsel to have this drawn up and I would like to have our attorney review it before we change the language."

Board member Stephen Loska supported Flynn in the proposed change, which was defeated by a 4-2 vote. The final policy was adopted and board members agreed to ask the board attorney to review the proposed change.

Oakton taxpayers will save a little money next year as a result of an action by the Oakton board setting aside $65,000 for purchase of a permanent site for the college.

The funds have come to the college as a result of action by the Illinois General Assembly overriding Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of a bill increasing state money to community colleges.

The money, not included in the Oakton budget, will be set aside for the college's purchase of a campus and as a result, the college tax rate for next year will be reduced by four cents per $100 assessed value, according to Business Mgr. David Hilquist.

Dist. 59 wrapup

$79,840 for co-op membership OKd

The Dist. 59 School Board, after several months of studying the issue, approved the district's membership with the Northwest Educational Cooperative, which does a lot of data processing work and payroll for the district. Cost of membership to the district for the 1974-75 school year is expected to be $79,840.

Bids sought for ventilators

The board has approved advertising for bids for 60-unit ventilators which will be used on the Dempster and Grove Junior High remodeling jobs, scheduled to start this summer. The board is expected to purchase the ventilators independently, before the contractor for the project is selected, to help insure the units will arrive by the time construction starts.

Mezzanine bid accepted

A bid for construction of a mezzanine for the Dist. 59 warehouse was accepted by the board Monday in the amount of $8,992.20 from Atlas Material Handling Co. of Schiller Park.

Transit pact delayed

Official approval of the district's transportation contract for the 1974-75 school year with Davidsmeyer Bus Service of Elk Grove Village was delayed Monday when the school board sent the final contract to its attorney for further study.

The board has already accepted the bid of Davidsmeyer which calls for an 11 per cent increase over last year. The base bid was for approximately $429,00.

Election notice approved

The board approved the publishing of the legal notice announcing the annual school board elections April 13. Deadline for filing for the two open seats on the board is March 22.

Township board OKs initial budget for fiscal '74-'75

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township board has approved a preliminary budget for their 1974-75 fiscal year, which includes major increases in the areas of youth and mental health, while adding free life insurance and hospitalization policies for township officials and most employees.

The new budget was tentatively set at $475,207 for a 12-month period, compared to last year's budget of about $439,000. The new budget includes a second set of figures which extends it to 13 months, from March 1, 1974, to March 31, 1975. The move will put all township budgets on the same fiscal year, according to Richard Hall, township supervisor.

The township's committee on youth will receive $58,220 for a 12-month period, compared to $22,000 last year. Youth Committee director Paul Paprocki will receive a 26 per cent pay raise, from $9,500 to $12,000 a year.

A further provision in the budget allows another 10 per cent increase for Paprocki after six months, which would put his salary at $13,200 yearly. Hall said the provision was not definite and a decision on whether the 10 per cent additional raise would be given would come in six months.

HALL SAID THE reason for the large salary increase was to bring the township youth director's salary up to the level of other youth directors. Township officials' salaries, some of which were substantially raised last year, did not change.

The budget for additional personnel, was raised from $36,000 to $40,000, but it was not stated whether the money will be used for new staff or pay raises for township staff.

The township's allocation to the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, which is taken from federal revenue-sharing funds, not local tax money, was raised from $45,000 per year to $63,000.

TOWNSHIP AUDITOR Bernard Lee, a candidate for the mental health board, pointed out that the mental health center's budget would be about $58,000 short, due to the separation of the center from Elk Grove Village Community Service, which had supplied funding to the center.

Lee suggested the township make up part of the deficit (which was figured to be about $37,000), based on the amount of township residents who use the center. The board approved Lee's suggestion.

Included in the budget, which is about eight per cent higher than last year's, was $6,700 to be used to provide free hospitalization and life insurance to township officials and most township employees. Road and bridge employees of the township will not be covered.

DETAILS OF THE insurance plans have not been completed, according to Hall. It is expected the hospitalization coverage will be 100 per cent with a $2,000 life insurance policy.

The budgets for the general assistance and road and bridge funds remained the same as last year, at $78,400 and $176,275 respectively. The township fund budget, however, went up from last year's $185,312 to $220,532.

The officials also approved a $13,000 sewer budget, up $1,000 from last year. The sewer fund is not a tax money fund, but is financed through revenue generated from fees paid by township sewer users.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS also set up a preliminary budget for the allocation of federal revenue sharing money. Hall emphasized the budget would probably have to be revised since the township doesn't know how much money it will receive from the revenue sharing program during their '74-'75 fiscal year.

The tentative revenue sharing budget, of nearly $300,000, was based on an estimate of what the township knows it will receive through June and an estimate of what it might receive when new revenue sharing allotments are announced in June.

Hall said the provision for a 13-month budget was a one time thing. Future budgets, starting in 1975, will run from April 1 to March 31.

The township will put the preliminary budget on public display for 30 days, as is required by law, starting Feb. 23. A public hearing on the budget was set for March 26 to allow township residents to suggest changes or additions.

According to Hall, the township will actually be operating without a budget for one month during the 13-month budget from March 1-31, which is allowable by law.

Maryville soil testing shows site 'buildable'

Preliminary results of additional soil tests taken last week at the Maryville Academy grounds show the land in the southeast section of the proposed site for the new Maryville school to be suitable for building.

The preliminary findings were revealed at the Dist. 26 school board meeting Tuesday night by Supt. John Fridlund.

The soil tests, which were the second ones made on the property, showed the land in nine different locations of the site to be composed of from one to six feet of cinder fill.

Testing Services Corp., a Wheaton firm which conducted the test told Fridlund yesterday in a phone conversation that from these test results the firm believes the land in the southeast portion of the five-acre site is suitable for construction.

THE PROPOSED site for the school is located on River Road near Gregory Street in Des Plaines.

This recommendation contradicts findings from the first set of soil tests which were made by the Allied Soil Mechanics Co. of Naperville. Three borings made by this firm showed the land to be composed of between 8 to 10 feet of cinder fill.

Results of the initial set of borings were used by the Illinois Capital Development Board to declare the land unsuitable for building.

School board members, who believe that the first tests did not reveal a representative composition of the land voted at their last meeting to commission a second set of soil tests at the site.

THE FIRST TESTS were made in the area of the Feehanville ditch, which the board said is an area of excessive landfill. The second set of soil borings, which cost the district $1,000, were made south of the ditch area.

The board is hopeful this new soil information will convince the ICDB to reverse its earlier decision and allow construction of the school on the Maryville grounds.

If necessary, the board may consider asking the Chicago Archdiocese, which owns the land, if the five-acre parcel to be sold to the district can be shifted one acre to the southeast. The shift would place the building site in an area of even less cinder fill since it would be located further south of the ditch area.

The ICDB has appropriated $1 million for construction of the new Maryville school. The present school, which was constructed around the turn of the century, has to be replaced because it does not meet state life safety code guidelines.

tent "to eliminate competition per se."

"We feel the best competition is a child with himself — we want every child to reach his potential," he said.

The new cards are also a more detailed accounting of a child's classroom work, according to the assistant superintendent.

"A child may read well orally but not comprehend what he's reading. This card relates not only how the kid sounds but also how he understands," he said.

The report cards will be evaluated at the end of the next grading period by both teachers and parents, Cowell said.

"Obviously, there's not one grading method acceptable to all but we feel this is the right direction for us," he said.

Woman hurt in accident listed as 'fair'

Hope Johnson, 69, 510 Oakton St., Des Plaines remained in fair condition at Holy Family, a spokesman said yesterday.

The woman was involved in a collision in Des Plaines earlier this month which took the life of her husband, Robert, 73.

Johnson was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital after his auto was struck at Oakton and Oxford streets Jan. 17. Two grandchildren, passengers in the auto, were also injured.

Police later charged a Des Plaines youth, Michael Massillo, 18, of 1921 Birch St., with involuntary manslaughter in the accident. Massillo suffered a broken nose while his passenger, Nick Favis, 18, of 702 Emerson, Mount Prospect, was treated and released at Holy Family.

Massillo has been scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Feb. 7.

A $1,500 fur coat owned by a Deerfield woman was stolen at the Camelot Restaurant, 1750 Elmhurst Rd., after she had hung the garment up, according to police.

Nanci Price, 214 Fairview, told police yesterday she returned to where the coat had been left late Sunday and discovered it missing.

Residents, village to meet on fire, ambulance service

by JERRY THOMAS

Itasca Meadows Homeowners' Assn. and Elk Grove Village officials will meet at 8 p.m. Jan. 31 to talk about fire and ambulance protection for residents in the subdivision.

The meeting, announced at Tuesday's village board session, comes in the aftermath of a tragedy, the death Jan. 6 of Mrs. Jean Pettee, an Itasca Meadows Subdivision resident, in unincorporated Elk Grove Township. Subdivision association president Ed Mador requested the meeting in a letter to the board.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis, reporting to the board, said two firemen and a communications operator have been subpoenaed to give evidence before the Cook County Grand Jury in the State's Attorney's investigation of the Pettee incident.

STATE'S ATTY. Bernard Carey's office would not reveal the names of the village employees summoned. A spokesman said they are people who were in the fire station on the afternoon the Elk Grove Village ambulance was recalled and the call was referred to Roselle Fire Department.

Willis said the village is cooperating with the investigation and has, in response to other subpoenas, turned over all village records pertaining to the Jan. 6 incident as well as to the village fire and ambulance policy governing service to unincorporated areas.

Spokesmen for the state's attorney said village officials and representatives of the state's attorney's office were expected to listen to tapes of Pettee's telephone calls to police and fire departments Wednesday and are continuing to gather information.

IN EARLIER ACTION during the session, the board voted to provide fire and ambulance service to 88 properties in nearby unincorporated areas, Itasca Meadows among them, on a serve-now, pay-later plan.

The previous village policy was to serve only those who contracted for the $42-a-year service.

The board also set a $50-per-ambulance call and $100-per-piece of fire equipment service rate, for those who have no contract with the village.

The meeting, to be held in the council chambers of the municipal building, is the first between Itasca Meadows Homeowners' officers and village officials in several years.

Although the Itasca Meadows Subdivision of approximately 40 homes is surrounded by Elk Grove Village and located about five blocks from the municipal complex, most of its residents contract with the Roselle Fire Department for fire protection service.

There has been a long-standing feud over technicalities and charges between village officials and the homeowners association.

Two officials clash over gag resolution

In an example of chain reaction "put-downs," Elk Grove Village Trustee Ed Kenna and Village Pres. Charles Zetek Tuesday butted heads over a "gag" resolution aimed at Plan Commission Chairman Bill Shannon.

Kenna, in what Zetek called a surprise action, called for board approval of a resolution directing the plan commission "not to solicit comment on low-or middle-income housing from builders."

Kenna, citing a "communication breakdown" between the village board and plan commission, said he offered the resolution "merely to advise Shannon and the commission of village policy."

EARLIER THIS month, Shannon told The Herald that during a preliminary discussion about Centex Builders' plans for development of a 700-acre tract west of Ill. Rte. 55, he asked the builder if he has considered low-or middle-income housing.

Shannon, talking about the question later, stressed he was not suggesting Centex build low-income housing, but was expressing a personal question, and that it was just one of many asked of the builder.

Village officials in the past have not been sympathetic even to discussions about low-income housing.

Trustee George Spees chided Kenna for proposing the resolution for what he called "Shannon's off-the-cuff comment. I won't support it (the resolution) and we don't need it," he said.

ZETEK SCOLDED Kenna for both proposing the resolution aimed at Shannon and bringing it up Tuesday without his knowledge.

"It disturbs me no end, that you brought something like this up without previous committee discussion," he said. Zetek called for a no-action vote motion from his board and got it.

Zetek then explained to the board that he had personally discussed the matter with Shannon who argued that the issue was exaggerated by the press.

"Shannon is sorry it happened and he was not taking the village's right to introduce low-income housing away. He knows fully what the plan commission's duties are," said Zetek.

'The brain'

New village worker isn't human, but everyone likes it anyway

by JERRY THOMAS

It's nicknamed the "brain," is doing only a minimum of the amount of work it is capable of and is quite fussy about working conditions. Yet, it's Elk Grove Village Finance Director George Coney's favorite worker.

Coney, talking about the village's System 3 Model 10 computer, said its future capabilities are almost endless. The computer is rented for $1,300 a month and was delivered to its climate-controlled niche in the municipal building last October.

"It's a beautiful system and we haven't even scratched the surface or challenged its capabilities," said Coney.

THE COMPUTER is taking over many manual, repetitive duties now performed by employees in all departments.

The "brain's" first job is to memorize data, Dan Muellner, data processing supervisor, said each job taught the computer, begins with feeding its memory banks.

He explained that village employees in each department have been taught to keypunch information into the computer's banks. An example would be the village payroll — a job that used to take the payroll clerk three or four days and now takes a couple of hours on the computer.

MUELLNER SAID water billing data is now being fed into the computer's

Looking for new Palatine location

Crossroads being forced from its 'home'

by JULIA BAUER

Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.

The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.

"We're going to try to look in Palatine for a new clinic location," Mrs. Michelin said.

DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.

Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Phillippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.

If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort," Finlayson said. That clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.

FINLAYSON IS building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.

The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.

In the meantime, Mrs. Michelin will begin working full time as Crossroads Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.

Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.

PALATINE TOWNSHIP auditors reaffirmed their funding decision after nearly 2½ hours of public discussion Tuesday at Sanborn School. Primary objections centered on the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives without parental consent. Objectors charged that the practice may encourage promiscuity and harms parent-child relationships.

Petitions bearing more than 3,100 signatures opposing township funding of the clinic were submitted at Tuesday's meeting.

Supporters of Crossroads emphasize the clinic's success at reaching teenagers by supplying vital health services to teens including the detection of venereal disease in youths who did not know they carried the disease.

ALL YOUTHS coming into the clinic are tested for syphilis and gonorrhea. Contraceptives, according to clinic spokesmen, are an important part of a program that also treats post-abortion medical problems and gives pregnancy tests. Minor infections, such as yeast and trichomonis, are also treated at the clinic.

Palatine Township officials added a restriction to their grant that none of the $5,000 be used to reimburse the birth control activities of the clinic. The funds may be used to purchase medical equipment and supplies for examining rooms.

'Superjock' to emcee rock fest

Superjock, Larry Lujack, is coming to Hoffman Estates.

He'll be headlining a rock festival Feb. 9, at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The Penny Royal Band, a rock-jazz group of eight local talents will provide music and Lujack will pull his shenanigans during intermissions to include an amateur talent contest whose acts will be judged by peers.

"Usually the dumbest acts win," Lujack said. "Like the time kids gathered and ate all the dead bugs in the room."

Record albums will be given as prizes during the program to run from 8 to 11 p.m.

The festival is sponsored by Hoffman Estates Woman's Club who will use proceeds to help refurbish the community center at 161 Illinois Blvd. where the Hoffman Estates Village Hall use to be. Proceeds will also go to the Woman's Club's other philanthropies.

Advance tickets are available for $2 at Conant, Schaumburg, Fremd and Hoffman Estates high schools. Tickets will also be sold at the door for $2.50.

Tickets also are available by calling Mrs. Robert Oberle, Woman's Club ways and means chairman, at 882-3873.

Newest village worker does job better than folks

memory banks. The preparation for each job application is the longest process, said Mueller. Each billing address with information on the user has to be manually keypunched by an operator the first time, he said.

"After that, the only thing that has to be added is the current meter reading," he said. "The computer takes it from there, remembering the rate and past reading, it calculates the new billing and out pops a bill for us to mail," said Mueller.

Coney said residents will probably receive the first computer billing March 1. "Future uses of the computer are endless," said Coney. It is now being fed budget information and will be used to prepare the village budget.

POLICE AND FIRE reports are next, said Coney, and the building and engineering departments are waiting to get at the computer.

"We aren't just putting stuff on the computer to use it, every application is one that can be better performed by it and saves our employees repetitive work." Instead of hiring new people, Mueller has trained employees in every department to perform duties they used to do manually on the computer, said Coney.

"We have just started using the computer and we are giving it new jobs to do as quickly as we can feed it the information it needs to take over," said Coney.

He added that the system now in use can be added to, but believes the model now used will serve the village's needs for some time.

In contrast to human workers, who are prone to occasional days off for ailments, the "brain" is hardly ever ailing.

"But, it likes its room to be a steady 70 degrees and gets a little hot and bothered when the climate control is just a little off," said Coney. "Other than that, it is a very dependable worker and a most welcome addition to the working force."

Metal labels foil glass recycling

The Village of Elk Grove loses about $400 every time a load of glass is rejected by a recycling firm because the glass is contaminated with metal.

Assistant Village Mgr. Bob Franz said each glass recycling bin holds approximately 40,000 pounds (20 tons) and the village receives a penny a pound for glass.

The village has had several bins of glass rejected in the past months because residents had not removed foil labels and other metal from bottles.

The local Junior Woman's Club is currently involved in a community education program on recycling to alert residents that metal rings, caps and foil labels must be removed from all bottles. The glass collection in the village recycling center will be closed if residents fail to cooperate.

The Juniors have been at the recycling center every Saturday for the past month, working with residents on the "Please Pitch In" project. Workers report that people have been very cooperative and voiced concern that glass recycling may be discontinued.

Marie Bingham of the Junior Woman's Club said this week that each home in Elk Grove Village could contribute 20 to 30 pounds of glass each month. Paper labels can remain on glass containers but metal contaminates glass during the recycling process, she said.

Vandals smash car windows in nighttime spree

Vandals caused an undetermined amount of damage to autos outside homes of Des Plaines residents after smashing windows with unknown objects.

Official damage estimates were unavailable from police yesterday who said the figure probably exceeded several hundred dollars.

Police also said the same persons were probably responsible for each of the seven reported incidents.

INFORMATION ON these files is being fed into the memory banks of the new computer now in use in the Elk Grove Village municipal department.

Strong-hearted students give 'em the facts on TV

by STIRLING MORITA

It took a strong heart for 20 sixth and seventh graders to face glaring lights, gun microphones, an ominous NBC camera and a full television crew yesterday at Dirksen School, Schaumburg.

Five students sat with backs erect, hands folded nervously in their laps, waiting to give their short statements concerning the heart. The students, who have taken or are taking a recently expanded heart health course for Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, had been kept waiting in the school library for two hours while a crew from WMAQ busily scattered electric cords and prepared a script.

Meg Lochary, 11, was so anxious to start her beginning statement that she spoke before the crew was ready. Another take had to be shot when the children rapidly shot out their facts about the heart.

DURING THE SECOND take, Scott Balousek, 13, forgot his line, paused for about 10 seconds and continued his short speech. He was assured by the crew that the mistake could be edited.

And after those takes were over, the lights were momentarily shut off, and each of the children took a deep breath, relaxed their tense shoulder muscles and leaned back in their chairs.

The 20 students were from Robert Frost Junior High School and Dirksen School. Some are former students of Mrs. Pat Cassidy, and others are presently under her tutelage.

The WMAQ crew was filming footage for the "Memorandum" show. The film will be shown at 11 a.m. Feb. 17 on Channel 5.

EMPHASIZED IN THE show will be how the students learn about the heart and the circulatory system by using plastic models, taking blood pressures and taking blood samples and typing their blood.

Parks to show films tomorrow afternoon

The Elk Grove Park District will sponsor the showing of a movie and cartoons tomorrow afternoon for school children off because of the teachers' institute day.

The film tomorrow will be "The Light in the Forest," plus cartoons, starting at 1 p.m. at Grantwood School, 225 E. Elk Grove Blvd., in Elk Grove Village.

The show will last approximately two hours. Admission is 25 cents. Popcorn and candy will be available for purchase.

Township board OKs initial budget for fiscal '74-'75

by BOB GALLAS

The Elk Grove Township board has approved a preliminary budget for their 1974-75 fiscal year, which includes major increases in the areas of youth and mental health, while adding free life insurance and hospitalization policies for township officials and most employees.

The new budget was tentatively set at $475,207 for a 12-month period, compared to last year's budget of about $439,000. The new budget includes a second set of figures which extends it to 13 months, from March 1, 1974, to March 31, 1975. The move will put all township budgets on the same fiscal year, according to Richard Hall, township supervisor.

The township's committee on youth will receive $58,220 for a 12-month period, compared to $22,000 last year. Youth Committee director Paul Paprocki will receive a 26 per cent pay raise, from $9,500 to $12,000 a year.

A further provision in the budget allows another 10 per cent increase for Paprocki after six months, which would put his salary at $13,200 yearly. Hall said the provision was not definite and a decision on whether the 10 per cent additional raise would be given would come in six months.

HALL SAID THE reason for the large salary increase was to bring the township youth director's salary up to the level of other youth directors. Township officials' salaries, some of which were substantially raised last year, did not change.

The budget for additional personnel, was raised from $36,000 to $40,000, but it was not stated whether the money will be used for new staff or pay raises for township staff.

The township's allocation to the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center, which is taken from federal revenue-sharing funds, not local tax money, was raised from $45,000 per year to $83,000.

TOWNSHIP AUDITOR Bernard Lee, a candidate for the mental health board, pointed out that the mental health center's budget would be about $58,000 short, due to the separation of the center from Elk Grove Village Community Service, which had supplied funding to the center.

Lee suggested the township make up part of the deficit (which was figured to be about $37,000), based on the amount of township residents who use the center. The board approved Lee's suggestion.

Included in the budget, which is about eight per cent higher than last year's, was $6,700 to be used to provide free hospitalization and life insurance to township officials and most township employees. Road and bridge employees of the township will not be covered.

DETAILS OF THE insurance plans have not been completed, according to Hall. It is expected the hospitalization coverage will be 100 per cent with a $2,000 life insurance policy.

The budgets for the general assistance and road and bridge funds remained the same as last year, at $78,400 and $176,275 respectively. The township fund budget, however, went up from last year's $185,312 to $220,532.

The officials also approved a $13,000 sewer budget, up $1,000 from last year. The sewer fund is not a tax money fund, but is financed through revenue generated from fees paid by township sewer users.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS also set up a preliminary budget for the allocation of federal revenue sharing money. Hall emphasized the budget would probably have to be revised since the township doesn't know how much money it will receive from the revenue sharing program during their '74-'75 fiscal year.

The tentative revenue sharing budget, of nearly $300,000, was based on an estimate of what the township knows it will receive through June and an estimate of what it might receive when new revenue sharing allotments are announced in June.

Hall said the provision for a 13-month budget was a one time thing. Future budgets, starting in 1975, will run from April 1 to March 31.

The township will put the preliminary budget on public display for 30 days, as is required by law, starting Feb. 23. A public hearing on the budget was set for March 26 to allow township residents to suggest changes or additions.

According to Hall, the township will actually be operating without a budget for one month during the 13-month budget from March 1-31, which is allowable by law.

Clearbrook Center finding more jobs for the handicapped

The number of handicapped persons finding work through the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded in Rolling Meadows has more than doubled over the last year.

Jobs in the surrounding community have been found for 17 persons in 1973. The previous years, eight handicapped people were placed, according to recently-released records.

Placement director Gene Freeman attributed the increase to three factors: First, the Clearbrook Vocational Rehabilitation Center and Sheltered Workshop which trains the emotionally and mentally handicapped for outside jobs has grown.

Secondly, the center has been talking to an increasing number of business representatives over the past few years.

Thirdly, employers have discovered that the handicapped are good workers.

"We have a lot of people calling us, now," Freeman said. "It's really kind of encouraging."

CLEARBROOK RECORDS show that the workshop was established in 1963 and the first graduate placed in 1966. For the first three years, only one person was placed annually. Then things improved. By the end of 1969, an additional 5 persons were placed; in 1970, 7 were placed; in 1971, 9, and in 1972, 8. Last year 17 were placed.

The figures show an encouraging amount of success for the workshop, according to Clearbrook officials. What they don't show is what this means to the individual.

Basically it means independence, Freeman said. Once the handicapped person has found a job in the outside community, away from the sheltered situation in Clearbrook, the next step is independent living. They find an apartment for themselves.

Looking for new Palatine location

Crossroads clinic will lose its present facility in April

by JULIA BAUER

Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.

The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.

"We're going to try to look in Palatine" for a new clinic location, Mrs. Michelin said.

DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.

Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Phillippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.

If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort," Finlayson said. That clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.

FINLAYSON IS building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.

The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.

In the meantime, Mrs. Michelin will begin working full time as Crossroads Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.

Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.

PALATINE TOWNSHIP auditors reaffirmed their funding decision after nearly 2½ hours of public discussion Tuesday at Sanborn School. Primary objections centered on the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives without parental consent. Objectors charged that the practice may encourage promiscuity and harms parent-child relationships.

Petitions bearing more than 3,100 signatures opposing township funding of the clinic were submitted at Tuesday's meeting.

Supporters of Crossroads emphasize the clinic's success at reaching teenagers by supplying vital health services to teens including the detection of venereal disease in youths who did not know they carried the disease.

ALL YOUTHS coming into the clinic are tested for syphilis and gonorrhea. Contraceptives, according to clinic spokesmen, are an important part of a program that also treats post-abortion medical problems and gives pregnancy tests. Minor infections, such as yeast and trichomonis, are also treated at the clinic.

Palatine Township officials added a restriction to their grant that none of the $5,000 be used to reimburse the birth control activities of the clinic. The funds may be used to purchase medical equipment and supplies for examining rooms.

Jaycees' award banquet tomorrow

'Outstanding young man, woman' to be named here

Palatine's Outstanding Young Man and Woman of the Year will be named at the Jaycees' Annual Distinguished Service Awards Banquet tomorrow.

Four men are competing for Outstanding Young Man of the Year honors and six women for the Outstanding Young Woman of the Year award.

Ronald Hunter, Olaf Schneider, David Smith and Gene Sullivan have been nominated for Man of the Year. Nominees for the woman's award are Cindy Hall, Ginny Johnson, Ann Oswald, Susan Pappa, Lyn Rowe and Jean Tindall.

The winners will be announced at the banquet at Lancer's Steak House in Schaumburg. The cocktail hour starts at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Joel Weisman of the Chicago Sun-Times will be the speaker at the dinner. His topic is "Our Changing Political Climate and Our Changing Free Press." The speech will be followed by a question and answer session.

The men and women seeking the awards have been nominated by various individuals and civic organizations because of their service to the community in 1973.

• Hunter, 35, of 447 N. Willow Wood Dr., has been a member of the Palatine Kiwanis Club for nearly nine years, serving as a member of the board of directors, treasurer, vice president and president. He is also a member of the Palatine Jaycees.

Hunter, an accountant, is a member of the First United Methodist Church of Palatine and has been active in local government, Campus Crusade for Christ and the Willow Wood Civic Assn.

• Schneider, 31, of 44 S. Winston Dr., was nominated by two village trustees for his role in circulating a petition calling for a public hearing for former Police Chief Robert R. Centner.

Parks offer indoor tennis classes

The Salt Creek Park District, in cooperation with the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, is offering to residents of Palatine Township special tennis lesson packages. Special eight-week one-hour lessons will be offered beginning Feb. 18. Lessons will be offered Monday through Friday from 3 to 4 p.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. Cost is $28 for adults and $22 for children. Special mother and daughter and father-and-son classes will be held at the same times at reduced costs. Regular six-week group lessons will also be offered beginning Feb. 18. For registration information, call the district at 259-6890.

A second chance at high school diploma

Night school is for those who care

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"They teach too many useless things in school," says Gary, who was expelled from High School Dist. 211.

Gary just didn't like school and he couldn't see the need for many of his classes. But he thought he'd better get his diploma, so after he was expelled he enrolled in Dist. 211's night school program. Now he has nothing but praise for these classes. As he sums it up, "I go because I like the class. If I didn't, I wouldn't come."

• As the mother of a 17-year-old, June was frightened and embarrassed when she walked into her first night school class. Now she says she feels comfortable in the class and gets along with both her teenage and adult classmates. She wants to finish high school so she can go to college.

"Even if I want to be a sales girl, I would need that diploma," she says. What is even more important to June is the personal fulfillment she gets from going back to school. "Being in that class makes you more aware of who you are," she says.

• Marie attended high school in Chile, 11 years ago, before coming to America with her husband. When she gets her diploma from Dist. 211, she plans to enroll in keypunch operating courses at Harper College.

• Laurie and her four-year-old son came from Hawaii to live with her parents so she could attend Dist. 211 night classes. After finishing high school, she wants to become a nurse and go back to the island of Kauai where she was born. It's an effort to go to night school, says Laurie, but it's worth it. "When you apply for a job and tell them you went to night school they look at you and say, 'You must really care,'" she says.

THERE ARE 150 students in Dist. 211's night school program. About two per cent of the students in High School Dist.

211 are expelled or drop out of school each year, but like Gary many eventually enroll in night school. Between 60 and 70 per cent of the students are under 21.

The night school program includes courses in English, American history, social science and vocational studies. The average size of classes is between 15 and 20 students and most classes are held at Fremd High School in Palatine. They meet for two hours, twice a week for 15 weeks.

John Breault, social science teacher in the night school program, says most night classes are taught differently from the r-s-on-daughter programs of the YMCA's Indian Guide program.

In addition to his YMCA activities, Smith is a deacon of the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the finance committee.

• Sullivan, 33, of 919 E. Sayles Dr., has been active in youth sports and recreation activities in Palatine. In the Palatine Little League he served as vice president, vice president of the house league and an assistant coach. He also coaches two hockey teams and has been active in the Cub Scout program.

Sullivan is an electrical engineer and is working on a bachelor's degree at Illinois Institute of Technology.

• Mrs. Hill, 31, of 1802 W. Palatine Rd., is a volunteer at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. She is chairman of the cancer drive in her area and publicity chairman of the Infant Welfare Society. She has also been active in the PTA.

• Mrs. Johnson, 34, of 509 Pebble Creek Rd., helped establish a child day care center in Palatine Township. She is also a caseworker in Palatine Township on the women's advisory board of Harper College, a member of Immanuel Lutheran Church, member of the nominating staffing board of the Buehler YMCA, a Brownie leader, room mother and PTA member.

• Mrs. Oswald, 35, of 354 W. Palatine Rd., is an active member of the United Methodist Women's Steering Committee in charge of greeters for Sunday morning services. She is also a church school and Vacation Bible School teacher and worked on the new church directory. She is formerly a first grade teacher.

• Mrs. Peppas, 31, of 44 Imperial, is a board member of the Pleasant Hill PTA, Brownie leader and membership chairman of the Girl Scouts. She is also a member of the Buehler YMCA Distaffs, hostess for the Foreign Exchange students, collection volunteer for various charity drives and member of St. Simon's Church.

• Mrs. Rowe, 31, of 723 Monterey Rd., is a member of the League of Women Voters and editor of the league's newsletter.

She is a member of the Jaycee Wives and presently chairman of Operation Threshold Public Awareness.

• Mrs. Tindall, 29, of 1114 N. Williams Dr., is a member of the League of Women Voters and on the library study and civil rights committee of the league. She is also supervisor of the nursery of the Barrington Presbyterian Church and has tutored home-bound high school children.

Centner hearing seventh session to be reslated

The seventh session of the public hearing between former Palatine Police Chief Robert R. Centner and the village board, which was scheduled for tomorrow, has been canceled. No new hearing date has been set yet.

Paul Jung, Palatine Police and Fire Commission chairman, said yesterday that the hearing was postponed because Centner's attorney, John D. Hayes, was unable to get a continuance on a Friday court case.

Hearings are expected to continue in the evenings. The first hearing was held Dec. 1, although the decision to allow the hearings came in July from Palatine village trustees.

TESTIMONY HAS centered on events preceding Centner's forced resignation June 25. Republican majority village trustees elected in April held several secret meetings with Palatine policemen, according to testimony, before Centner's ouster. Centner supporters have charged that those trustees made a deal with disident policemen to remove the chief without sufficient reasons.

Witnesses expected to testify for Centner include former village manager Berton G. Braun, former Palatine Det. John Wallisch and Centner.

At the conclusion of the hearings, fire and police commissioners may make a recommendation to village trustees to support or reject seven charges against Centner brought by the village board. The major charge was poor administrative abilities.

The outcome of the hearing is expected to have little effect on the operation of the police department. Centner's successor, former Rochelle Police Chief Jerry Bratcher, was sworn in Tuesday morning.

Parks expand open swimming program

The open family swim program offered by the Salt Creek Park District at the Arlington Park Towers hotel pool has been expanded to include swimming Wednesday evenings from 3:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The new policy will now allow residents with swim passes to use the pool on Wednesday as well as weekends from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Families may still purchase swim passes for January through May by calling 259-6890. Cost is $7.50 for residents and $14 for nonresidents.

NIGHT SCHOOL classes at High School Dist. 211 include students aged 16 to 45, says teacher John Breault. Whether they are teen-age dropouts or housewives, they have one goal in mind — a high school diploma. Night classes usually are "less academic" than day classes, he says.

Night school: a second chance for some

day classes. Although the content of the day time social science course and Breault's course are about the same, he says the approach is different. The classroom atmosphere is more casual and lectures are more closely tied to current events.

STUDENTS ARE allowed to smoke cigarettes in the lounge during breaks and the tardy rules, rigidly enforced during the day, are more flexible at night. No one gets upset if a student walks into class five minutes late, he says.

Other attendance rules are enforced. If a student misses more than three classes a semester, he is dropped from the course, says Breault. "We stick close to that."

Breault doesn't use a textbook in his class. He gives lectures instead and requires students to take notes. It gets them more involved in the lecture and encourages them to ask more questions, he says. Day programs are "much more academic," says Breault, and require outside reading, projects, and a lot of homework.

Breault tries to bring current events into his lecture to make the subject more relevant. "I'm not going to tell them about some Indian tribe 5,000 miles away, it isn't relevant for them," he says. "It's got to be something different. We don't want to teach the same thing that they flunked out of during the day."

IN ONE CLASS Breault discussed the gasoline shortage and why gasoline prices are higher in some countries than others. He read a newspaper article describing how scientists believe they may someday be able to plan the sex of a child before it is conceived. He asked students the social implications of disrupting the sex ratio of a population. During a psychology lecture a student asked whether convicted mass murderer Richard Speck is insane.

During the day Breault is a counselor at Fremd High School. He sees a difference between the student who is constantly being disciplined during the day and the student who takes classes at night.

"I thought at first it was terrible to drop out of school but now I think these people in night school are better students," says Breault. "I'd rather see that kid get out of school and get involved in something. He's wasting his time and ours. If school is important to him later he can come back." When he does come back Breault says, "he's definitely a better student. He sees a need for education."

A STUDENT usually drops out of school during the day because he "did not see school as being worthwhile," says Breault. Sometimes it is better for that student to leave and "get whatever it is out of his system," he says. "They find out somewhere along the line that a diploma is pretty important!" usually when they are looking for a job, says Breault, and then they come back.

It's obvious Breault likes to teach night school students. "I've learned a lot from them," he says. "I really enjoy these kids, these people, because they are so teachable. They are willing to learn."

Dinner, play slated

A fund-raising dinner and play to support the Preservation of Human Dignity phone counseling service in Palatine is planned for March 10 at the Candlelight Theater in Summit.

Tickets are $12 per person, including a 6 p.m. dinner and tickets for "The Man of La Mancha." Tickets are available by phoning 359-6248 or 359-8125. Money raised from the evening will be used to support the volunteer telephone counseling service providing women advice on alternatives to abortion.

PTA notes

Palatine paramedic Joe Pannhausen will demonstrate emergency equipment used by village paramedics at a PTSA meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith Rd.

Following the program, there will be an opportunity for interested people to sign up for lessons on emergency care.

Palatine Hills PTSA officials are asking residents of the area to begin saving for a paper drive Feb. 12, 13 and 14 at the school, 1100 N. Smith Rd.

The British film, "How Safe are American Reactors?" will be shown at 8 p.m., Jan. 29 at Winston Churchill School, 120 Babcock Dr.

David Comey, director of environmental research for the Businessmen in the Public Interest, will be at the meeting.

The film, which was originally shown at William Rainey Harper Junior College 2½ months ago, is being presented by the Winston Churchill, Jane Addams and Virginia Lake PTAs.

Recycling day Saturday

Cans, bottles and newspapers will be collected Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Palatine Recycling Center, Smith Street at Northwest Highway.

The recycling committee recently purchased new paper bins which will hold approximately 12 tons of paper.

Provides $100,000 monthly

City buys policy insuring Western Electric payments

If there ever was any doubt about how valuable the Western Electric Co. is to Rolling Meadows, it was answered Tuesday by the city council.

A new insurance policy for the city accepted by the council Tuesday includes in it special coverage for the company located on Golf Road on the southwestern edge of the city.

The policy provision provides for up to $100,000 in monthly payments to the city in case the company should be forced to close due to an insurance-covered catastrophe.

The provision was requested by aldermen on the city finance committee during some five months of review of the city's total insurance program.

Western Electric, which bills all Chicago area customers from its Rolling Meadows address, generates thousands of sales tax dollars monthly for the city. The sum represents a major portion of the average $100,000 sales tax return to the city, a return second in the entire state only to that of the City of Chicago.

THE MONEY along with other funds has helped enable the city to maintain a number of free services for residents, including garbage pickup. Because of their reliance on the revenue, city officials sought to include protection of the sales tax-generating Western Electric on the city policy.

The policy, part of a total insurance package purchased Tuesday from the Arthur J. Gallagher and Co. insurance brokerage, carries a $1,000 premium for the special $1,200,000 yearly coverage. The coverage would provide monthly payments of up to $100,000 to the city if fire or some other insurable catastrophe struck the plant.

The Gallagher policy also provides the city with coverage on city-owned vehicles, property and general liability. A $3 million umbrella clause for "catastrophic coverage" is also included.

THE PLAN also provides protection against medical malpractice suits that could be filed against city policemen or fire department paramedics who administer emergency treatment.

The total three-year insurance package will cost approximately $43,000, which is slightly more than the city paid for coverage by another company last year. The Gallagher company underwrites insurance policies with a number of agencies and was therefore able to provide the city with greater coverage at only slightly higher costs, a spokesman for the company told the council.

The company also provides municipal insurance for the villages of Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Wheeling, Highland Park and the City of Evanston.

Eugene O'Sullivan appointed new welfare chief for city

Eugene M. O'Sullivan, 3700 Bluebird Ln., has been named Rolling Meadows welfare director.

O'Sullivan's appointment was announced Tuesday by Mayor Roland J. Meyer and approved by the city council. He succeeds Nicholas Schmitt, who resigned earlier this month.

O'Sullivan is employed with Bantam Books, Inc. in Des Plaines. He has worked with Schmitt, a vice president of Bantam, in working with handicapped persons and finding employment for them at the company.

He is a former president of the Rolling Meadows Library Board and member of the committee to help organize the Clearbrook Center for the Retarded.

He has resided in the city with his wife and three children for 16 years.

O'Sullivan will work with Rena Trevor,

Eugene M. O'Sullivan

assistant welfare director, in administering the city's $10,600 aid department.

The department was organized several years ago to provide emergency temporary family assistance to needy families in the city.

SIXTH-GRADE STUDENTS at Kimball Hill School, Rolling Meadows, are creating a plaster of paris statue as part of their history class. The statue will be clothed in the dress of different decades the youngsters are studying.

Hennessy to keep post for year

Acting Rolling Meadows Building and Zoning Officer John P. Hennessy will remain as interim building department chief until next year, Mayor Roland J. Meyer has announced.

Meyer said a new building officer would be appointed only for a 14-month term because a mayoral election will be held in the city next April. Meyer said if he does not run for reelection, or if he is defeated, the new mayor could appoint an other person to the position.

Applicants for the post have been reluctant to accept a short-term appointment, so Meyer said he will probably keep Hennessy as the acting department head.

MEYER ADDED that he has not decided whether he will seek election to a third term as city mayor. He said in the past he has always made that decision at the end of the calendar year preceding the April election.

"I really don't know," he said "It's a question I keep putting off. I'm going to have to start thinking about it seriously after the March primaries."

Hennessy, who is the city's superintendent of public works, has been serving

The local scene

Four win toboggans

Four winners were chosen last week to receive toboggans for participating in recycling in Rolling Meadows for the month of January.

They were Kay Kernek, 4736 Arbor Dr.; F. W. Baetzel, 4542 Gettysburg Dr.; Daniel Bonebrake, 2310 Eastman St.; and Barbara Piazza, 3861 Wren Ln.

Toboggans are awarded by drawing to persons who have participated in each of two monthly recycling drives in the city. They will be awarded again in February. The recycling program is sponsored by the recycling, ecology and beautification committee.

Job directory available

The 1974 edition of "Summer Employment Director of the United States" is available at the Rolling Meadows Public Library, 3110 Martin Ln.

More than 90,000 summer job openings at resorts, summer camps, national parks, summer theaters, ranches and restaurants are listed.

The book lists 13 per cent more summer jobs this year than last, according to the editors. All sections of the United States, except the South showed an increase. A quarter of the jobs also showed an increase in salaries.

Library adds 12 volumes

Twelve new books have been added to the collection at the Rolling Meadows Public Library. Included are "Motorcycling and the New Enthusiast" by Peter Salinger, "Collected Stories" by Graham Greene, "Golf Magazine's Great Golf Courses You Can Play" by Robert Scharff and "The Sultans" by Noel Barber.

Others are "Soda Pop" by Lawrence Dietz; "The Soaps: Daytime Serials of Radio and TV" by Madeline Edmondson; "Posters of World War Two" and "Hockey Action" by Denis Judd; "The R-Master" by Gordon Dickson; "The Bone Hunters" by Uri Lanham; "Learn to be Thin" by Shirley Simon, and "Please Pass the Guilt" by Rex Stout.

Bellydancing show set

A belly dancing program will be held at the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Feb. 2 in the shopping center mall.

Two shows will be presented, at 2 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. After each performance, adults will be eligible for a drawing for free lessons in belly dancing at the Salt Creek Park District.

The lessons are offered at the Rose Park fieldhouse by the district.

HE'S COMING BACK! Jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson and his all-British band will perform for the second consecutive year at Rolling Meadows High School Monday. His concert, held for the benefit of the Rolling Meadows High School band, will be at 8 p.m. in the gym. Tickets are $3 if purchased in advance from the school music department, band members or band booster club president Grant Vevang (phone 259-9640). Tickets will be $3.50 at the door.

Parks offer indoor tennis classes

The Salt Creek Park District, in cooperation with the Arlington Indoor Tennis Club, is offering to residents of Palatine Township special tennis lesson packages.

Special eight-week one-hour lessons will be offered beginning Feb. 18. Lessons will be offered Monday through Friday from 3 to 4 p.m. and 4 to 5 p.m. Cost is $28 for adults and $22 for children.

Special mother and daughter and father-and-son classes will be held at the same times at reduced costs.

Regular six-week group lessons will also be offered beginning Feb. 18.

For registration information, call the district at 259-6890.

Grants available for cultural center?

Plans for a cultural center in Rolling Meadows may draw financial support from a national art association's grant program.

The National Endowment for the Arts in Washington, D. C., which is affiliated with the National Council on the Arts, makes available up to $45,000 in matching funds to municipalities which qualify. The funds can be used to purchase art work, sculptures and mosaics of the type which could be used in the city's cultural center envisioned for the future.

The availability of the grants was brought to the attention of the city council Tuesday by Robert Cobb, a local resident who is seeking a personal grant from the foundation to pursue his own art interests.

Cobb, a high school art teacher and private painter, told the city council Tuesday the foundation can grant a qualifying municipality up to $45,000 for purchase of art objects provided the municipality matches the grant.

Application for the grant must be made six months in advance, he pointed out. Cobb said the funds could be used to help furnish a cultural center with art work.

THE CITY HAS held two meetings in recent months to discuss the possibility of building a cultural center perhaps in the rotunda section of the Crossroads of Commerce motel-office complex under construction on Algonquin Road east of Ill. Rte 53.

The plan was first proposed when Mayor Roland J. Meyer was approached by Kenneth Tucker of Kenroy Inc., builders of the complex, on the availability of space at the development.

Some 6,000 to 7,000 square feet of space could be leased by the city if the center is planned, Tucker told Meyer.

Suggestions have been made to include in a center a theater for the performing arts which could accommodate professional acting companies as well as local repertory companies and musical concerts. Another area of a center could hold exhibits of arts and crafts, it has been suggested.

Discussions have all been tentative, but the matter will be brought up again, probably next month, when the committee looking into the proposal meets.

Hennessy to keep post for year

as acting building officer since the retirement Dec. 28 of Sverre Haug. Meyer said Hennessy will not receive additional pay while in the acting departmental capacity. His salary as public works superintendent is $18,188 yearly.

The building officer is selected by appointment of the mayor with the consent of the city council.

MEYER SAID he would appoint someone to the building position, however, if a qualified and acceptable candidate was found. "If the demands increase, we would have to consider it, but it doesn't appear that will happen," he said. "We'll just keep going along on a day-to-day basis with it."

The city has interviewed a number of candidates for the post left vacant by the retirement of the 68-year-old Haug. Several who have been offered the post apparently declined either because of salary differences or hesitation about taking only a one-year appointment.

Hennessy has been the city's superintendent of public works since his appointment by Meyer in August, 1972.

The building officer heads the building department which enforces all city building codes and issues all building permits.

City council wrapup

Plan public meet on transit authority

Rolling Meadows city officials are planning with the Chamber of Commerce to hold a public meeting soon on the proposed Regional Transit Authority.

The meeting is tentatively set for Feb. 6 in the auditorium of Rolling Meadows High School. Speakers supporting and opposing the RTA will be featured and a public question and answer session will be included.

Final details of the meeting are being arranged by Chamber director Harry O'Brien.

Ald. John Rock (3rd) said at a city council meeting Tuesday several residents of his ward had requested a meeting be held on the RTA. The Illinois General Assembly approved an RTA package, but a statewide referendum must be approved March 19 before the transit system can be formed.

A discussion of RTA will also be held Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, City Mgr. James Watson said.

Sewer contract awarded

A bid of $27,027.30 from the Rossetti Contracting Co. of Rolling Meadows for storm sewer and water main work was accepted by the city council Tuesday.

The bid was submitted for several projects that had been consolidated into one package, City Engineer James Muldowney said. The work will include the extension of storm sewers on Hicks Road and Wilmette Avenue, Hicks and Euclid Avenue, water main work on Kirchhoff Road and work at the city's sixth well site on Golf Road west of Algonquin Road.

Rossetti's bid was the lowest of several submitted.

December fuel taxes totaled

Motor fuel tax funds received by the city for the month of December amounted to $18,108.

Two music students chosen for concert

Two music students from Rolling Meadows High School have been selected to appear with the Illinois All-State Band and Orchestra Festival on Saturday. They are Robert Mulley and David Gauger, both trumpet players in the instrumental music program at Rolling Meadows.

The Festival Concert will be presented at Arlington Park Track Clubhouse at 1:30 p.m. The program will feature the all-state band orchestra, and chorus. Students who qualified for the performance were selected by audition. This concert is presented in conjunction with the state meeting of the Illinois Music Educators Association.

Bob Mulley is the son of Mrs. Jean Mulley, 2501 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows. Dave Gauger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gauger, 3900 Bluebird Ln., Rolling Meadows.

The Jazz Band from Rolling Meadows High School will perform on Friday, at the Arlington Park Towers. They will be entertaining the students who are performing in the all-state concert.

Planners to review subdivision site

A plan to subdivide into three parcels a five-acre site on Rohlwing Road in the northern industrial park will be reviewed by the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission.

The plan was presented for preliminary consideration to the public works building and zoning committee Monday by Smith-Pipenhagen Inc., real estate brokers, owners of the parcel.

The site is located behind the Brake-Align Service and Supply company in the northern industrial park. The proposal calls for the site to be divided into three parcels, one for an office-warehouse building, a second for another proposed office and a third which will remain undeveloped.

Parks expand open swimming program

The open family swim program offered by the Salt Creek Park District at the Arlington Park Towers hotel pool has been expanded to include swimming Wednesday evenings from 3:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The new policy will now allow residents with swim passes to use the pool on Wednesdays as well as weekends from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Families may still purchase swim passes for January through May by calling 259-6390. Cost is $7.50 for residents and $14 for nonresidents.

Holmes launches write-in drive for committeeman

William Holmes launched a write-in campaign for the post of Schaumburg Township Democratic committeeman this week, charging his incumbent opponent, John F. Morrissey, uses the office to protect political jobs for himself and family members.

Holmes' name was removed from the March 19 ballot after Morrissey successfully challenged his nominating petitions on the basis that they contained more than the legal limit of 335 signatures.

Holmes, of Hoffman Estates, is a veteran member and officer of the Schaumburg Township Regular Democratic Organization. He explained his position in a letter to petition signers, explaining why their signature and his petitions were disqualified.

"It was just a simple case of too many names," he said, adding "the reason my name was not printed on the ballot was due to an objection filed on a sworn statement as an interested objector."

CALLING THIS a "half-truth," Holmes said if Morrissey had stated the full truth, the objection would have stated "interested elector, incumbent — protecting the political jobs for himself, his wife, his father and sometimes his son — a personal domain — hardly just an interested elector."

Morrissey, an attorney, represents the Cook County Forest Preserve District. While it has been rumored that other family members hold Cook County patronage jobs, Morrissey could not be reached for comment yesterday. He has held the committeeman post for five years.

Holmes said his petition signatures were gathered by 30 people "working in the cold and snow," noting that many of the workers were young adults first experiencing politics and old-line party faithfuls "hoping to see a nothing party revitalized," as well as a number of his personal friends.

A MOBILE headquarters, donated by a friend for campaign use, will be used to instruct voters on write-in procedures, he said.

Also vying for the township committeeman post is John J. Carsello of Schaumburg.

United Party to help choose trustee nominee

Schaumburg United Party (SUP) will again play a significant role in the selection of a nominee to fill a Schaumburg Village Board vacancy.

But procedures in naming a replacement for Denis Ledgerwood, whose resignation was accepted by the village board this week, will differ from those used to fill other vacancies during the past two years.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher plans to appoint a four-member nominating committee and name as chairman Trustee Raymond Kessell, senior board member, a village spokesman said yesterday.

The committee will include Trustee Herbert J. Aigner; Laurel DuLaney, representing SUP area chairmen, and Trudi Cafferata, president of Schaumburg United Party Women's Auxiliary (SUP).

'Superjock' to emcee rock fest

Superjock, Larry Lujack, is coming to Hoffman Estates.

He'll be headlining a rock festival Feb. 9, at Hoffman Estates High School, 1100 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The Penny Royal Band, a rock-jazz group of eight local talents will provide music and Lujack will pull his shenanigans during intermissions to include an amateur talent contest whose acts will be judged by peers.

"Usually the dumbest acts win," Lujack said. "Like the time kids gathered and ate all the dead bugs in the room."

Record albums will be given as prizes during the program to run from 8 to 11 p.m.

The festival is sponsored by Hoffman Estates Woman's Club who will use proceeds to help refurbish the community center at 161 Illinois Blvd. where the Hoffman Estates Village Hall used to be. Proceeds will also go to the Woman's Club's other philanthropies.

Advance tickets are available for $2 at Conant, Schaumburg, Fremd and Hoffman Estates high schools. Tickets will also be sold at the door for $2.50.

Tickets also are available by calling Mrs. Robert Oberle, Woman's Club ways and means chairman, at 882-3873.

'Three musketeers'

But they're 'enemies' in fencing tourneys

by STIRLING MORITA

The three Turgeon brothers of Schaumburg are fast approaching the swordsmanship of the Three Musketeers, but to look at them competing in a fencing tourney, one would get the impression they're enemies.

"They're all bad losers," said their father, Leo, 728 W. Weathersfield Way. "In fact, they probably compete harder against a brother because they know that's where the competition is."

The Turgeon basement is filled with fencing trophies. Twin brothers, Mike and Kenny, both 13, were rated 1-2 in the state last year and have parried and lunged their way to first and second place ratings, respectively, in Illinois for the under 14-years-old category. Younger brother, Mark, 12, the heir apparent to the top state ranking, is presently third.

LEO TURGEON has coached his sons for the last three years and brought fencing to the young and old in Schaumburg about 1½ years ago. Other members of the Schaumburg Fencing Club rank in the top ten in the state. They are Rick Krause, 13, Kevin Seacock, 11, Marty Templeton, 13, and John Zajack, 13. There are about 30 young fencers in the state, Turgeon said.

Success for the youngsters was spawned in practice sessions for the fencing club. Registration for the club starts Monday at the Schaumburg Park District office, 220 E. Weathersfield Way. Fee is $10.

Turgeon is attempting to draw persons from the Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park park districts. Persons in those areas may register through their respective park district. There is no age limit, and there have been club members as old as 50.

Turgeon, who has also started a fencing club in Elk Grove Village, hopes eventually to form Hoffman Estates and Hanover Park residents into separate clubs to eventually form a league.

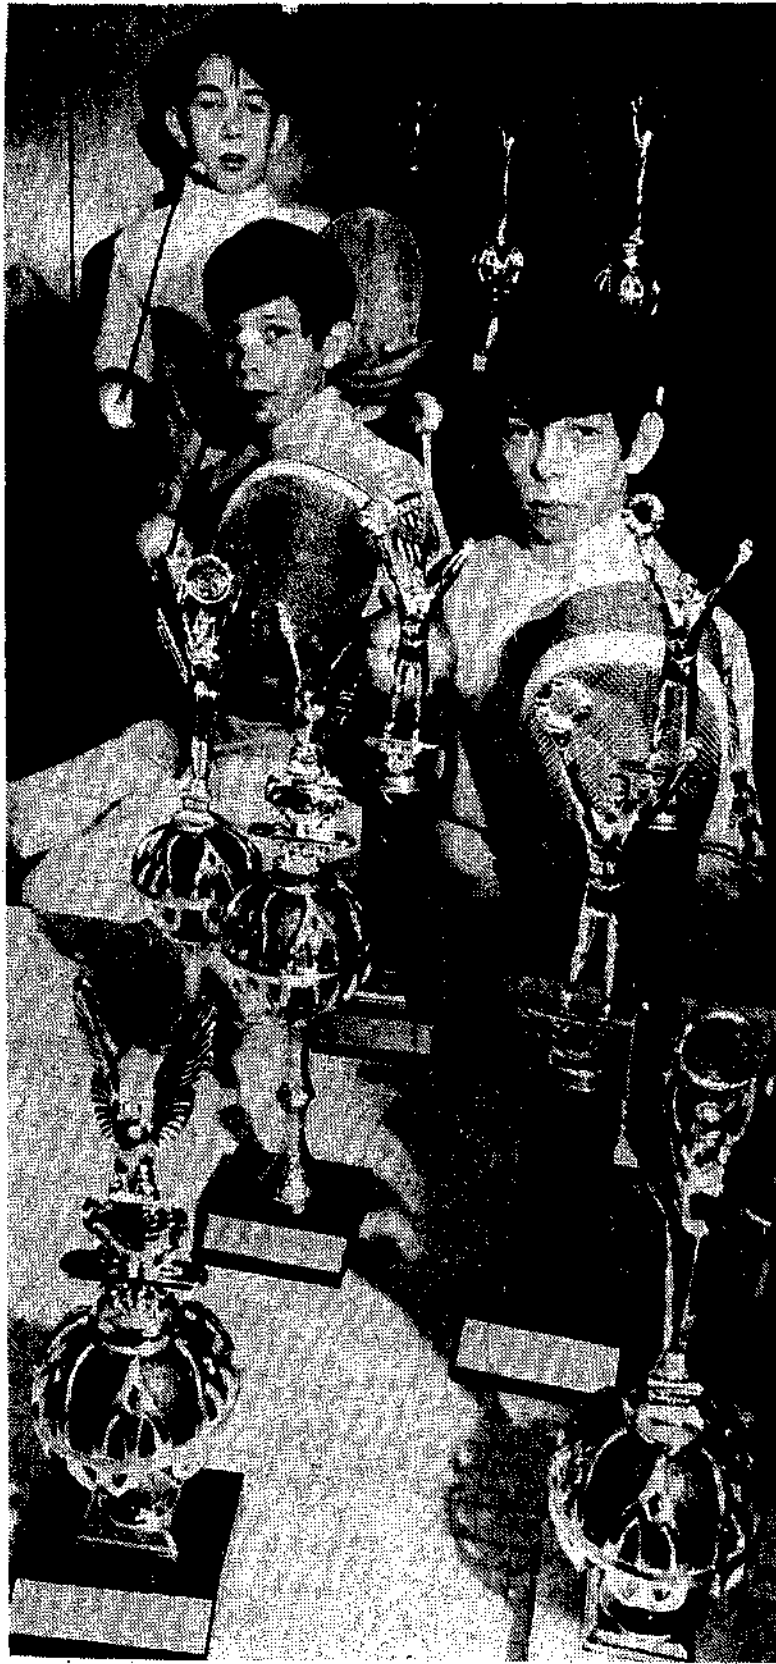

ANOTHER DREAM is to establish a fencing club for Schaumburg High School, he said. He added that the high school would be ahead of other fencing schools because Schaumburg High could be furnished with fencers already with two-years worth of experience while well-known fencing powers like Notre Dame in Niles, must work with the youths from scratch in freshman year. A majority of the young fencers will be ready to enter the high school next year.

"It's a sport for the whole family," said Turgeon, noting that his wife and daughter also participate.

Turgeon first got the idea for a fencing club while his family was in Livonia, Mich. He needed a sport for the Indian Guides Chapter there, and he suggested fencing. It wasn't successful, but two girls came to him later, and a family club was started. When the family moved to Schaumburg about two years ago, Turgeon went to the various park districts for help.

TURGEON RECALLED that at one time he had to defeat his wife for a club gold medal — just barely 5-4.

For a $10 fee, the participant will be provided with a mask, vest and foil.

FENCING TROPHIES galore. Mark, Mike and Ken Turgeon of Schaumburg are in the top three spots in the state for youthful fencers under 14 years old.

Turgeon added that the fencing had been cliquish in the past, but said, "That's what I'm trying to get away from. I want to open it up to the whole family."

The youngsters learn and con-

Turgeon said he likes to get the youngsters into using the foils right way — four weeks into practice so they won't become bored. "At the start, there's a lot of Errol Flynn (swashbuckling) style."

THERE'S A LOT of exercise that comes with participating in about 10 bouts a day in a tournament. The brothers said they were not only physically, but mentally exhausted after a meet.

The three boys have placed 1-2-3 in two recent U. S. Junior Olympic tournaments. In another junior olympic tourney, two brothers placed first and third.

Kenny said the thing to think of is just "fight, fight, fight."

"I like it because if you win a championship in fencing you're recognized as the winner. Where in baseball it's the whole team," Kenny said.

Instead of the customary pool cue or gun racks that grace many suburban basements, the Turgeon basement displays 15 fencing swords.

Even though there are many trophies, Turgeon is making room for more. Mike and Kenny graduate to a different level next year, leaving an opening for Mark.

'They compete harder against a brother'

stantly practice the foil competition. Epee and sabre come later, Turgeon said. Foil is a modern version of the dueling rapier, and the target is the upper torso and groin area. The epee is a heavier sword, and the target is the whole body. Sabre is a version of the slashing cavalry sword, the target being the upper part of the body.

Crossroads will lose its 'home'

by JULIA BAUER

Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.

The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Michelin confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.

"We're going to try to look in Palatine" for a new clinic location, Mrs. Michelin said.

DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.

Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Philippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.

If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort." Finlayson said. That clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.

FINLAYSON IS building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.

The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.

In the meantime, Mrs. Michelin will begin working full time as Crossroads Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.

Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.

PALATINE TOWNSHIP auditors reaffirmed their funding decision after nearly 2½ hours of public discussion Tuesday at Sanborn School. Primary objections centered on the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives without parental consent. Objectors charged that the practice may encourage promiscuity and harms parent-child relationships.

Petitions bearing more than 3,100 signatures opposing township funding of the clinic were submitted at Tuesday's meeting.

Supporters of Crossroads emphasize the clinic's success at reaching teenagers by supplying vital health services to teens including the detection of venereal disease in youths who did not know they carried the disease.

ALL YOUTHS coming into the clinic are tested for syphilis and gonorrhea. Contraceptives, according to clinic spokesmen, are an important part of a program that also treats post-abortion medical problems and gives pregnancy tests. Minor infections, such as yeast and trichomonis, are also treated at the clinic.

Palatine Township officials added a restriction to their grant that none of the $5,000 be used to reimburse the birth control activities of the clinic. The funds may be used to purchase medical equipment and supplies for examining rooms.

Strong-hearted students give 'em the facts on TV

by STIRLING MORITA

It took a strong heart for 20 sixth and seventh graders to face glaring lights, gun microphones, an ominous NBC camera and a full television crew yesterday at Dirksen School, Schaumburg.

Five students sat with backs erect, hands folded nervously in their laps, waiting to give their short statements concerning the heart. The students, who have taken or are taking a recently expanded heart health course for Schaumburg Township District 54, had been kept waiting in the school library for two hours while a crew from WMAQ busily scattered electric cords and prepared a script.

Meg Lochary, 11, was so anxious to start her beginning statement that she spoke before the crew was ready. Another take had to be shot when the children rapidly shot out their facts about the heart.

DURING THE SECOND take, Scott Balousek, 13, forgot his line, paused for about 10 seconds and continued his short speech. He was assured by the crew that the mistake could be edited.

And after those takes were over, the lights were momentarily shut off, and each of the children took a deep breath, relaxed their tense shoulder muscles and leaned back in their chairs.

The 20 students were from Robert Frost Junior High School and Dirksen School. Some are former students of Mrs. Pat Cassidy, and others are presently under her tutelage.

The WMAQ crew was filming footage for the "Memorandum" show. The film will be shown at 11 a.m. Feb. 17 on Channel 5.

EMPHASIZED IN THE show will be how the students learn about the heart and the circulatory system by using plastic models, taking blood pressures and taking blood samples and typing their blood.

District 54 is one of the first school districts in the northern division of the Cook County Heart Assn. to expand the program. The curriculum, which also includes how life styles affect the body, was developed in California.

Cougar Backstrom to be at 7-Eleven

Hockey star Ralph Backstrom, center for the Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association, will chat with fans Sunday at the 7-Eleven Store, 504 W. Golf Rd., Schaumburg.

Fans will have a chance to personally meet the star player from 1 to 2 p.m. when he'll be giving hockey tips. Personally autographed photos also will be given out.

Complimentary refreshments will be served by 7-Eleven during the hour long visit.

District 54 expanded the program from two to 14 schools for the 1973-74 school year. Sixth graders take a nine-week course — five 40-minute classes a week. Some of the 20 students had starred in a Heart Assn. film prepared in order to solicit money from big businessmen.

THE YOUNGSTERS, while sitting in the library, claimed they hardly noticed their nervousness although they had been waiting two hours.

Pat Irwin, 12, admitted he was a little nervous and said he passed the time popping the air bubbles in plastic packaging wrap — which "is better than biting your fingernails."

Julie Caldwell and Nancy Blaker, both 12, sat with friends and gossiped. Both girls said they did not know how they would react when the camera zoomed in.

Mrs. Cassidy was one of the first teachers to attend a Heart Assn. workshop. Hannah Wilson, coordinator of health and nursing services, said 18 teachers were now qualified to teach the course. Mrs. Wilson added that she hoped to expand it to the whole district, next year.

Many of the study materials and models used in school districts throughout the area are donated by the Heart Assn.

Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Jack van Elk, former president of the northern division of the Cook County Heart Assn., were interviewed on views for heart education and how the program is instructed.

United Party to help pick trustee nominee

WA), the spokesman explained.

All interested applicants are asked to submit letters or resumes to the office of the mayor, 231 S. Civic Dr. Consideration, according to the spokesman, will not be restricted to SUP members.

NAMES OF APPLICANTS will be given to the nominating committee, which will conduct a personal interview with each prospective candidate.

After the interviews, the nominating committee will recommend three candidates to the SUP executive board, which then will narrow the field down to one recommendation to present to the mayor and board of trustees.

The spokesman indicated no deadline has been set yet for a recommendation date.

SINCE SUP was formally organized as a local independent party in August, 1971, village board vacancies have been filled by remaining trustees strictly on recommendation of the party's executive board.

This was the case when Peter J. Justen was selected to replace former Trustee Gordon Mullins in January, 1972, and again when Ledgerwood was chosen to fill the vacancy created by the July 1972 resignation of Jack Larson.

A FLAMING TOWEL dispenser was reported as the starting point of a fire late yesterday afternoon at Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor in Woodfield Mall. The fire, which was contained to the washroom, did an estimated $500 damage, and forced some 40 patrons to vacate the popular spot. Fire officials on the scene indicated the origins of the blaze were "suspicious." (Photo by Jay Needleman)

Children win toys

Two local youths won toys during a recent picture coloring contest sponsored by Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

They are Teresa Weaver, 8, of 414 Clifton Ct., Schaumburg and Brad Bakanez, 5, of 590 Chippendale Pl., Hoffman Estates.

McMahon Realty unbeaten

With an undefeated record so far, the McMahon Realty basketball team is in the top real estate for Division B of the Hoffman Estates Park District men's basketball league.

In Division A, the Red Shirts are in first place a game ahead of second-place Barrington Square.

More High Point Park woes ahead

by STIRLING MORITA

Hoffman Estates Park District's headaches over High Point Park continue. More money than had been anticipated was used to help correct flooding conditions at the undeveloped site near MacArthur School. The village has assessed a $4,800 cost to the park district and a developer for street damage caused by dirt-hauling trucks to the site.

Area residents clamored for several weeks about the district's placing too many athletic fields at the park, which is surrounded by houses. And now with heavy rains and melting snow, the lake is flooding, and officials theorize there may be a blockage in the outlet sewer pipe.

The park board of commissioners sat down Tuesday night with their contractors and hammered out a very rough schedule of completion for major park construction possibly ending in July.

"It was supposed to be done in September. It's an unholy, ungodly mess," Board Pres. Fred Weaver said. "And everyone is excited (upset) about it."

THE COMMISSIONERS were told that about 2,000 cubic yards of clay were needed for a better foundation for the tennis courts and that about 3,000 yards of black dirt were needed to complete the area around the water retention basin.

Kaufman and Broad Inc., developers of the Barrington Square subdivision, who had hauled dirt to the park at a nominal fee for the park district, will provide the clay fill if a survey of the land determines that not enough fill was brought by Kaufman and Broad to the site. If the survey determines adequate fill, the desired clay fill would have to be purchased for $3,000.

The park district has already spent about $200,000 on the site — more than had originally been anticipated.

Money for major projects at High Point and Winston Knolls parks and for landscaping, grading and playground equipment at various park and park-school sites was approved in a $675,000 park improvements bond referendum.

Weaver said a majority of the sites excluding Winston Knolls and High Point parks was about 95 per cent complete.

THE PRESENT flooding situation at High Point Park near the school has the board baffled. John Mackey of Kessler, Mercier and Lochner Inc. told the board the drainage from the lake may be hampered by some sort of obstruction in the sewer pipe that leads to the Twin Lakes.

He added that the only sure way of finding it was to check the pipe with a television camera.

He also recommended that trash racks be placed on inlet and outlet pipes so that wood and other debris could not get into the system.

James Casey of Casey Construction Co. will make the survey of the park land. His company will also scrape dirt from the park to make up the required 3,000 cubic yards of black dirt to finish the area near the retention basin.

The board was told the tennis court area was on spongy black dirt and that clay or rock fill would be needed to make a floating foundation and prevent the courts from facing cracks when the ground settles.

THE RAINY WEATHER during the end of 1972 and all of 1973 has hampered work crews because heavy equipment could not be operated on the muddy site. If warm weather comes early and continues without constant rainfall, the contractors possibly could have the major construction done in July.

But one potential obstruction lingers in the future for the park district.

Since the Hoffman Estates Public Works Department has repaired and repaved Glen Lake Road, which was damaged by trucks hauling dirt to the site, a five-ton truck limit was placed on the street. If this were enforced, the park district's contractors would be unable to bring in heavy vehicles such as cement trucks and other heavy equipment.

'Widespread discontent' charged

Police union editorial calls for Chief Giddens to resign

by TOM VON MALDER

The Combined Counties Police Assn has called for the resignation of Mount Prospect Police Chief Bert Giddens.

In an editorial, entitled "Chief Should Go Back to Teaching," the policemen's union charges:

"In a short time, he (Giddens) has created widespread discontent among the patrolmen and supervisory personnel. Seldom in his office and frequently gone from the municipal building, Chief Giddens still finds times to make insulting and disparaging remarks to his superiors, play one man against another by promising them good positions, discriminate against CCPA members, and generally treat his men in an arbitrary and capricious manner."

Giddens yesterday said, "I haven't any comment. I haven't read the article. I only read professional magazines."

THE EDITORIAL appeared in the January-February 1974 issue of "Police Professional," the official publication of the CCPA. At its end, it stated: "We think the village manager should take a close look at the police department and its chief and ask himself this question, 'Does Mount Prospect need this kind of leadership?'"

Village Mgr Robert J. Eppley also said he had not seen the article. He said he had "absolutely not" been approached by any member of the CCPA with a request that Giddens be removed as police chief.

Giddens denied there was any "widespread discontent" among members of the police department and Eppley said he was not aware of any discontent.

Giddens, who has been chief for two years has been the target of some gripes as he has instituted operational changes in the department.

SPECIFIC CHANGES that caused comments included the starting of a daily roll call for each shift, the requiring of a written report on all police calls and an order stopping policemen from giving each other rides to and from work in police cars. The order concerning rides has since been rescinded until additional parking space for policemen is found. Virtually all of the new practices are common in other departments.

Last week, a public hearing was held before the village's board of fire and police commissioners on the appeal of two policemen to suspensions handed down by Giddens last November. Sgt. Gerald A. Glascock and Patrolman Eugene Hooten were suspended for three and two days respectively after alleged "conduct unbecoming an officer."

Before the hearing, CCPA head John Flood said that organization would try to broaden the hearing by attempting to show that Giddens "has been abusing our membership." Flood said, "We (the union) are getting sick and tired of the administrations of Chief Giddens." He added that Giddens' actions have been "capricious and arbitrary" and that Giddens has allegedly talked in an "insulting manner" to some of the policemen.

FLOOD AT THAT time would not detail specific incidents. Yesterday, Flood was unavailable for comment, as was Patrolman Warren Fischer, president of the Mount Prospect CCPA chapter. The chapter was formed in May 1972 and official (continued on page 5)

Homeowners group to fight Golf-Meier complex plans

Residents of the Forest View West subdivision in Mount Prospect are forming a homeowners' group to fight plans for a 284-acre commercial-residential development at the northwest corner of Golf and Meier roads.

"Just about everyone" who lives in the subdivision, which consists of 50 to 60 homes, has joined the new group, according to the acting secretary, Jackie Haeger.

She said the organization is being set up "in general with the sole purpose at this time of fighting this project" to build stores on 2 1/2 acres and duplexes on the remaining five acres.

The developer, Fredman Developments Inc., Mount Prospect, is scheduled to outline plans for the complex at a public hearing before the village's zoning board of appeals tonight. The firm, however, has stated it will ask to withdraw the petition for a rezoning while plans are being revised to make the development more compatible with the area.

MRS. HAEGER said residents of the area were not consulted by the firm regarding any change in plans, and said they would fight any development of the tract other than single-family. "We are prepared to fight all the way to the courts, the whole bit," she said. "We don't want this."

Some of the Forest View West residents are expected to attend tonight's hearing to object to continuances in the Fredman case. It was originally scheduled to be heard Nov. 29, but was postponed to Dec. 27 and then again to tonight.

The homeowners' objections to the development include: It would worsen flooding in the area, constitute spot zoning which is incompatible with the surrounding area, increase traffic and school enrollment, and lower home values.

An attorney has been engaged by the homeowners to represent them in zoning hearings. In addition, he is preparing incorporation papers for the group.

Officers are Ray Schultz, 2113 Haven St., acting president; Robert Klein, 2116 Jodi Ct., acting vice president; and Anthony Falco, 524 Lois Ct., acting treasurer.

Senior citizens urged: finish questionnaires

The Mount Prospect Senior Citizens Advisory Council has asked senior citizens in town to complete the housing questionnaires included in the mailing of the village calendar. So far, more than 400 questionnaires have been returned and the results are being tabulated. The forms should be sent to the Mount Prospect Country Club, 600 S. See-Gwin Ave. as soon as possible.

LESTER MARSHALL had students at Indian Grove School in Mount Prospect in awe Tuesday performing magic tricks and demonstrating ventriloquism. Marshall appeared at the school as part of a PTA-sponsored program. The entertainer has worked with Walt Disney Productions on various animated feature films.

Library grows in books, films...and use

Despite a severe space shortage, the Mount Prospect Public Library last year grew in every way possible.

Head librarian Mary Jo Hutchings said the library's circulation figures showed an increase of 1,941 with a total of 367,590 for 1973. The average daily number of persons who visited the library, at 14 E. Busse Ave., was 735.

More books were added to the library's collection in 1973 than were added in 1972. The 7,082 books added last year were 820 more than the 6,262 added in 1972. The library, at the end of the year, had a total book collection of 71,092 or just over a book and a half per village resident.

The library had a net gain of 2,618 borrowers last year, with many of these new borrowers continuing to come from the New Town section in the northeast part of the village. The total number of borrowers from this area, annexed in September 1971, is 3,296 — an increase of 816.

IN ADDITION to books, many other educational and recreational aides were added to the library's collection. These included 91 cassettes, 124 films, 317 records, 394 microfilms, 44 art prints and eight sculptures. Both the art prints and the sculptures can be borrowed for a month for $1.

Services offered for the first time last year included the special law enforcement section (funded through donations by the Jaycee Wives, Rotary Club and Randhurst Merchants' Assn.) and small art prints (Mini-Masters) for youngsters. The library also issued its first Infopass to permit a library user to use the Center for Research Libraries.

Newly added to the library were the "Business Periodical Index," the "Congressional Record," a second story hour for children, a filmstrip projector and an additional reference librarian.

A building program statement was drawn up by Mrs. Hutchings and presented to the library board. The board then presented it to the village board, which is considering expansion of the village's municipal facilities. New library facilities have been mentioned as a possibility in connection with that proposed expansion.

Parents to urge schools stop using 'sexist' materials

A committee of School Dist. 21 parents tonight plans to ask the school board to stop the use of what the committee feels to be sexist materials in local schools.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The committee intends to request that the school board include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds."

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

Judy Keller, 1210 E. Buil Oak Dr., and Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., both of Arlington Heights, are scheduled to represent the committee in making the policy adoption request.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board will consider the following items:

- Proposed resolution for participating in a Regional Service Agency for handicapped children

- Evaluation of the Tempron Surveillance System, a computerized monitoring system installed in local schools last fall to prevent fires and vandalism

- Northwest Educational Cooperative Data Processing Center

Following the regular business meeting, the board is scheduled to go into executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

Police union asks Giddens leave post

cially recognized by the village after an October 1972 vote among patrolmen. The vote for the union was 29 to 2.

The CCPA through its attorneys Sherwin Kite and Fred Kunik, failed to document any instances of discrimination by Giddens during the appeal hearing. Both men represented Hooten at the hearing.

The closest anyone came to making a charge against Giddens at that hearing was when Glascock's attorney, John Bickley Jr., said of Giddens: "You can't rule a department through fear and intimidation." Throughout the hearing, Giddens' attorney, Jack Siegel, maintained that Giddens' action in suspending the two men was to maintain the department's discipline.

THE CCPA EDITORIAL also stated that Giddens left the Evanston Police Department, where he had been police chief for seven years, shortly after a chapter of the CCPA was formed among Evanston policemen. "The Evanston policemen, almost to a man, were dissatisfied with his policies and his administrative practices," the editorial read.

During the summer of 1969, before Giddens left to take a teaching position at Loop College, City Colleges of Chicago, 14 black policemen charged Giddens with a "lack of leadership" and discrimination in promotions, beat assignments and advanced training school appointments. White policemen filed a charge of promotion discrimination against Giddens with the city's human relations commission about the same time. That summer too, CCPA members threatened a "sick-in" to secure higher salaries.

When asked if his leaving the Evanston Police Department had anything to do with the CCPA, Giddens told The Herald he preferred to stay with his previous answer of "no comment."

A MOUNT PROSPECT fireman helps extinguish a fire in an upstairs bedroom of the Ralph Powell home, 1608 Greenwood Dr., yesterday morning. The fire was contained to the bedroom, causing an estimated $750 damage to the room and $5,000 in smoke damage to the house. No one was hurt.

Two grocery stores closing

Two Mount Prospect grocery stores, including a major chain store, are in the process of being closed. Meanwhile, another major grocery store may soon be opened.

The Jewel Food Store at 208 W. Northwest Hwy., will close Saturday. A spokesman for the Jewel Tea Co. in Melrose Park said the store was "too small and outdated. It is no longer profitable for us." Jewel has no immediate plans to replace the store.

Busse Food and Liquor Inc., 912 Busse Rd., closed its doors to the public on Monday amidst rumors that the building would be replaced by a shopping center or ballroom. The manager of the store was unavailable for comment yesterday.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. reportedly is considering opening a store at the intersection of Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street. A&P filed an application to the village for a package liquor license at that site, but spokesmen for the grocery chain were unavailable for comment.

'Roaring Twenties' night

"Return to the Roaring Twenties" night will be sponsored Feb. 2 by the athletic committee of St. Emily Church, 1400 E. Central Rd., Mount Prospect. Music will be provided by the "Buffalo Shufflers." Prizes will be given for best costumes. Admission is $3.50 a person; tickets are available by calling 827-3380.

$500,000 steak restaurant coming?

Mount Prospect may be the site of a $500,000 steak restaurant.

The owners of the Brown Derby restaurant in Palatine are considering a site on Rand Road near the Forest City store for a 1,000-seat restaurant specializing in banquet facilities.

Joe Demme, one of the owners of the Brown Derby, confirmed yesterday that the site is being studied, but said no decision has been reached whether to locate El Presidente Restaurant Inc. in Mount Prospect. Another site, in Palatine, also is being considered, he said.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Maryville soil test report coming

Dist. 26 Supt. John Fridlund expects to receive a written report by the end of the week on results of soil tests taken last week at the Maryville Academy grounds, he told the school board Tuesday night.

Preliminary results of the tests taken by the Testing Services Corp. of Wheaton revealed the land is composed of less cinder fill than initial soil borings indicated. The company feels this land is suitable for building.

Fridlund learned the results of the tests from a phone conversation Tuesday with a representative from the soil testing company. The findings were made public at Tuesday night's school board meeting.

The test results are based on nine soil borings made in the southeast portion of the five-acre property which has been proposed as the site for the new Maryville School.

THE ILLINOIS Capital Development Board earlier this month directed the board to find another site for the school because it felt the land contained too much cinderfill to be acceptable for building.

The ICDB's decision was based on tests conducted by the Allied Soil Mechanics Co. of Naperville, which found the land to be composed of between eight to 10 feet of cinderfill. The board later discovered that these initial soil tests were made in the area of the Feehanville drainage ditch, an area of excessive landfill.

The board hopes the ICDB will change its mind about the site as a result of the new findings and allow construction of the school at the Maryville grounds.

Fridlund told the board, however, that even if the problem of having the land declared suitable for building is overcome, the problem of providing sewer and water facilities at the site will have to be considered.

The city of Des Plaines has told the district it will cost at least $50,000 to tie into its sewer and water system.

Reimbursement sought

Dist. 26 has filed a grant application under the Illinois Capital Assistance Program seeking reimbursement on the principal and interest for life safety bonds sold last year.

If the application is approved, the district could receive as much as $26,791.64 in state funds to pay for this year's debt on the bonds. If the funds come through, it would save taxpayers in the district collectively that much money on their bills, or approximately one cent per $100 assessed valuation.

Crossroads Clinic to lose present facility

by JULIA BAUER

Crossroads Clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, is being forced out of its current location, after notification by the building's owner that the lease for the office space will not be renewed.

The lease expires at the end of April. Clinic coordinator Barbara Micheln confirmed yesterday that clinic workers were notified of the lease decision Friday.

"We're going to try to look in Palatine" for a new clinic location, Mrs. Micheln said.

DR. DOUGLAS Finlayson, who helped start the clinic during evening hours at his office, said the lease notification came as a surprise, but he would prefer the clinic be located in a roomier, better facility, anyway.

Until last week, clinic leaders had planned on continuing the venereal disease test and birth control clinic at the present facility located a block north of Community Park, although those offices are cramped.

Pete Phillippe, who owns the building that houses the clinic and his plumbing contractor offices, was unavailable for comment on the lease decision yesterday.

If no new home for the clinic can be found by May, Finlayson said the clinic may be temporarily moved into his Rolling Meadows office, "as a last resort." Finlayson said that clinic, approved by Rolling Meadows city officials in April, is located at 1545 Hicks Rd., and is being constructed with offices for several general practitioners.

FINLAYSON is building the clinic to treat family and industrial medical needs in the area, according to his testimony to Rolling Meadows officials last spring.

The clinic on Hicks Road will be occupied in March.

In the meantime, Mrs. Micheln will begin working full time as Crossroads Clinic coordinator, and will help search for separate facilities in the Palatine area.

Crossroads Clinic has received federal revenue sharing funds from Palatine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Barrington townships. It was the center of a massive controversy Tuesday night when an estimated 400 persons attended a Palatine Township Board meeting to reconsider the $5,000 grant to Crossroads.

Streetlights for Scarsdale? Battle expected

by KURT BAER

Plans for new streetlights in the fashionable Scarsdale subdivision are expected to rejuvenate the area's homeowners' association, which has been inactive for nearly six years.

The village finance committee approved funding for the new, higher-powered street lights Tuesday night, during a review of the proposed five-year capital improvements budget.

The new "cobra head" style lights are scheduled for installation this spring and summer.

The cost of the new system is estimated at $250,000 and is to be paid for with state motor fuel tax funds.

"It's just been this week that there is talk about reactivating the association for street lights and sidewalks—there's always the threat of sidewalks," Russell Colvin, a past president of the Scarsdale Property Owners Assn., said yesterday.

COLVIN SAID he knows that some of the subdivision's residents are opposed to the new lights, but others, he says, have talked about the need for better lighting.

"There are still a lot of people, especially women, who would like to keep exactly what we have. They're concerned about the atmosphere and the appearance of the subdivision," Colvin said.

Village officials have said the old lights, which date from about 1927, cannot be reconditioned because of cost. And, in order to qualify for motor fuel tax funds, the new lights must meet minimum illumination standards set by the state.

Because the new lights have to be brighter, the poles have to be taller to keep the lights from shining directly in home windows.

"I'd like to keep the whole Scarsdale atmosphere," Colvin said, "but I don't see how we can meet state standards without the new lights."

The village already has installed a sample of the proposed lighting fixtures at the intersection of Fairview Street and Belmont Avenue.

BUT THE LIGHT has not yet been turned on, so Scarsdale residents have had little reaction to it, Colvin said. The lights will have an orange tint.

A second light, a bronze-colored version of the aluminum model already in place may be installed near Fairview and Belmont, according to Village Engineer Allen Sander. However there is little chance the bronze standards will be used, he said.

The poles scratch easily and would be a continuous maintenance problem, Sander said yesterday.

What will be used, most likely, are sodium vapor lamps on aluminum poles.

The sodium vapor bulbs use about one-half as much energy as the more common mercury vapor lamps, and the orange color of the sodium lights is regarded by some observers as less harsh than the mercury vapor light.

VILLAGE PRES. Jack Walsh said yesterday that as far as he is concerned, the policy question on new Scarsdale lighting was made several years ago when old lights were replaced in Stonegate subdivision.

"At the time of Stonegate, it was very clearly understood that both subdivisions were going to be done," Walsh said, adding that he has not heard anything since that time to make him change his mind.

The new street lights, however, are not a certainty until the village board formally adopts its 1974-75 budget, he said.

"The people in Stonegate were very upset at the time the lights were changed. But I know of no opposition or complaints about them now," Walsh said.

STONEGATE RESIDENTS lost their fight to keep new lights out in 1968, after a bitter, two-year fight.

Walsh said he had no plans now to schedule a special public hearing on the Scarsdale lighting, but he conceded that new members of the village board may want to raise the issue.

"But, my golly, that's been discussed ad nauseum," he said.

A final plan for the new lighting is still being drawn, Sander said, but in most cases, the new poles will be placed where the old lamps stand now.

The sample street light at Fairview and Belmont has to be wired by Commonwealth Edison Co., but could be shining for the residents of Scarsdale within a week.

MORE THAN 100 MODEL cars were raced at the annual Berkley Square Pinewood Derby, which was one of many held in Arlington Heights. Cub Scouts awarded engraved trophies at the pack's blue and gold dinner to be held in February.

In April school election

Teachers back 3 for 2 board seats

The Arlington Teachers Assn. last night voted to endorse three candidates to run in the Arlington Heights Elementary School Dist. 25 election this spring.

The candidates recommended are Robert Kazlauskis of 639 N. Kaspar; James Foster of 2515 E. Olive and Joann Klusmann of 3 E. Canterbury Ln. Kazlauskis and Mrs. Klusmann are incumbents whose terms expire in April.

The three candidates will vie for two positions on the board.

"We are looking for someone knowledgeable, someone with a great interest in education," said Dave Robinson, a member of the screening committee.

EACH OF THE THREE candidates were interviewed for one-hour sessions. Members of the ATA screening committee asked each candidate questions ranging from classroom size to teacher-administration relations.

The ATA and its Illinois Political Action Committee for Education, whose members made up the screening committee, endorsed more persons than there are available. The ATA policy is to recommend as few or as many persons as qualify, according to Robinson.

Although the ATA screened only the three candidates who appeared last night, members said they will reconvene if more persons wish to be screened for candidacy.

Those who wish to be screened should contact Robinson at Thomas Junior High School at 259-2200 and arrange for an interview.

Parents to urge schools stop using 'sexist' materials

A committee of School Dist. 21 parents tonight plans to ask the school board to stop the use of what the committee feels to be sexist materials in local schools.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The committee intends to request that the school board include the following paragraphs in the district's policy manual:

"There will be no discrimination and/or stereotyping of roles in Dist. 21 school programs or activities nor will there be any discrimination in employment of teachers, administrators or any school personnel or in the use of school facilities or expenditures of public school funds.

"Any discrimination and/or stereotyping of sex roles in curriculum materials currently in use will be eliminated."

Judy Keller, 1210 E. Burr Oak Dr., and Linda Hays, 3216 N. Volz Dr., both of Arlington Heights, are scheduled to represent the committee in making the policy adoption request.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, the board will consider the following items:

- Proposed resolution for participating in a Regional Service Agency for handicapped children.

- Evaluation of the Temptron Surveillance System, a computerized monitoring system installed in local schools last fall to prevent fires and vandalism.

- Northwest Educational Cooperative Data Processing Center.

Following the regular business meeting, the board is scheduled to go into executive session to discuss teacher contract negotiations.

Village to patch Arlington Hts. Road potholes

The village will patch the potholes on Arlington Heights Road at the Chicago & North Western Ry. grade crossing.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh directed village engineer Al Sander at the village board finance committee meeting Tuesday to begin patching of the approaches. Walsh said the situation warranted immediate action by the village.

Arlington Heights Road is a state highway. Usually repairs and maintenance of state roads are handled by state crews.

Walsh cited rapidly deteriorating conditions in ordering the work. He said there have been many incidents of motorists swerving out of their lanes to avoid potholes.

Sanders said the temporary patches might not hold up under the heavy traffic. Walsh said crews should be dispatched daily, if necessary, to keep the holes filled.

Chamber dinner-dance Saturday

The Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual dinner-dance and installation of new officers Saturday at the Lancer Steak House, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg.

1974 officers of the chamber of commerce are, Harold C. Harvey, president; Mike Silverman, vice president; Robert Walsh, treasurer; and William Miles III, secretary.

Harvey, former president of the North Point State Bank, recently was named president of the Tollway-Arlington National Bank, Algonquin at Arlington Heights roads.

Warren Rogers will provide music for Saturday's dance.

HE'S COMING BACK! Jazz trumpeter Maynard Ferguson and his all-British band will perform for the second consecutive year at Rolling Meadows High School Monday. His concert, held for the benefit of the Rolling Meadows High School band, will be at 8 p.m. in the gym. Tickets are $3 if purchased in advance from the school music department, band members or band booster club president Grant Vavang (phone 259-9640). Tickets will be $3.50 at the door.

Dempsey elected to library committee

Frank J. Dempsey, executive librarian of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library, recently has been elected to the executive committee of the Regional Library Advisory Council of the North Suburban Library System.

The advisory council is comprised of the head librarians of 34 member libraries in Cook, Kane and Lake counties which form the North Suburban Library System. It advises the system on library functions, activities and policies.

The North Suburban Library Systems, with headquarters in Morton Grove, is a system in which member libraries share library materials and services.

Village board wrapup

Village to consider RTA resolutions

The Arlington Heights Village Board has agreed to consider formal resolutions, both pro and con, on the pending proposal to create a Regional Transit Authority at its next meeting Feb. 4.

Trustees voted 5-4 Monday night to take up the question of an official position on the March 19th referendum, with Village Pres. Jack Walsh casting the tie-breaking vote. Walsh has declared his personal opposition to the proposed RTA bill.

A split vote on whether to support the referendum is expected when the board discusses the question next month.

Special sign pleas rejected

Two special sign requests were turned down by the village board, and a third petitioner, who was absent Monday night, was given a gratuitous warning that his request will not be continued a third time.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh told the missing representatives of Open Road industries, Golf and Algonquin roads, the village board "may not continue to be polite" in granting continuances on the dealer's request for a sign variation.

Residents from the Surrey Ridge West area have turned out for two meetings on the request, both of which resulted in continuances.

A request to install three signs, rather than the permitted two, at the soon to open Mr. Angus Restaurant, Rand at Arlington Heights roads, was turned down by the board.

Kenroy, Inc. was turned down on its request for a sign at Dundee Road and Rte. 53 in Arlington Heights advertising its hotel-office complex, the Crossroads of Commerce, in Rolling Meadows.

The sign, already up at the location, will be removed.

Village personnel department?

The Arlington Heights finance committee will reexamine the need to create a personnel department for village employees.

A Jan. 7 ordinance creating the new department was rescinded Monday night at the request of Trustee Richard C. Durava.

This year, for the first time, the village hired a full-time personnel administrator at an annual salary of $14,685.

Flood plan accepted; no referendum yet

The Arlington Heights Village Board has accepted the flood control program outlined by Stanley Consultants but rejected March 19 as a date for a referendum on the $16.5 million plan.

March 19, which had been proposed as a referendum date by the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding, was rejected by the board because of fears that the referendum on the formation of a regional transportation authority would cloud the flooding issue.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the citizens committee, said a $16.5 million bond issue, if approved, would mean about a $39 tax increase on an Arlington Heights home with an assessed valuation of $10,000.

Two trustees, J. Burton Thompson and Ted Salinsky, voted against making Stanley Consultants' report as the village's official flood control program because of its proposal that Pioneer Park be used as the location for two storm water reservoirs.

THE BOARD ALSO agreed not to include an advisory referendum question on the use of Pioneer Park as a second proposition on the flood control ballot.

The citizens action committee had suggested the advisory question as a means of determining whether the public favored the use of the park for flood control, or sided with the park board, which has refused to approve the plan.

Trustees support recycling effort

The Arlington Heights Village Board this week voted to adopt a resolution to encourage and support recycling in the village.

Marilyn Macko, head of the recycling committee and Jean Hanlon, chairman of the Environmental Control Commission, submitted to the board a 17-page report on the recycling effort in Arlington Heights.

In the report, the ECC made several recommendations to increase recycling, including the recommendation that the village enact a resolution that calls for all citizens and businesses to participate in recycling of glass and paper.

"We feel that the board should officially recognize the economic and environmental value of recycling," the commission wrote.

Metron extends two bus routes

Metron Systems Corp. has extended two of its commuter bus routes.

Its Berkley Square route will now run north to the Villa Verde apartments in Buffalo Grove. And the company's southern route now starts at Goebbert and Algonquin roads.

A Rolling Meadows man, Hugh Johnson, has been hired as transit systems manager for Metron's Arlington Heights operation.

But the possibility of conflicting outcomes on the two propositions was enough to kill the idea.

Palmatier said even if agreement with the park board on Pioneer Park cannot be reached, he is in favor of going ahead with the referendum. A strong vote in favor of the bond issue might be the leverage needed to reverse the park board's decision, he said. He said the referendum may be held in April or May. Several tentative dates have been set, but later postponed.

"I personally would like to get an expression of sentiment from the residents whether we have support for this program," he said.

Two music students chosen for concert

Two music students from Rolling Meadows High School have been selected to appear with the Illinois All-State Band and Orchestra Festival on Saturday. They are Robert Mulley and David Gauger, both trumpet players in the instrumental music program at Rolling Meadows.

The Festival Concert will be presented at Arlington Park Track Clubhouse at 1:30 p.m. The program will feature the all-state band, orchestra, and chorus. Students who qualified for the performance were selected by audition. This concert is presented in conjunction with the state meeting of the Illinois Music Educators Association.

Bob Mulley is the son of Mrs. Jean Mulley, 2501 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows. Dave Gauger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gauger, 3990 Bluebird Ln., Rolling Meadows.

The Jazz Band from Rolling Meadows High School will perform on Friday, at the Arlington Park Towers. They will be entertaining the students who are performing in the all-state concert.

Village may pay for cleanup

It may wind up costing the Village of Arlington Heights $5,000 to clean up the Brookside subdivision.

The financially troubled developer of Brookside, the Revere Construction Co., is reportedly near bankruptcy and the cost of tidying up the unfinished subdivision has run $5,000 over the bond money it posted with the village.

"The board told me to go ahead and put that subdivision in first class shape," said Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson, explaining the $5,000 charge which showed up on the village's accounts payable Monday night.

The subdivision is located off Hintz Road near Camelot Park in northeast Arlington Heights.

Last spring, the village board ordered a cleanup of the subdivision, with the cost of the job to be charged to Revere. Both Brookside home-buyers and the building company president, Stuart Kreisman, appeared at several sessions before the board, after the village building department and the home owners complained about conditions in the area.

Monday, the board instructed its attorney to look into the possibility of recovering the $5,000 cost through a court claim against the builder.

Scouting news

Those attaining scoutings highest rank were: Tom Turner, Richard Coha, Scott Scanlan, Wayne Spychala and Michael Lindsey. They are all students at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights.

Boy Scout Troop 66, of St. James Parish will have their bimonthly paper drive this Saturday afternoon in the area bounded by Arlington Heights Road, Euclid Avenue, Northwest Highway and Thomas Street.

Residents outside the pick-up area can bring their papers to the east parking lot of the school at 321 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Saturday, from 1 to 5 p.m.
